Dear Mr. Carter:

It's not easy to write a thank you letter to one who is as magnanimous as you are, and ingrateful to you for so many things, mostly, for your friendliness to Sidney. I can't express myself adequately to tell you how much your many kindnesses to him during those trying days in London meant to me. And secondly, allowing me to come to Mr. Wirth to talk to you, to know you, hearing you say fine thoughts of Sidney was indeed a privilege. Your taking time to tell of your trip, your acquaintances, showing us your many interesting letters and photographs, giving us so much of your valuable time, the liquor to be saved for Sidney, the lovely pin which I shall always treasure — all these things are just a part of all I appreciate. Yours every thing

Sidney said you are, and I'm proud to have been with you. Bertice, Amon, Jr., and Ruth have a wonderful blast.

Mail delivery has been very good. Today I had two letters from Sidney written the 10th & 11th, saying he's been living in a hotel for a few days, sleeping on a real bed with sheets! That's a happy occasion.
He speaks of talking with Gen. Oliver and Ward, so I gather that the two combat teams are back together again.

Thank you again for everything.
I wish you the best luck, and hope we'll always continue to hear good news from our boys.

Sincerely,

Jane Wiedermann
