Parents brought under the big top

By JOE RZEPPA
Staff Writer

More than 2,000 visitors are expected on campus Friday for Parent's Weekend '79, according to Paula Anger, chairperson for the event.

Anger said that more than 30 students and staff members have been actively preparing for the weekend, which is sponsored by the Programming Council. The theme this year is "Under the Big Top."

The weekend will begin with registration in the student center lobby from 2 p.m.-6 p.m. today. Menus from various Fort Worth restaurants will be on display at the registration booth, Anger said.

The "Big Top Review," a student talent show featuring song, dance and comedy routines will be presented in the student center ballroom at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. tonight. The shows are being directed by Dan Foster, a professional director from Providence, R.I., Anger said.

She said that the audience will judge the show's winners. Optional donations of $1 will be taken at the door.

Registration will continue in the student center lobby from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

At 10 a.m. Saturday, parents will have the opportunity to meet Chancellor Bill Tucker and faculty members at a reception in the Sadler-Reed mall area. A continental breakfast will be served.

At noon on Saturday all TCU dormitories will hold an open house, giving parents the chance to visit their sons' and daughters' rooms.

The dorms will provide refreshments at this time, and each sorority and fraternity will hold a luncheon for members and their families.

SALT II hurdle may be jumped

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says he is working on a formula he believes will eliminate the issue of Soviet troops in Cuba as a barrier to Senate ratification of the SALT II treaty.

"I do believe a way can be found to eliminate the impediment to the ratification of SALT—to find the formula, the key to the locked door," Church, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd raised the possibility that he will permit the Senate's SALT debate to be televised. But he said his permission will depend on securing general agreement to limit the time spent on the treaty. Several senators who are inclined to favor the pact insisted in Senate speeches that its consideration be separated from the Soviet troop controversy.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said steps outlined by President Carter Monday night make clear that any Soviet move in the Western Hemisphere "will be met with a counter-reaction that will make whatever they do miniscule by comparison."

It was Church who first publicly linked the treaty with the presence of a Soviet combat force in Cuba. He said at the time he saw no way the Senate would ratify the treaty as long as Russian combat troops remained on the island 90 miles from Florida.

PLAY IT AGAIN, COMRADE — The TCU jazz ensemble toured Poland and the USSR this summer, in a program sponsored by the Friendship Ambassadors. Their first performance was at the House of Culture in Kharkov, Russia.

Jazz band to give concert

By ESTHER D'AMICO
Staff Writer

The TCU Jazz Band, back from its three-week summer tour of Russia and Poland, will perform in the student center lobby by Monday at noon. A brown bag luncheon will be in the TCU Art Gallery at 11:30 where slides of the trip will be shown.

The cost of the luncheon is $1.

This will be the jazz ensemble's first performance since the East Europe tour. The band was invited on the tour after winning the Wichita, Kansas Jazz Festival.

On May 12 the group left Fort Worth and found audiences behind the Iron Curtain loved TCU's jazz. Curtis Wilson, director of the ensemble, said.

At one point, Wilson added, the piano player had trouble seeing him because the piano top was overflowing with flowers.

"Jazz is not heard there as a steady diet," Wilson said. "That type of music really set their adrenaline flowing."

The ensemble performed in various concert halls ranging from a basement of a student-housing complex to an elaborate hall in Poland where the Philharmonic Symphony plays regularly.

The group arrived at Polish Lot

Airlines in Warsaw, at the same time as Pope John Paul II.

One truck in Poland, carrying the group's instruments, was impounded after the driver was arrested for driving while intoxicated, Wilson continued.

After much debate from Wilson and an interpreter, the instruments were released by the police though not in time for the group to perform in one of the scheduled concerts.

Honeymoon begins for first family

By CHRIS KELLEY
Campus Editor

TCU's first family, one might observe, truly exhibits "presidential" characteristics. Consider Chancellor Bill Tucker:

- He smiles a lot.

- He has a Southern accent.

- And he works in his shirt sleeves.

First Lady Jean Tucker, her accent born out of the south, recently returned from a goodwill mission to Africa.

And the Tuckers have three children—two boys and a girl.

There is one important difference though: the honeymoon has just started for this first family.

