

BATTLE OF TUNISIA

This is a new detailed map of Tunisia, showing the combat area in which the Axis forces are making their stand. Indicated on map are cities, towns, mining settlements, all railroads and roads, water courses, and mountain ranges, with the altitudes of the individual mountains in the news. The north end of the Mareth Line is shown in the lower right corner. The linked dots indicate the approximate front of Feb. 1. Allied armies are west of this line. The British 8th Army is advancing from the southeast in an effort to join them.