

Dear Folke,

This may get to you at the same time the letter I wrote last night but that doesn't make any difference because, well just because. "Cause why, that's no reason?" Aint I cute? The reason that this one may get to you at the same time is that I will take it to town and mail it at the Post Office this afternoon when I go. I mailed the other one on the post this morning.

Papa, the reason for the two money orders is that I almost forgot that I owed you some money. I had already bought the $75.00 one when I remembered my debt. I want you to buy me a bond with the $75.00 and the $25.00 is to pay you. By the way, ~~the~~ I guess I had better tell the news, I was put on the alert this morning. That means that within the next 48 hours

I'll be on my <sup>way</sup> somewhere. They probably won't let us tell where we are going even after we find out so probably the next you hear from me will be a phone call when I get to my next post.

I've got a date with a sirloin steak and a blond to-night so I'll hang up for now.

all my love,

Joe

P.S. — I hope nothing important has happened at home because I haven't gotten a letter since I've been here. They'll catch me at my next post.

Love again