Tucker, 47, celebrates his first month today as chancellor — the eighth chief executive officer in TCU's 106 year history. He replaced Dr. James Moudy, who at 63 and after 14 years as Chancellor, resigned Sept. 5.

While he works 18-hour days making his way through unfinished business stacked on his desk, wife Jean finishes unpacking boxes at the chancellor's home on Simondale, a few blocks from campus.

"But I don't mind a few boxes around," she says, "there are so many other things I really want to do."

Mrs. Tucker returned Sept. 14 from a three-week trip to Zaire where she and two other members from the Disciples of Christ's Overseas Ministries checked on the status of the church amid Africa's rapid political and social changes.

The Tucker's oldest, Jan, 22, is enrolled in the first year of TCU's two-year Master of Business degree program, while number one son, Will, 19, is a TCU sophomore.

Vance Tucker is a senior at Fort Worth Country Day School, and according to his mother, "is deciding where to go to college. TCU is his first choice, but when you have the same last name as the chancellor, it poses a bit of a problem, she says."

Mrs. Tucker is understanding about the long hours her husband works. She said he is usually at the office by 9 or 9:30 a.m. and, except for time out to eat lunch and dinner, "he works at the office till midnight or so and then usually works another two hours at home."

"He finds a great deal of satisfaction in a job well done," and to do a good job it takes time, she said.

TCU to premier new play

The TCU Theatre Arts Department will present a "world premier" in February when they put on "Play with Fire," a new play by the author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Playwright Dale Wasserman decided this summer that TCU would be the best place to premier "Play With Fire," Kent Gallagher, chairman of the Theatre Arts Department, said.

Wasserman will be on campus to cast the play in November, Gallagher said. The playwright will be here again in January to direct the play for three weeks before the production, he said.

The play will run Feb. 6-10.

Try-outs are open to anyone, Gallagher said, adding that there are five parts for women and nine for men.

Other productions planned by the department are "Born Yesterday," Oct. 23-28; "Picnic," Nov. 8-11; "Look Homeward Angel," Dec. 4-9; and "A Little Night Music," March 25-30.

Admission to any of the plays is free with a TCU ID. All of the plays will be presented in the university theatre, except "A Little Night Music," which will be shown in Scott Theatre.

Man arrested in Carter threat

ST. LOUIS, Miss.—A St. Louis County truck driver has been arrested by Secret Service agents in connection with a letter containing a threat to the life of President Carter, authorities said.

David E. Feuerstein, 40, of Pine Lawn, was arrested Wednesday morning, officials said. The letter was received by Ted Welch, president of the Teamsters Local 600 in St. Louis.

Soviets denied U.S. equipment

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Soviet Union reportedly is being denied advanced U.S. equipment that would upgrade a computer it purchased in 1976.

Pentagon sources said Wednesday that Defense Secretary Harold Brown has decided to block the sale of the new equipment, which would have nearly doubled the computer's processing rate.

Farm fuel plan approved

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Senate Agriculture Committee has approved a $2-billion-a-year rural energy plan that supporters say could help make food and forest industries independent of foreign energy sources by the year 2000.

The heart of the bill, approved Wednesday by the panel, is a $1.25-billion-a-year program of direct and guaranteed loans to build plants to produce gasohol and other fuels from crops and forest products.

Davis testifies in own defense

FORT WORTH—Millionaire defendant Cullen Davis took the stand Thursday to deny involvement in a summertime 1978 scheme to kill his divorce judge and others.

Davis, looking relaxed and confident, told the jury in his murder solicitation trial that, in effect, he had no motive to kill divorce judge Joe Eidson.

The 46-year-old industrialist said he had assurances that Eidson intended to award him his $6 million mansion in the pending high-stakes divorce case.

Woman bounces to her death

NEW YORK—A woman who was bouncing on the bed of a New York City hotel plunged to her death from the 20th floor when she bounced out the window, her husband told police.

Police said Sylvia Maninirios, of Montevideo, Uruguay, was found dead early Thursday on the sidewalk outside the Taft Hotel in midtown Manhattan. Her husband, Bruno, explained she had been bouncing on the hotel room bed and accidentally bounced right through the window, police said.

