

O. M. MOSIER

March 19, 1943

Dear Amon:

I tried to call you a week ago but well understood why the call should not be completed. However, from that date on, I have been kept constantly informed of your health and attitude and, of course, have refused to accept anything but the finest thoughts toward the future return of Amon, Jr.

I have just spoken with Dr. McKnight and feel much better in learning of your recent news which certainly lends much encouragement. I know the time will seem long before Amon returns and the distress of his absence will be heavy upon your shoulders and I only wish that I could do something to lighten the burden. All of us who have had the privilege of working with and knowing you for years are proud to hold to strong hopes and I want you to know if there is anything in the world that I can do just command it.

I hope to be coming to the southwest before long and, if I do not see you before then, I am sure going to make it a point to see you for a few minutes in Fort Worth.

With warmest regards and sincere affection, I am,

Red
