

The attention of the faculty is called to a ruling made by the Cabinet last year to the effect that each teacher would make known to his pupils the final grades. Each teacher may select his own way in which to give out this information.

This information cannot be given out through the Registrar's office, since we do not have time for it.

The Registrar desires to call the attention of the teachers to the use of the white class cards sent up from his office. The rule is that the student is not to be admitted to a class until the teacher has this white class card.

Juniors and seniors have had the privilege of signing up for their spring courses since the first of December, and all other students since the first of January.

A few students have signed up for courses for which they are not ready. Letters have been written them and their cards have been held up in this office. This is another reason why the teachers should not admit students to the class until they have cards from the Registrar's office.
