Dear Amon:

I read an article a couple days ago in the latest Cosmopolitan magazine which, if you have not already seen, I am sure you will be particularly interested in the article entitled, "The War Prisoner Speaks His Mind". It is written by Larry Allen.

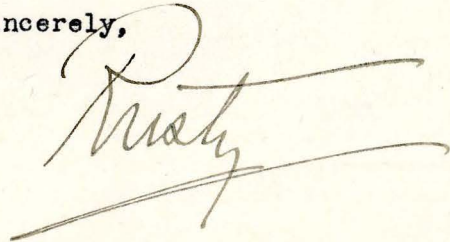

On page 129 reference is made to Amon, Jr. I am quite sure that someone else has already called your attention to this article, but just on the chance you have not seen it, I am writing you. Also, I wanted to say "hello" as I haven't had any correspondence with you for some time.

I hope you and your family are all well. We are doing about as usual up here. Bess is with us for a few months, which makes us very happy; but she misses her California climate after having lived out there for the last five years.

We have wondered lately whether or not Amon, Jr. had been among any of the prisoners exchanged. I intended writing to get the latest dope, but being out of town so much, I neglected to do so, and now this article in Cosmopolitan brings it to my mind.

When you have time, Bert and I would appreciate word from you as to how you are, and what you hear from Amon, Jr. In the meantime, we all send our very best to you.

Sincerely,
