

IN MEMORY OF WILL ROGERS.

A human friend just left us in the twinkling of an eye
And no other soul can fill the place of him who just passed by.
He filled a place in public that no other one could do,
A friend to all the nation and the foes he had were few.

The one who would be greatest, to him was just another,
Always lauding the one forgotten, as he would a closest brother.
His heart bled for the needy, as the deeds he did will show,
Whether county, state or nation, if some help he could bestow.

Our memories of Will Rogers shall serve us to the end,
For the many lessons taught us, how we, too, can be a friend.
The life he lived before us, so good and free from greed,
Was a sterling fine example that the most of us now need.

Our souls were knitted to his, for the kindly things he's done,
Tho in person we did not know him, it's his interest in everyone
That drew us closer to him and set our hearts aglow
And now that he has left us, may he peace forever know.

C. H. Dunlap,
Borger, Texas.
