Dear Mr. Harding:

Mr. C. R. Smith has passed along to me your inquiry to Amon Carter about our two-engined Beechcraft.

We did place it on the market but found just before closing a sale that, due to the demands of scheduled service, we would not have sufficient training planes to do all our training for the pilots required for our expansion program. We therefore decided to retain the Beechcraft until about January 1.

I am placing your letter in the follow-up, and when the release date becomes more definite, we will get in touch with you so that if you are still interested, we may be able to make you an attractive offer. You are correct that there are two spare engines included.

Yours sincerely,
