Brown joins Democrats in 1980 presidential race

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination today, saying that the nation's current leaders are "simply inadequate to steer the ship of state."

Brown says he stands for protection of the Earth, service to the people and exploration and industrialization of space.

That was the theme of a brief statement with which, Brown said, "I offer myself as a candidate" for the White House because the nation's current leadership is not adequate.

"Presidential leadership often seems the exception rather than the rule," he said. "It's time to wake up America, to build for the future, not steal from it."

He vowed: "I'm going to offer an alternative."

With that, Brown formally launched his challenge to President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kenedy, the latter already on the road campaigning for the nomination. Carter is to announce his candidacy on Dec. 4.

Brown said he is the candidate of the future, and that is what the nation needs.

"Today is the first day of my campaign...for the tea leaves of the polls, I leave those to others," he said.

He called for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. And he proposed a national energy corporation to develop and manage the country's oil supply and said he would impose government control over petroleum imports.

He also urged that public representatives, named by the president, be appointed to the boards of directors of all multinational corporations.

Brown, the last serious challenger to President Carter for the nomination three years ago, acknowledges he is running a distant third in the polls and in campaign fund raising. But he says he has the "physical and financial wherewithal" to battle for next year's nomination.

Few of his labor and party organization supporters from 1976 are showing any inclination to back him again, leaving Brown more of a political loner than before.

Brown, whose late-starting campaign in 1976 beat Carter in all three states where they both were on primary ballots, said before his announcement he knew he was starting the 1980 race a distant third—both in the polls and in raising money.

Even in California, Brown trails Kennedy and Carter in a local poll.

He has raised only $260,000 since July, far short of the $1.5 million his finance chairman says is needed to make it through the New Hampshire primary Feb. 26 and Massachusetts the following week.

TCU hosts home ec convention

BY CHERYL HUFF
Staff Writer

TCU is hosting 250 girls from 22 Texas universities this weekend for the annual convention of Texas Home Economics Student Section (THESS) and the Texas Student Dietetics Association (TSDA).

"Go Pro" is the theme of the convention, said Debbie Sawvell, state vice-chairman of THESS and a member of the TCU chapter of HESS. The event should show future teachers, fashion merchandisers or home service agents, how to discover the mutual attitude of professionalism, she said. The convention will concentrate on each aspect of Home Economics and Dietetics, said Sawvell. There will also be some demonstrations, she added.

Patricia's of Hulen Mall will demonstrate how to dress professionally and Durkee, a food company, will give a demonstration on fats and oils in food.

Part of the activities will include a tour of interest spots in Fort Worth on Friday afternoon. Saturday morning everyone will tour the Starpoint School and Annie Richardson Bass Building.

The convention is being held at the Hilton Inn located in downtown Fort Worth, Sawvell said. There is a dance Friday night at the hotel and various male organizations on campus have been invited to escort the girls.

Saturday, there will be a luncheon and the TCU Fashion Council will present a style show.

TCU's HESS chapter has over 100 members which includes home economics, interior design, and dietetic majors.

The TCU chapter is strong and the local members are hopeful that some of the state or national officers will be elected from TCU, said Warwick.

Molloy says 'beige an upper-class color'

BY STACY BEDDINGFIELD
Staff Writer

"Let me disappoint you—I am a limited man. I am a researcher, I do not have a direct line to the Almighty. And if he does reach me, I hope he doesn't discuss fashions!" John Molloy, best-selling author said Wednesday.

Claiming to be "America's first wardrobe engineer," Molloy has written "Dress for Success," and "Women's Dress for Success." His slide show and speech was a Forums presentation.

"I am here... to help you succeed, to help you get from Step 1 to Step 2, to equip you with an additional weapon. That weapon is clothing," Molloy said.

Dressed in a dark grey, two-piece suit, white shirt and a burgandy, white, black and grey striped tie, Molloy explained that colors do make a difference.

He discovered this while working as a corporate consultant. Sales for one of his corporations were down and sales representatives were not being well-received. He traced the problem to the raincoats the salesmen wore. The salesmen with black raincoats were getting bad results, while the men dressed in beige raincoats continued to have rising sales.

It turns out that "beige is an upper-class color," Molloy said. "All it proves is that Pavlov is right. We are conditioned. Colors with authority we salute," he said.