O'Hair tries again to stop mass

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, who won a landmark Supreme Court decision on school prayer, says she'll go to the high court again if necessary to stop a papal Mass on government parkland.

O'Hair said her lawyers will first ask the U.S. Court of Appeals to rule that the Mass that Pope John Paul II plans to celebrate here Sunday violates the Constitution.

OPINION

TCU adopts unwilling student

BY NANCYLEE NOVELL
Editorial Page Assistant

As soon as I can I need to write home and tell my parents the good news. I've been adopted.

I guess it proves that you're never as old as you feel, because I certainly feel old enough to live on my own. I mean, here I am over two thousand miles away from home, fast approaching the magic age of 21, but TCU still feels I need parental supervision.

And since my own parents are too far away to take care of me—they couldn't even come down for Parent's Weekend—TCU has kindly consented to take their place.

Isn't that sweet?
And though I knew I'd miss my Mom's home cooking, I never thought I'd long for my father's "Code of Conduct"—that unending list of do's, don'ts and maybe's which he "allowed" me to live within.

TCU has proved a stricter parent than my "old world" father—something I didn't think possible.

But TCU is a church-related university, they say, which explains why we don't have coed dorms, or 24-hour visitation, or permission to drink alcoholic beverages on campus.

It's also why we must register all our guests of the opposite sex—commonly called visitation sign-in—before we can even have visitors in our rooms, during approved hours only.

Funny, my dad never once asked me to sign-in my friends when they came to visit. And, even though he didn't like me to have a noisy gathering after 11 p.m. (my baby brother would have been asleep), he didn't even object to male or female friends stopping by after then to talk or study.

In the matter of alcohol, Dad was a bit stricter. He really didn't want his daughter to become a lush, or an alcoholic, and he doesn't rightly hold to children drinking anything stronger than seven-up—even on New Year's eve (and that's rather strange, coming from an Italian family).

But I can't say Dad wouldn't let me drink. He taught me how to mix most of the drinks I enjoy.

TCU still sticks to the "nothing stronger than soda pop" rule. I guess they're afraid I don't know better. And I don't know how to tell them that nothing they can do could stop my vices if I were indeed a lush.

I also really don't know how to tell TCU that I resent being "adopted." On one hand, it's rather selfish of me—after all, TCU wants to do so much for me. They probably stay up nights worrying about me, setting all these rules for my own benefit.

But I'd just as soon they sleep. The only thing I'd really like TCU to do for me is provide me with a decent dorm room (right now it needs painting, airconditioning, and a full-scale war against the roaches and ants) and decent food.

Now, if they'd like to take my mom's place and cook like she used to do, I'd adopt them.

Easy remedy available for illegal house bill

Tuesday, the House of Student Representatives passed a bill that directly violates the Student Bill of Rights.

The legislation approved by the house established elections of a female homecoming queen. Five campus organizations will each select a male escort for the queen and her court, according to the bill.

Previously, the students elected a male and female Homecoming personality. But, the house was told Tuesday, Homecoming personalities don't get to go to the Cotton Bowl, and Homecoming queens do.

So, out of a misguided sense of school spirit, they passed an illegal law. Section 6 of the Student Bill of Rights says that no student can be denied opportunity on account of sex. Men who do not belong to any of the five organizations cannot be escorts for the new queen and her court; this bill discriminates against those men.

We think the house can remedy the situation easily—by introducing and passing a bill to change the election code once again.

If all five male escorts are elected—just as the queen and her court are elected—we could still have a Homecoming queen, legally.

Little white lies save lives, sanity

BY PAIGE PACE
Managing Editor

We all like to be considered basically honest.

But in college, lying gets out of hand.

After all, can you honestly say that you always tell the truth even to your best friend? When she comes bursting into the room, wearing what she considers an adorable outfit, do you tell her that she actually looks hideous? Come on now, admit it.

Believe it or not, I have tried telling the truth in these situations before. Afterwards, she wouldn't speak to me for two weeks.

No matter how emphatically a friend says she wants to know your real opinion, take it from me, she doesn't.

Actually, being the daughter of a dentist, I know that "little white lies" are perfectly acceptable. My father trained me at an early age that when someone telephones for the "doctor" I should answer that he is "out."

