

June 7, 1943.

Mr. Oswald Ryan,
3239 Klinge Road, N. W.,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Ryan:

Enclosed you will find a couple of pictures made during your brief visit to Fort Worth, as well as a clipping from the Star-Telegram Morning issue of June 4th, which I thought you might like to have for your files.

Incidentally, I sent a set of these pictures to Red Mosier and explained that the picture of you alone with your eyes shut was not an indication of any entertainment in Fort Worth-- that it was the result of the flashlight bulb.

It was a real pleasure to have you in Fort Worth and we hope to see you again soon.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely,

AGC:KD

P.S: In the Star-Telegram story there was an error in stating that the C.A.B. recently granted the American Airlines a permit to establish service between Denver and Fort Worth-- this should have read "Braniff" instead of "American". As soon as I read it I called the error to the attention of the News Department, however it was too late to correct it and I trust there has been no harm done as it was purely unintentional on the part of the reporter handling the interview.