He became interested in his line of work quite by accident. At age 26, he quit his position as a vice president of a large insurance company and took up teaching. After two years he decided to quit because he needed more money, but his boss talked him into staying, telling him that he could earn more money by teaching underprivileged children how to read in the mornings, and conducting research in the afternoons.

"Research?" Molloy thought at the time, "I don't know a thing about research!" His boss said, "John, being unqualified never stopped anyone from taking government money." That reply changed his mind, and consequently, his life. He became a part-time consultant, then a college teacher, then a full-time corporate consultant.

"The men who run our country do it in dull colors—blue, brown and dull. And when they want to get real wild and put in a jazzy pattern, they choose this!" he said, pointing to a slide of a pinstripe suit.

"Suits," Molloy said, "say 'power.' They say, 'I am important.'"

Although all shades of grey are the most effective, according to Molloy, most of the shades of beige are fine also. "In this area, brown with a greenish tint says, 'I am a gentleman.' Up north, it says, 'peasant.' The biggest mistake Texans make is taking what works here, somewhere else," he said.

"As far as shirts go," Molloy continued, "if you own 20 of them, 18 should be white. White doesn't cause any problems, it generally goes with everything."

"Ties should be small patterns or simple stripes. The darker the tie, the more serious the person, and the more power he represents," he said.

Jewelry, Molloy said, should consist of a wedding ring, a watch, a gold pen and cufflinks.

Successful women should also wear suits—two or three-piece skirted suits, Molloy said. The equivalent of a man's three-piece pinstripe suit, he told women in the audience "it will take you away from the typewriter."

"I don't claim you're going to love it. I don't think you're going to like it," he said, but if worn for the same reason that men wear suits, it will indicate rank and power—it will gain respect."

Women can wear any shade of beige, Molloy said, but never pink, and never light blue in this area of the country. Also, women as well as the men should never wear green, because "people won't trust you if you're in green," he said.

Hair length for women should be shoulder length or shorter, Molloy said, but "if it is long, keep it tied back."

NEWS BRIEFS

Democrats plan 1980 convention

SAN ANTONIO—National Democratic leaders, divided on presidential politics, gathered in historic San Antonio on Thursday to set the stage for the 1980 national convention.

Attracting votes from Hispanic voters quickly became one of the main aims of the 363-member Democratic National Committee, the policy making arm of the national party.

"One of the reasons we are here in this city with a long Hispanic history is because the Mexican-American vote is vitally important to us," Democratic National Chairman John White told reporters.

"I do not think Texas, Arizona or California can be carried without the support of the Hispanic voters."

Texas Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg told a news conference that the "key to 1980 in Texas is South Texas with its large Mexican-American vote. The Mexican-Americans are the most underrepresented group in our population."

Coast Guard battles oil slick in Gulf

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)—The Coast Guard today braced for another onslaught of oil on the upper Texas shore from a crippled tanker after fickle gulf winds shifted and blew from the southeast toward land.

Winds which had been blowing from the north, shoving most of the oil leaking from the grounded Burmah Agate out to sea, shifted Wednesday. The grounded tanker has been burning and leaking oil since it collided with a freighter one week ago.

Thirty-two men were believed killed in the crash, but only 14 bodies have been recovered.

Iranian students hazed by crowd

HOUSTON (AP)—About 75 Iranian students who marched through the downtown area to demonstrate their support of Teheran students holding Americans hostage prompted shoving and angry shouts from some local citizens Wednesday.

Some bystanders pushed the marchers and tore at least two of their signs, while others shouted such things as "Iranian dogs, go home."

Despite the crisis in Tehran, Police Capt. W.T. Higgins said the local citizens observing this march were not any more violent than those at previous Iranian demonstrations in Houston.

"The shouting and carrying on has been there all along," said Higgins, who has monitored almost all of the students in downtown Houston.

Slogans on the signs carried by the Iranians included, "Send back the criminal Shah to the Iranian people," and "Long live Palestine."

Davis jurors ask to review evidence

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—Jurors deliberating the fate of millionaire, Cullen Davis listened behind closed doors Thursday to the tapes upon which the murder-for-hire case is based.

"It's a new day," ventured prosecutor John Bankston after the panel launched its second day of secret debate with a request for the FBI tapes.

