Amon Carter Jr., Missing in Action, Praised by Paper

LONDON. April 13.—(AP)—Lieut. Amon G. Carter Jr. of Fort Worth, reported missing in North Africa since Feb. 14, was praised Tuesday in “The Londoner’s Diary,” in Lord Beaverbrook’s Evening Standard.

“Back in the winter,” wrote the anonymous conductor of “The Londoner’s Diary,” I had a pleasant experience meeting two Amon Carters from Texas.

“The father, middle-aged proprietor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was here as a war correspondent to his own paper. Mrs. Roosevelt, here at the same time, used to address him as Amon.

“Carter Jr. is 23, a husky, lively young man trained for war at Bear’s Culver Military academy and peace at the University of Texas. He was a most likable young man whom everyone he met here held in high esteem. As an American colonel put it to me, he was ‘ready to go to town’ against the Germans any time.”

The writer concluded, “I trust Mr. Carter will soon be receiving good news.”
