NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Cowboys contesting in the Madison Square Garden rodeo alleged today that Patrolman John Quigley killed an innocent and crippled man when he shot Owen Crosby of Carlsbad, N. M., during an argument over a 15-cent taxi fare.

Bill Wright, San Angelo, Texas, and Everett Colburn, Blackfoot, Idaho, witnesses, said Crosby was a bystander.

Joe Rock and Bob Walden, both of Fort Worth, are the cowboys alleged to have refused to pay the bill. Rock, 20, was arraigned on a charge of felonious assault and held under $2,000 bail.

Crosby was in a lunchroom with Wright and Colburn early today, the latter said, when they heard the Texans arguing with the taxi driver. The driver called Patrolman Quigley.

Walden and the policeman exchanged blows. Colburn charged that in the confusion a plainclothes man began beating Crosby.

"The policeman in uniform had drawn his pistol and had it leveled," Colburn said. "Some citizen who was not a cowboy stepped behind the officer and pinioned his arms, saying, 'Don't shoot.'" Crosby staggered into the path of the gun, he said, as a shot was fired. Colburn and Wright denied Crosby had been drinking, terming him a "voluntary abstainer." He was partially paralyzed in a fall at a Sheridan, Wyo., rodeo.

bright tie, and white shirt. His black socks were rolled down to within an inch of his shoe tops.

Defense Attorneys Michael Ahern and Albert Fink said their case was finished so far as Judge Wilkerson's court was concerned. They will hear his ruling on the motion for an arrest of judgment tomorrow, and, if it is denied and Capone is sentenced, will request a stay of sentence and later appeal to the higher courts.

Mexico's most prominent newlyweds, en route to Europe for their honeymoon, paid a five-minute visit to Fort Worth yesterday afternoon.

They are Dr. Joseph Jordan Eller of New York and his bride, who until Tuesday was Senorita Artemisa Elias Calles, youngest daughter of former President Plutarco Elias Calles of Mexico. They were married at the home of the bride's father in Mexico City Tuesday, left Wednesday by airplane for Brownsville, and came in a special American Airways plane to Fort Worth from the border city yesterday.

At the municipal airport here, they climbed out of the plane long enough to stretch a bit, pose for photographs, and decline charmingly to make any comment about the political situation in Mexico. Senora Eller, 17, whose wavy black hair was blown from beneath a tiny beret, wore a chic reddish brown suit which matched the beret. A heavy diamond bracelet hung about her wrist. Dark-eyed, unusually attractive, she leaned constantly on the arm of her young husband.

Dr. Eller, almost as youthful looking as his bride, is professor of skin diseases at Columbia University. His romance with the youngest of the former Mexican president's five daughters, began when he was in Mexico for a medical convention. He is a native of New York. The couple will make their home in New York when they return from a several months tour of Europe. Their visit to Europe will lead them only where they have friends, they said.

The daughter of Calles smiled and shook her head at mention of the uneasy situation in Mexico which caused resignation of President Ortis Rubio's cabinet and the calling in of her (TURN TO PAGE 2, COLUMN 6) of the farmers seed loan office. He said he believed few farmers who have federal loans would dispose of their cotton under the new plan.

The South is harvesting the second largest cotton crop in history. Besides the cotton which may be stored as a result of the department's plan, the Farm Board and Southern bankers recently agreed to finance the holding of 7,000,000 bales.

Cotton of middling 7/8ths grade and staple will be accepted at 8 cents a pound. In areas where much of the crop normally is shorter than 1/2-inch the basis will be 7 1/2 cents on middling 13-16ths inch. Premiums, however, will be given on longer staple or better grades.

Borrowers who store their cotton will be required to deliver warehouse receipts on sufficient cotton to provide collateral for their loans. The department reserved the right, however, to withdraw the offer at any time or to establish a different basis because of changed conditions.

When the cotton is finally sold the borrower will be credited with the proceeds of the sale. In the event the proceeds are not sufficient to pay the full amount of the loan, the remainder will remain as an obligation of the borrower. If, however, there is a surplus above the loan and interest, it will be paid to the farmer or to other creditors.

Special to The Star-Telegram.

MIDLAND, Oct. 23.—"Will Rogers is getting soft. He didn't have anything for me to sleep in but a pair of silk pajamas," Patrick J. Hurley said Friday at the Midland Airport when he saw for the first time Rogers' account of the Secretary of War's visit at his home in Hollywood, in a copy of The Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Hurley said he loved Will, and wouldn't hurt his feelings by declining to sleep in the humorist's silk pajamas.

"I told him the country owes a lot to such Democrats as him, Thomas Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson, but owed more to Raskob than anybody else," Hurley said. The (TURN TO PAGE 2, COLUMN 8.)

War Secretary said Rogers told him when he left for Washington that he would send a wire to Amon G. Carter that Hurley would land at Dallas and tell Carter to go over there and entertain him at dinner. Hurley said rather than embarrass Carter that way he just wouldn't go to Dallas, but would fly to Tulsa instead. He exhibited to the Chamber of Commerce committee which greeted him the hat he was wearing, which, a gift from the Fort Worth publisher, he called his Amon Carter hat.

Hurley made his only Texas stop at Midland, having flown from Tucson Friday. His special trimotor plane was refueled and he and his party of five had luncheon at the airport. The War Secretary said he was surprised to find a fine dry landing field at Midland after flying over so much water in West Texas.

The plane took off at 3:35 o'clock for Fort Sil for a short stop before continuing to Tulsa.