"They are asking for our evidence," Bankston said. State attorneys appeared privately dismayed Wednesday after the 11-member jury deliberated more than six hours without reaching a verdict in the 15-week-old trial.

TCU holds Olympics

TCU's first annual Winter Olympics, sponsored by the Recreation and Travel Committee, will take place on campus Nov. 27-30, said Stuart Lord, chairman of the committee.

Olympic events include cross country roller skating, broom hockey, tug-of-war, and a doughboy slide.

Also, there will be an obstacle course, a stair climbing race, a snowpie-eating contest, and the grand finale snowball fight.

Students compete in teams of five men and five women. And each team must participate in all eight events.

A five dollar entry fee for each team is required and the deadline for entries is Tuesday, Nov. 15 at 3 p.m. Entries can be turned in to the Programming Council or mailed to the student activities office.

The top three winning teams will receive money awards ranging from $100 down to $25. The fourth place team will receive a gallon of Gatorade.

The top team will also be honored with a plaque which will be hung in the student center. It will have the winning team's name engraved on it.

Taylor revisits Hideaway

Tomorrow night Eric Taylor returns to play at the Hideaway. Taylor comes from Houston and has been playing coffee houses and clubs for several years. He has played all of the major colleges in Texas and has appeared twice at the Kerrville Folk Festival, held each spring in Kerrville, Texas.

Taylor appeared last spring at the Hideaway with Nanci Griffith who also did a show at TCU. Nanci and Eric are now married and both do single coffee house performances.

The Eric Taylor mini-concert will start at 8 p.m. and is free to the public. The Hideaway is located in the student center downstairs by the snack bar.

THE PROFESSAVR

Teal, Michel most qualified

Tuesday's elections for Student House of Representatives offices will be an unusual and welcome race because there is a real contest among qualified candidates for the positions of president, vice-president, and secretary.

However, we believe certain of the candidates will create not merely a competent student house but a creative, forceful government.

PRESIDENT: GARY TEAL is the best candidate for president of the House of Student Representatives. During his two semesters on the house, Teal has shown ability to take responsible action to solve issues.

As chairman of the Student Affairs committee this semester, this trait is illustrated most clearly in his creation of the Food Service Control Commission and his plans for a valid student opinion survey.

The president's main responsibility is to see that house recommendations are not ignored by the rest of the university. Teal understands this aspect of the presidency. His administration would be an effective as well as responsible one.

VICE-PRESIDENT: MATT MICHEL is the most qualified for the office of vice-president of the House. Michel has shown himself to work well with others—from administrators to faculty to students.

This is the primary duty of the vice-president. He must consistently deal with people—making committee appointments in the house and planning and instigating the University Retreat.

The vice-president needs complete familiarity with the resources available to him. Michel, with three semesters on the house, has the experience and administrative ability to best fill that role.

SECRETARY: MELANIE LONG is the most competent candidate for secretary of the House. She has former experience as an office secretary and has illustrated her organizational skills in work with other organizations.

"Long is a transfer student from Trinity University and she holds student government experience from another college. We believe this experience would be a valuable asset to the house executive committee.

Bring back the barbecue

Dear Editor:
 I am writing you in regard to a much-heard quote at the Alumni Barbecue held Saturday in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.
 The quote: "What in the --- is going on here? I've been walking around this place for two hours and I can't find a --- thing to eat."
 "I've loved those barbecues they used to have on the coliseum floor, where big picnic tables were set up and divided into graduating classes.

"But ---, here it is ten minutes before game time and I haven't eaten yet. What's worse, I've been trying to get out of this place for 15 minutes and I can't find an exit!"

For the sake of the alums who simply want to "chow down" and spend the rest of the time greeting long-time friends, I ask you to consider returning to the time-honored "barbecue on the basketball court."

Give them the Shah

Dear Editor:
 We should give them the Shah. It has become obvious at this stage that America does not have the national will to turn to a realistic but comfortable energy program, and after the public outcry at 78 degree thermostat settings, the rest of the world knows this.

Like a junkie for the needle, America has started down a long road of groveling humiliation in order to suck up more than our share or need of the world's oil. This won't be the last American flag that we allow to be spat upon or whatever in the name of oil diplomacy, so why squirm? Give them the Shah.