Now I realize that throughout my four years of college the same response has developed for my roommates. I automatically respond: "No, Becky is at the library, can I take a message?" or "She's at a meeting and won't be back for a long time." In the meantime, my roommate madly scribbles a note asking me what his voice sounds like.

And heaven help me if I lie to the wrong male.

One of my worst collegiate experiences in lying left me shaking in my saddle oxfords for several days and almost persuaded me to abandon the habit.

One night while deeply engrossed in my Bureaucratic Politics and Foreign Policy textbook, one of my undesirable "boyfriends" dialed my number. Fortunately, when I answered, I did recognize that deep, macho voice instantly, and politely replied that no, she is not at home.

What a suave, sneaky person I am. For days I walked around campus trying to disguise my voice (and this is no easy task with my Texas accent) for fear that any moment he would sneak up behind me and say, "Aha, I knew it was you all the time."

But would Poindexter have actually welcomed the truth? Would he jump for joy if I told him that in all actuality I despise his person? That he makes my skin crawl? Sorry, I'd rather remain on this campus until I graduate.

No, I think I'll stick to my deceiving ways. I may be punished sooner or later. But I'll live life to the fullest for as long as my brain can think of excuses and my mouth can form the words.

Crossfire

Question: Cars are plastered with bump bumper stickers proclaiming, "Foat Wuth Ah Luv You." What's so special about Fort Worth?

I'm a big fan of this whole area. Fort Worth has a small town atmosphere even though it's so big. It's easy to feel at home here. Everybody has a feeling of "all for one, one for all." There's a sense of unity and pride. I was away for seven years. You don't realize how nice people are until you leave. I'm glad to be back.—Debbie Frye, freshman, undeclared major, Dallas

Fort Worth is a little bit of the old and a little bit of the new. Besides the people are friendly, and that makes all the difference.—Mary Fredsall, sophomore, nursing major, New York

