1st day—365 days to come

This first day of the new year is a clear sunny day with a nice, fresh frost. A good day to begin to do a little work. This is the most beautiful day I have ever seen. The first day of the year, I might as well try to judge myself and see how much I have done. I am sure I have more than an average amount of blessings for one. The nature of this day is such a mixture of melancholy and happiness. I am not sure which is the dominant. My parents were almost in tears with their good fortune. My brothers, however, were just as happy and contented. My parents were almost in tears with their good fortune. My brothers, however, were just as happy and contented.