Student House needs concerned, responsible officers

Matt Michel

The office of vice-president of the Student House of Representatives is a job of considerable responsibility which requires not only dedication and hard work, but a familiarity with the office and a knowledge of the duties and responsibilities required.

Currently I am serving on the house for my third semester, as chairman of the Academic Affairs committee. During the 1978-1979 school year I was a member of the Extramural Funding committee and of the Academic Affairs committee. This year I am serving on the House Study committee and the Trustee-Student Relations committee. As the chairman of the Academic Affairs committee, I am responsible for all matters that pass through the house dealing with academics. I am also a member of the administrative cabinet and am serving on my second university committee.

The filling of student positions on the university committees is one of the major responsibilities of the vice-president. By serving on two university committees and occasionally working with the vice-president to keep these committees filled, I am aware of how to meet the demands and overcome the difficulties of this job.

The vice-president also serves as chairman of the administrative cabinet. As the only candidate for vice-president on the administrative cabinet, I am the only candidate who knows the requirements of running the cabinet—how to direct and preside over it.

The university retreat, a large gathering every fall of faculty, students, administrators and trustees, is organized and managed wholly by the vice-president. By being the only candidate to attend the university retreat and serve as a group leader, I have gained a knowledge and experience which no other candidate has.

I am the only candidate that is a chairman of a house standing committee. As a committee chairman I work on a continuous basis with the executive officers on many of the issues facing the house.

While there are many important issues which face the house, the upcoming election of the house officers has to be regarded as one of the most important actions concerning the welfare of the house that will occur this fall.

In deciding which candidate to elect, the issues before the house and the various stands that can be taken on these issues are not near as consequential as are the qualifications and experience of the candidate.

The winners of the election will find themselves faced with the formidable task of running the house, perhaps the most important student organization at TCU. The voter should look at the qualifications of the candidates and handle the extensive and demanding positions they will occupy.

I feel that I am very well qualified and can take over the job of vice-president, performing its duties successfully and efficiently. Through my membership on the administrative cabinet and by being a house committee chairman, I have gained knowledge and experience enough to make me the best candidate for the office of vice-president.

Jim Sherman

When one looks at the problems that affect our student body and the lack of substantial progress toward solving these problems, I contend that student representation is indigent in its present character.

One problem that has been brought to my attention by many students is the postal service. They resent having to pay $16 to rent a post office box for the privilege of hiking up to Sadler Hall each day to collect their mail. They ask why is 15 cents postage sufficient to have mail delivered to their doorstep when they're at home, and not here? Students complain that if they don't rent a box, their mail is returned to its source.

Wouldn't it be efficient, not to mention convenient, if TCU's postal service were operated similar to the way it is at many state schools. That is, after the mail arrives at the campus post office, it is transported to each residence hall and inserted into individual boxes there.

Another situation that I have been overwhelmed with complaints about is the parking problem. It seems that a multitude of students, even though they come armed with parking permits, are unable to find adequate parking. Unfortunately, I don't have a ready-made solution, and I am not sure that any one person can solve the problem. However, I have faith that if the student congress as a whole recognized the existence of the problem and addressed themselves to a comprehensive and feasible solution, that the problem could be fairly and justly rectified.

Editor's note: The TCU Student House of Representatives will hold elections for all officers next Tuesday, Nov. 13. In an effort to promote student awareness and involvement, the Skiff has invited all candidates to submit a copy of their platforms for publication. Today the four vice-presidential candidates share their plans for student government.

So why hasn't the student congress been able to respond to these problems and others with workable solutions in the past? Student congress complains that the administration does not have to be receptive to student congress wishes due to apathetic nature of the student body. Student congress points to a low voter turn-out in campus elections as evidence to support its claim of student apathy.

I can't argue with the fact that the administration may not feel compelled to do handspings for the student congress, but I might debate the reasons why. In its present form and composition, student congress has done little to inspire the confidence or respect of either the administration or the student population. As a result, neither the administration nor the student body take student congress seriously.

It is my belief that the student congress can be and should be an integral part of the college community, an organization that the students can look to in time of ordeal, and have reasonable confidence with solutions, not excuses.

I want very much to have an hand in the revitalization of student government. I want to be elected to the vice-presidency.