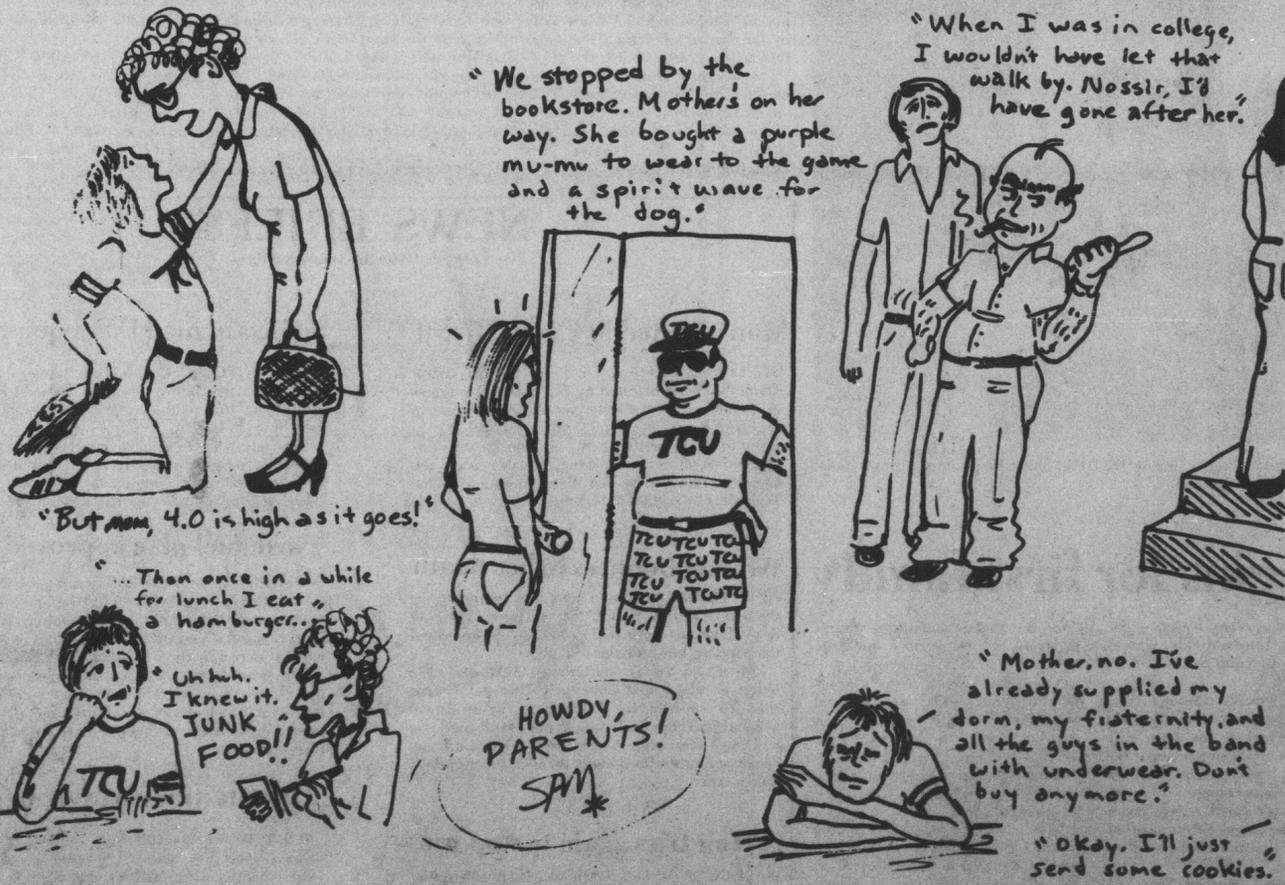

Fort Worth has everything you'd ever need or want. It has museums, parks, shopping centers and a great location. It has pro teams, like the Cowboys, right next door in Dallas. Even when you want to get away, Austin and Houston are close enough.—Ed Gifford, junior, marketing major, Massachusetts

Fort Worth is one of the prettiest metropolitan cities in the country. It has more personality than either Dallas or Houston. It's a big city with a small town atmosphere.—Stacy Boddy, senior, religion major, Pampa, Texas

The people in Fort Worth are really nice; they're very open. The atmosphere is very laid back.—Steve Conway, senior, business major, Minnesota

Fort Worth is a lot like my hometown of Tulsa. It's a pretty city; like the Botanical Gardens and Trinity Park. I like it more than Dallas because it's down-to-earth. It's more friendly than flashy.—Juli Covington, sophomore, undeclared major, Oklahoma

There's a lot happening in Fort Worth. There are always cultural events, like the Oktoberfest, for instance. Even though I'm from Dallas, Fort Worth is new to me.—Jacqueline Norris, freshman, business administration major, Dallas

Unique gardens lend quiet retreat

By DANNY BIGGS
Staff Writer

Fort Worth's free weekend entertainment is concentrated in gardens.

One is the Fort Worth Botanic Garden, 3220 Botanic Garden Drive.

From 1933 to 1935, the depression made it possible to build the $75,000 garden for $4,500.

The area was built entirely by 750 government-sponsored relief workers. Laborers worked two days each week so the work could last. Their wages were $2 per day, paid in meal tickets.

Each year the Gardens are visited by 80,000-125,000 people from every state and many foreign countries. This is one of the most outstanding horticulture gardens in the nation. Recently additions to it include a Fragrance Garden for the blind, theater-like lighting, and a 7.43 acre Japanese Garden.

The Garden itself is open all hours. The Garden Center is open 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Japanese Garden hours are Tuesday-Friday 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Sunday 1 p.m.-5 p.m.

The Water Garden downtown was a gift from the Amon C. Carter Foundation to the citizens of Fort Worth. The park took eight years to construct and was completed in 1974.

The Water Garden displays five major water features in a variety of unique surroundings. These attractions require water pumps with a capacity of 440 horsepower which provide 19,000 gallons of water per minute.

The $7 million Water Garden operation is kept up by the Park and Recreation Department of Fort Worth.

The park is open to the public free of charge, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. The main entrance is located at the intersection of Houston Street and 13th Street.

Another place to get away from it all is the Fort Worth Nature Center and Refuge, located on Greer Island.

In 1964, the city set aside an unspoiled nature area along Upper Lake Worth for the enjoyment of all its citizens.

Fort Worth owns and operates the center, which was developed with federal, city and private financing. Its purpose is "to preserve, protect, appreciate, understand and to cherish all of life and the world it inhabits."

