Dear Amos,

I was terribly sorry to hear about your boy. The feeling seems to be that he was taken prisoner which is much better than it might have been. You must be very proud of him and I certainly hope sincerely that he will come out.
All night eventually.

My two sons and my in-laws are lieutenants in the Navy. My oldest boy is executive officer on a mine layer with 15 officers and 300 men under him. While the young one is in command of a P.C. boat with 5 officers and 65 men under him. Everyone is talking about conditions after the war is over. If I get my typewriter back while I am not working about anything else. I guess that is the way we all feel who are really close to the damnable war.

We all miss you a lot at the meetings of A.A.

Nothing very new except a big training program of enlisted men to be pilots, radio operators, navigators & mechanics for the transport service.

Yours with regards for your next unitly

Chandler Henry