Chuck Smith

The Student House of Representatives is the official voice of the students at TCU. The representatives and student university committee members have an obligation to present student opinions and feelings, and they must be held accountable to both the students and the elected student leaders. It is most important that the house accept and execute its responsibility to speak for the whole student community.

My first goal as vice president will be to unite the student population into an influential voice, mutually concerned with meeting student needs and improving the university. We have to get over the attitude that we are powerless. This must start by effectively utilizing the resources we already have.

We have to insure that the house representatives, students on university committees, and other students in decision-making positions know the issues, know the student view on the issues, present those views, inform the students about the results and plan for alternative action if necessary. Strong student leadership is needed to achieve this goal.

The university retreat, where students can voice their concerns, needs to be more widely publicized, more accessible to all students, and at a more convenient time. This will increase student participation because more people will know about it, be able to get to it, and have time to participate. Students do not spend much time in the first two weeks of school thinking about university issues.

We need a direct student voice to the Board of Trustees. We are an important part of this university and we cannot let ourselves be ignored or taken lightly. Our pride in TCU will grow when we become part of the decision-making processes that will shape the future of our school.

Many policies concerning residential living need to be reconsidered. For example, visitation policies should meet the needs of students. Also, lifting the requirement for sophomores to live on campus will help solve the problem of overcrowding in the dorms.

Since there has been significant dissatisfaction with the food service, students should have the option of whether or not to buy a food service plan. The university calendar needs to be changed so that students will have a longer semester break and also have a mid-semester vacation. Also, if finals started on a Thursday, there would be a weekend break after the first two days.

The campus must become the center of all student activity. Campus life is an important part of TCU and the academic, spiritual and social needs must be met. There needs to be a coffeehouse area that will provide entertainment, refreshments and a place for students to relax and interact with one another.

I have been on programming council for two years as a member of the Spring Events committee. I was in charge of the Spring Olympics. I am president of the social work club. I have sponsored a bill to start the yearbook again and I have gotten the Administration's support and their commitment to have a yearbook if the students want it.

Molly Tuttle

Do you know that TCU had a university retreat where students spent the day making suggestions to Chancellor Tucker? Do you realize we have committees made up of faculty and students making major decisions for the university, such as parking, scholarships, and housing? As vice-president, my goal is to get more students involved so that our student government represents all of TCU.

Visiting different organizations has brought to my attention a communication problem at TCU. I've found that most students don't know what is happening in the Student House of Representatives, or how to make their voices heard. I feel the answer to this communication gap is to revisit organizations after the election is over. You, the individual students, are the best source of new ideas. As vice-president I will see that your ideas get a fair hearing.

The vice-president should be someone who can speak for the variety of students at TCU. Having served on the house one year, I know how decisions are made. Through work on the committees, I have gained leadership experience in planning and carrying out campus-wide activities such as the petition for T.E.G. scholarships and the Christmas activities. On the Student Foundation I have worked with alumni and prospective students.

I have also been in Alpha Lambda Delta, Show Girls, Operation Welcome, Spirit Wranglers, Concert committee, Fashion Council, Phi Upsilon Omicron, and Student Dietetics Association. You can depend on me to devote the time required of a conscientious vice-president. I feel it is important to support the president in his goals and to help achieve them.

These experiences at TCU have made me aware of the diversified talents the student body has. My goal is to organize these talents so that everyone can take a part in the student government. I want to represent student opinions. The first step is to vote for Molly Tuttle, November 13th.

Student counseling available

Center eases anxiety, stress

BY DANNY BIGGS
Staff Writer

Everyone experiences stress. There are few who can live without feeling the destructive emotions of anxiety, depression, fear and frustration. Student are no exception. But people can and do learn to cope with their problems and the TCU Counseling Center can help students learn to function well even under stress.

Counselors at the center offer problem-solving aid and the center's staff of psychologists and a consulting psychiatrist can help in urgent or more serious stress situations.

The major services of the center are counseling, testing, consulting, training and self-help aids. Individual counseling is designed to help the student gain new perspectives, develop more effective coping strategies and build a self-help approach to future problems.

Group programs include assertiveness training, anxiety management, learning skills, interpersonal communication skills, stress management strategies and human sexuality. Couple counseling also is available for couples or groups of couples.

