Dear Amon:

Thanks a lot for the bucket of pecans which duly arrived and are being enjoyed by all of us. They were in fine condition and, of course, up to the usual standard supplied by your Hired Hand. Bert joins me in thanks to you again for keeping us on your list.

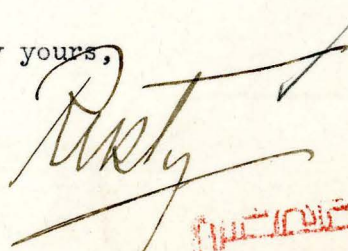

I noticed in yesterday's paper a statement signed by the newspaper correspondents who have just been in Europe, and that you were in that party. I thought the joint statement issued by you all was very good indeed, and I hope that it will have sufficient effect on the people of this country so that they won't all start going soft at this time and continue to let these Germans get away with their terrible stuff as they did after the last war, and apparently are attempting to do again this time.

It seems to me that General Eisenhower's request that the newspaper men go over and see the conditions at first-hand was a very good one, but we go soft here pretty quickly, and certainly for the good of the future of our country we ought to watch our step now more than ever before and not let those Germans ever start setting up for any future wars.

I am sure that you saw Amon, Jr. when you were over there, and I hope you found him in good condition and that he will be able to come home in the near future. He must have had a terrible experience in those prison camps; but he is young, and I certainly hope that he will come out of it allright.

Again thanks ever so much for the pecans. Our very best to you always. I am

Sincerely yours,

CHH:vm