To find the Refuge, take Hwy. 199 Northwest, turn right exactly 2 miles from Lake Worth Bridge and follow signs. It's open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week, except on city holidays.

Frogs to face baseball alumni

The major league playoff aren't the only baseball games being played in October.

Every afternoon, for about the past month, TCU baseball players have been going through workouts under Head Coach Willie Maxwell and Assistant Coach Kyle Van Hook.

Those workouts culminate tomorrow when the Frogs play their annual fall game against a team of TCU alumni baseball players. This varsity-alumni game begins at noon on the TCU Baseball Field.

Admission for the game is $2, but students and faculty will be admitted free with their ID cards.

The game will give Maxwell a chance to show off the new members of the Frogs, who only lost two starters to graduation last year.

Dave Schmucker and catcher Jim Moody.

Maxwell says that his starters will include Moody, senior first baseman Joey Key, second baseman Mariz, All-District shortstop Trey Brooks, third baseman Randall Rodriguez, and outfielders Pereira, Don Peterson and Scott Ringnald.

The starting pitcher will be David Novey, who will also be the designated hitter for the Frogs.

Maxwell also said that he will use righthanders Brian Coombs and Greg Meyer, and lefthander Mark Heinitz if necessary.

The alumni, who will be coached by Mike Turner and Sonny Cason, will feature several former all-Southwest Conference players. Included are outfielders Jim Torres ('72), Gene Burton ('76) and Steve Houk ('78); and infielders Phil Turner ('73), Tom Butler ('73) and Danny Twardowski ('76).

Lance Brown, who was an All-American for the Frogs in 1963, will be one of the pitchers for the alumni. They also have John Grace, who is the only TCU pitcher ever to throw a perfect game.

Maxwell says that he likes having the game in the fall.

"The competition is good for our varsity and it's a fun game for the former players," he said. "The game helps bring these guys back to our campus and keep them involved with our baseball program."

Last year, the varsity Frogs had to come from behind for their 12-7 victory over the alumni.

Frog swimmers are stepping up

Amon Carter Stadium as a training ground for swimming?

For TCU's new swimming coach Richard Sybesma and the Frog swimmers, Amon Carter is just that. Since they started their dry-land conditioning program on Sept. 12, Frog swimmers have been seen walking up the stadium steps on their hands, wheelbarrow-style. Their training also includes running, exercises, weightlifting, rope-climbing and, of course, swimming.

Sybesma, who replaces Rufe Brewton as coach, swam competitively at Texas Tech. He came to TCU from Monahan, Texas, where he was coaching high school and AAU teams.

Sybesma says the team has been working very hard in preparation for the upcoming season, which begins November 2.

"We have a fine group of hard-working young men and women out for the team this year," he says.

"There is a lot of desire, and quite a bit of talent."

"This will be an exciting year in many ways," he says. "We have a few swimmers that have a shot at making the Olympic Trials in June, with a solid year's work."

Overall, he says the Frogs have "an enthusiastic young team that could give some other Southwest Conference teams a few headaches before too long."

Baltimore wins again

BALTIMORE (AP)—Eddie Murray drove in four runs with a single and a homer as the Baltimore Orioles scored eight runs in the first two innings, then survived a late rally to edge the California Angels 9-8 Thursday.

After trailing 9-1 in the second game in the best-of-five series, the Angels scored seven runs in the last four innings and had the bases loaded in the ninth before reliever

Don Stanhouse retired Brian Downing on a force play for the final out.

The victory, behind the nine-hit pitching of Mike Flanagan and Stanhouse, put the Orioles on the brink of qualifying for their fifth World Series in the last 14 years.

They now hold a 2-0 lead in the championship series, which continues on the West Coast Friday night.

Bernard "Blackie" Williams

TCU Lettermen's Hall of Fame to add four new inductees tonight

Four of TCU's most illustrious athletes, A.R. "Buddy" Dike, James Busby, Derrell Palmer and Bernard "Blackie" Williams, will be enshrined into TCU's Lettermen's Hall of Fame Friday night at Colonial Country Club.

Dike, a 1958 graduate, lettered for the Horned Frogs in 1954, 1956 and 1957 and captained the 1957 football team. His 1,491-yards rushing is seventh on TCU's all-time career list.

