

*File
Bully Rab*

Compensation shall be as follows:

For producing shows, $50,000.00.

This sum is to be paid in installments, as mutually agreed upon, prior to the date of opening.

For services as director-general, supervising and managing all productions and operations from opening until closing date:

Five percent of the gross revenues from all sources (except loans, bond or other subscriptions provided for pre-opening, production or operating expense; and revenues derived from industrial productions or industrial static exhibits).

Fifty percent of such rental as may be derived from industrial productions and static exhibits in the coliseum, auditorium and Jumbo buildings, and the grounds of The Last Frontier; revenue derived from loud speaker ground announcements; (such as that of General Motors); and such other revenue that may be considered of an industrial character, in excess of that derived from such sources in the 1936 show, shall be impounded until such sum so impounded shall have reached $50,000.00, to be used as a guarantee, so that the five percent of gross revenue shall provide the sum of $50,000.00 as contemplated as a ~~producing~~ ^{management} fee. It is understood that should the revenue from so-called industrial sources and the five percent of gross revenue not total, combined, $50,000.00 no obligation to provide it from other sources exists.

It is also understood that when the 50 percent of revenue so impounded shall have reached $50,000.00 there will be no requirement for the impounding of any additional sum.

Payments under the five percent gross revenue clause shall be computed and paid weekly, the fee for services as director general to be considered as a weekly operating expense, and so paid.

The money impounded from industrial sources shall remain impounded until final determination of the amount due under the five percent clause.
