Dear Sir,-

As a reader of your paper for the past 37 years, I am taking the liberty of writing you relative to a work of art our local saddle maker has produced. It is a leather carved portrait of the late Will Rogers practically life sized nicely mounted and bordered with carved leather. The leather is the best the market affords. I do not claim to be a connoisseur of art, but if this is not a master piece of any thing in the leather goods line I am badly mistaken.

Bill Chappel that boy that designed this original piece of art hand tools saddles belts and other items for his own shop and made this item in question at odd times just for his own self satisfaction I suppose. He has not offered it for sale, but it seems a shame to waste it in an obscure way when a lot of people could get an inspiration out of it if you had it. I would suggest that you write him and see it some time and I don't think you will regret the time it takes.

Thanking you in advance, and with my sincere good wishes, I remain,

R C Plants