The testing center can provide data about abilities, aptitudes, interests, achievements and personality for use in decision making on a major, vocational plan or second career choice, as well as administer national aptitude and graduate school entrance tests. The center's consulting staff works with individuals and organizations to help them gain more effective skills in handling stress situations and to develop self-help programs. Counseling staff members also work with other university groups to provide comprehensive counseling for decision making.

Among the center's self-help aids are pamphlets, audio tapes and other printed materials.

All services at the Counseling Center are by appointment and free to students, faculty and staff.

The center, located in the west wing of Foster Hall, is open during business hours Monday through Friday.

U.S.-PLO negotiations underway

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. mediator Ramsey Clark is holding talks in Turkey with an official of the Palestine Liberation Organization in an effort to negotiate the release of some 60 American hostages in Iran, it was learned yesterday.

A U.S. official, who insisted that he not be identified, said Clark met with the PLO representative Wednesday in Istanbul and was meeting with him there again today.

The PLO has offered to intercede with Iranian authorities to try to gain the release of the hostages held since Sunday in the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

But as a pre-condition, the PLO is demanding that the United States asked directly for its help. The United States' policy prohibits direct negotiations with the group until it recognizes Israel's right to exist in peace in the Middle East.

"If they (the PLO) are moving to help release the Americans, it would be a highly responsible action in a situation where they may have some influence, and we welcome such assistance," the State Department said this morning.

The question now, being taken up by Clark with the unidentified PLO official is whether that statement satisfies the PLO pre-condition.

TCU (2-6-0) vs Texas Tech (3-4-1)

Kickoff: 2 p.m. Saturday, November 10 at Jones Stadium (Lubbock, Texas)
Attendance: Officials expect around 42,000 for Tech's homecoming game. Some seats should be available.
Last Week: The Frogs fell to nationally-ranked Houston 21-10, while Tech nearly upset Texas, finally losing to the Longhorns 14-6.
Last Year: Tech scored two TD's within 16 seconds in the fourth quarter to hold off the Frogs, 27-17.
Series: TCU leads the all-time series 18-17, but Tech has won the last seven games in a row. The Raiders hold a 11-5 series lead in Lubbock.
Tech Injuries: Starting quarterback Ron Reeves suffered a shoulder separation last week and is out for the season.
Radio: The Mutual Southwest Conference Network will carry the game as usual. The game can be heard in Fort Worth on KXOL (1360 AM).

Lubbock is next stop for Frogs

By MATT KEITH
Skiff Sports Writer

For the fourth consecutive week, the Frogs will be playing a homecoming game as they travel to Lubbock Saturday to challenge Texas Tech.

SPORTS

TCU is 1-2 in the alumni matchups after ruining Tulsa's weekend with a 24-17 victory, then losing to Baylor in the Bear's homecoming and Houston in Fort Worth last weekend.

There were some bright spots in the Houston game, though.

TCU was the first Southwest Conference team to hold the Cougars scoreless in the first quarter. The Frogs were also the first team to score on Houston in the fourth quarter.

The Frogs held Houston to 238 yards rushing, well below the Cougars 285.4-yard average. TCU backs meanwhile gained 193 yards last week, 29 yards more than their average.

If TCU wins Saturday, it will be the first time the Frogs have won two conference games in a season since 1972, when they beat both Texas A&M and Texas Tech. It will be the best overall record for the Frogs since 1973 when they logged a 3-8 total.

A TCU victory will also make the first time since 1972 that the Frogs have beaten the Red Raiders. Ironically, that 31-7 TCU win spoiled the 1972 Tech homecoming. If TCU loses, the rivalry between the schools will hit a 18-18 stalemate. The Frogs lead the series now, 18-17.

Looking ahead to the game, the Frogs have several factors in their favor.

First, TCU injuries continue to be light. Wide receiver Bobby Stewart is back to full speed this week after being slowed by a thigh bruise from the Tulsa game. Quarterback Steve Stamp is also back to normal after being carried out of the Houston game with a mild concussion.

Sitting out this week will be Fred Williams, who remains sidelined with a knee injury. Tight end Stan Talley is questionable with a strained knee suffered in the Houston game.

The Red Raider injury report is much more severe. Tech has lost six players from its potential starting line-up. The most recent loss was quarterback Ron Reeves, who will be out for the rest of the season after suffering a separated shoulder in the Tech-Texas game.

