

Amon Carter Jr., Liberated by Red Advance, Is Safe

EAST OF THE ELBE WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMIES, May 2 (AP). — Three released American prisoners of war from Luckenwalde reported Wednesday that Amon G. Carter Jr., son of the Fort Worth publisher, was alive and well and had been liberated by the Russian advance.

"Carter was in charge of distributing Red Cross parcels and when I saw him last yesterday he was in good shape and was staying in the Luckenwalde camp in compliance with the senior American officer's order that prisoners stay there until arrangements are made for them," said Lt. Henry N. Crellin, Springfield, Ohio.

Crellin was captured in Metz last October from the 5th Division. Harvey, a Flying Fortress navigator, was shot down over Berlin last June. And Dalofie was captured from the 103rd Division in December.

CARTER TAKEN PRISONER IN TUNISIA, FEB. 14, 1943.

Lieutenant Carter was reported as missing in action in Central Tunisia on Feb. 14, 1943. Notification to that effect was received by his father from the War Department on March 11. On April 15 he was reported a prisoner of the Germans.

The date of his being reported missing coincided with the opening of the original German offensive through Faid Pass. Carter is a graduate of Culver Military Academy and as a reserve officer was called to active duty in July 1941.

He trained at Fort Knox, Ky., and for several months prior to the landing in North Africa was stationed in North Ireland and England. He was with an armored unit.