A successful Fort Worth business executive, Dike received the Pop Boone "Fighting Frog" award and the Grassy Hinton award in 1957. He is a past president of TCU's Lettermen's Association, and is currently chairman of the board of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association.

He's the only Cotton Bowl board chairman to have played in a Cotton Bowl classic. Dike helped lead the Frogs to an 8-3 record in 1956 and then had a hand in TCU's 28-27 Cotton Bowl victory over Syracuse.

Busby, a 1948 TCU grad, was a three-sport star for the Frogs. He lettered for the 1944 football team, the 1948 track team and the 1947 and 1948 baseball teams. He led the Southwest Conference in hitting in 1948 with a .509 batting average.

After graduation from TCU, Busby turned pro and was an American League All-Star player in 1951. He was also selected as an all-star coach for the 1961 classic. He has been a professional baseball player and coach for 21 years.

Busby now makes his home in Yalaha, Florida.

Palmer, a 1942 grad who now lives in Dallas, was a four-year letterman in football, from 1939 to 1942, and a two-year letterman in track. He was an All-America tackle for the Frogs in 1942 and all-SWC in 1941 and 1942. He captained TCU's 1942 Orange Bowl team.

A standout professional baseball and football player, Palmer played with the New York Yankees from 1946 to 1948. He also played football for the Cleveland Browns from 1949 to 1953. He played in seven world championship games, football and baseball combined.

Williams is a 1928 TCU grad. He was a three-sport star for the Frogs, lettering in football four times, baseball four times and basketball once. He captained the '28 football and baseball teams.

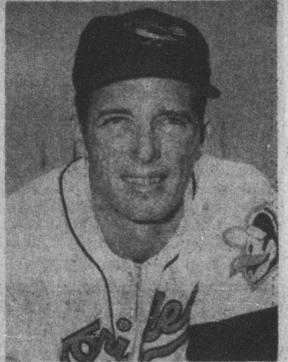

A past president of the TCU Lettermen's Association, Williams was co-organizer of the association, and also the Frog Club.

Dike, Busby, Palmer and Williams will be present at Friday night's banquet, which starts at 7:30 p.m. The banquet is open to the public at a cost of $10 per plate. A cocktail hour starts at 6:30 p.m.

The four Hall of Famers will also be recognized at halftime of the TCU-Arkansas game Saturday night at Amon G. Carter Stadium.

Hogs invade Fort Worth

By MATT KEITH
Skiff Sports Writer

When the Razorbacks visit Amon Carter Stadium tomorrow, two TCU records will be on their side.

First, TCU hasn't defeated Arkansas since 1958.

Secondly, the Frogs have a 0-3 season record, after losing to UT-

Arlington last weekend. Counting last season, they have lost eight consecutive games.

All things change, though, and Arkansas coach Lou Holtz is taking nothing for granted against the Frogs. "I expect a heck of a football game," he said. "They have good people and are well coached. I'm worried more about our team than anyone else."

Holtz said he is concerned about the way his team, especially the younger players, will react to its first road trip to a hostile stadium.

Not the least of Holtz's worries is that his star quarterback, Kevin Scanlon, will be playing with a tender back. Scanlon has been plagued with back trouble following an injury in the Razorbacks' season opener.

Holtz shouldn't worry though. Last week, back-up quarterback Tom Jones made his first collegiate start in place of the wounded Scanlon and moved from being an obscure name on the Razorback roster to being the Southwest Conference's leading passer.

The Razorbacks are not the only team with uncertainty at the quarterback slot. TCU sophomore Kevin Haney will be starting his first game at the Frogs' helm. Last week he replaced Steve Stamp in the fourth quarter and lead the Frogs in a last ditch comeback attempt.

After the game, TCU Head Coach F.A. Dry said he was impressed with Haney's play, including a big play on third down that sparked the TCU comeback attempt.

"Kevin moved the team well," he said. "He just didn't have enough time. He made the big play, and then the whole thing came together. We've got to have a big play man."

Haney says the Frogs are improving, even though their season record doesn't reflect the change. "We are slowly but surely getting our game together."

