Amon dear:

Your letter this morning was such a pleasure as we have been wondering where you were and what had happened to you. We expected to see you in California during the racing season and were terribly disappointed that you were unable to come.

Mary left last Saturday for New-York. She expects to sail on the 21st with Virginia Sinclair and Mrs. Peabody for the Coronation in London. We are all fine here. Jim is in school, Bill still enthused over his paper, and I have been just as busy as I could be.

I am so glad the Will Rogers Coliseum is proving such a big success. All this, of course, is due to your efforts, and what a wonderful, loyal friend you have been. Now if there is anything I can do, Amon, to help you in making the Will Rogers room attractive, let me know. I can't send everything, dear, of course, but if there are a few little things I am sure you know that I want to do everything in the world I can to help you out.

Let me hear from you. My love to you and your dear ones.
