Will Rogers' article in the Sunday supplements about the Texas political situation is worth reading, even if you don't believe what he says, or coincide with his opinions. Rogers is a keen political satirist and commenter, and his observations are poignant and sometimes you can agreed with him. One statement is exceptionally good: "I claim that Jim Ferguson is the only Governor in the world by marriage."

Will said Jim was for the common people and he was for Jim. He criticised Amor G. Carter for his altions at A. & M. College and upheld the governor in her argument with him. Will made somewhat the same statements in his public appearances at the five largest cities in the state recently. His knowledge of the politics of the state is surprisingly accurate.