TCU defensive coach Bob Junko said the thing that impressed him about the UTA game is that the team "didn't stack arms" when they were behind in the fourth quarter. Instead, they kept on fighting and came back to within seven points of the Mavericks.

Looking ahead to Arkansas, Junko said, "This is a conference game, and we're going into it with the idea that we're going to win."

Wogs play today

The TCU junior varsity football team, which has yet to give up a point this year, will put their 2-0 record on the line today when they host Cisco Junior College.

The Wogs have outscored their opponents 89-0 thus far this year, and have set several school records.

Longhorns open conference slate

Southwest Conference football gets into full swing this weekend as eight conference teams fight it out in four games.

The Texas Longhorns open their conference season Saturday as they host the Rice Owls. The Longhorns are undefeated in non-conference play with a 2-0 record. They are currently ranked fourth in the nation after defeating fifth-ranked Missouri 21-0 last weekend. The defeat dropped Missouri to 15th in this week's poll.

Rice is 1-3 for the season after losing to Oklahoma 63-21 last Saturday. Despite their record, the Owls are leading the conference in passing offense with an average of 166.7 yards a game.

The sixth-ranked Houston Cougars will be looking for their fourth consecutive win as they host the Baylor Bears in the Astrodome. Houston moved up from eighth in the rankings last week when it blasted West Texas State 49-10.

The Bears will be trying to preserve their lead in the conference race. They are currently 2-0 in conference action, with victories over Texas Tech and Texas A & M.

The Razorbacks will be invading Fort Worth as the TCU Horned Frogs host Arkansas. The Razorbacks are listed 13th this week in the AP poll following a 33-8 victory over Tulsa. TCU is 0-3 on the season after losing 21-14 to UT-Arlington last weekend.

Texas A & M and Texas Tech will meet in Lubbock Saturday to battle for a ticket out of the Southwest Conference cellar. Both teams are 0-1 in conference play after losses to Baylor. In season action Tech is 1-2-1, and A & M carries a 2-2 record.

All of the games may be heard on the Mutual Southwest Conference Radio Network. In the metroplex, radio station WBAP will carry the Texas-Rice game, KAAM will cover Baylor-Houston, KLIF will transmit the Texas A & M-Texas Tech game and both KRLD and KXOL will carry the Arkansas-TCU game.

TCU Arkansas

Kickoff: 7:30 p.m. Saturday, October 6 at Amon Carter Stadium.
Tickets: Around 30,000 fans are expected for the Parent's Weekend game, including many from Arkansas. Good seats still available.
Last Week: TCU's fourth-quarter rally fell short as they lost to UT-Arlington 21-14, while Arkansas (3-0) crunched Tulsa 33-8.
Last Year: Arkansas rolled up 392 yards in offense as they crushed the Frogs 42-3 in Little Rock.
Series: Arkansas has won the last 20 games between the two schools and holds a 33-20-2 series lead, including a 15-12-1 advantage in Fort Worth.
Frog Injuries: All the Frogs are healthy and available for action.
Hog Injuries: Running back Thomas Brown is out for the year with a shoulder injury. Defensive end Jim Howard has a pulled groin muscle and is questionable.
Radio: The Mutual Radio Network will carry the game, with KRLD (1080 AM) and KXOL (1360 AM) carrying the game locally. Bill Mezer will call the play-by-play, with Stan Mc Kenzie doing the color.
Next Week: Arkansas travels to Lubbock to take on Texas Tech, while the Frogs go to Houston for their first road game of the year against Rice.

The Colleges

Some Bottom 10 voters were accused of giving "less than 100 per cent effort" and warned to "get off their duffs" unless they want to be reassigned to rating Pop Warner teams following the third major shake-up in the college rankings in three weeks.

Just as Northwestern (1-3) and Wyoming (1-3) had done earlier, Colorado (1-3) committed the unpardonable sin of winning while ranked number one and drew a seven-day suspension from The Bottom Ten.

Meanwhile, Georgia, just an old sour song for its supporters this year, moves into the now-jinxed top spot. The Puppy Dogs (0-3), who were 9-1-1 last year, are reviving memories of the Great Turnaround by Arizona State, which went from 11-0 in 1975 to 4-7 in 1976.