Texas Tech fullback James Hadnot remains shut out for the season. Hadnot has rushed for 1,039 yards, but has not yet scored a touchdown.

TCU is closing in on a record of its own. The first punt for senior Cameron Young will break the NCAA record for most career punts. Young tied the record of 298 last week. With his second punt, Young will be the first punter in the history of the NCAA (Division I, II or III) to punt 300 times in a career. If he punts for more than 129 yards Saturday, Young will also set an NCAA record for most punting yardage. He currently has 12,064 career yards.

The Bottom Ten

The Bottom Ten jinx almost brought down Florida. The No. 1 rated Gators actually outgained Auburn by 134 yards, but fortunately threw some timely interceptions to rack up a 13-19 loss.

So unlike five predecessors this season, the unflappable Gators remained clamped to the top position. The game was broadcast into Cuba, incidentally, in an effort to demoralize Russian soldiers stationed there.

The week also saw a reunion of the Pentagon teams (9-15-1) and the debut at No. 20 of Cal (4-5). The Bears were thoughtful enough to fall, 24-28, to Washington, setting up a possible Rose Bowl decision between the Huskies and USC. Ticket scalpers should have a field day for that one.

There was trouble in Spider-land, where Richmond (0-9) lost to Villanova as well as to its own faculty, which voted by a 2-1 margin to recommend that the school drop football. Richmond is too inconsequential to be ranked in The Bottom Ten.

School, Record	Last Week	Next Loss
1) Florida (0-6-1)	13-19, Auburn	Georgia
2) Penn (0-7)	10-38, Princeton	Harvard
3) Columbia (1-6)	0-17, Dartmouth	Cornell
4) Colorado (1-8)	10-24, Iowa State	Oklahoma State
5) Oregon State (1-8)	42-45, Washington State	Sick Bay
6) Harvard (1-6)	14-23, Brown	Penn
7) Rice (1-8)	7-34, Arkansas	See No. 5
8) Northwestern (1-8)	7-42, Michigan State	Wisconsin
9) Duke (2-5-1)	14-24, Georgia Tech	Wake Forest
10) Tennessee (4-3)	7-13, Rutgers *	Notre Dame
11) The Fighting Illness (1-7-1); 12) The Pentagon (Army, Navy, Air Force) (9-15-1); 13) Boston College (2-6); 14) Wisconsin (2-7); 15) UTEP (2-7); 16) UCLA (3-5); 17) Tie between Ole Miss (2-6) and Ole Miss State (3-5); 19) Kansas State (3-5); 19.5) New Mexico (4-6); 20) Cal (4-5).

* Yes, Rutgers.

Crummy Game of the Week: Harvard vs. Penn.

Rout of the Week: Oklahoma State vs. Colorado.

Social Note: The "roast" of Arizona State athletic director Fred Miller, set for Nov. 16 at a Phoenix hotel, has been cancelled. One of the "roasters" was scheduled to have been ex-coach Frank Kush.

Soccer team closes against Bears

By ROBERT HOWINGTON
Skiff Sports Writer

The TCU soccer team closes out the 1979 season Saturday when it plays Baylor in Waco.

The Frogs, hopeful of a SWC championship this year, fell short of their goal after suffering losses to third-ranked SMU, this year's SWC champ, and Houston.

Tuesday TCU whitewashed cross-town neighbor Texas Wesleyan 2-0 behind the goaltending of junior Greg Stewart. The victory raised the Frogs' overall season mark to an even 8-8-2.

In conference play, the Frogs sport a 4-2 ledger, after losing to Houston 4-2 last Friday. TCU is in third place, behind SMU and the Cougars.

Despite having the best material of any soccer team in the Frog's history, there was still one missing ingredient—experience. "We haven't played together long enough," commented freshman forward Steve Cohen. "We couldn't get it together."

"We're losing four seniors this year, but I don't think that will hurt us," Cohen said. "We could have had a better season, but we didn't get the right combination."

TCU coach Frank Lukacs feels the teams difficult non-conference schedule is a major factor in the Frogs' .500 record. "We play the toughest schedule in Texas," he said. "That's the way I make the schedule."

But Lukacs feels his outfit is young enough to bounce back.
