

JESTER INDORSES TRUMAN — Governor Jester, speaking, Monday pledged his support to President Truman because he's "a fighter like Texans like." Truman Leaves Campaign Plea Here With Farmer, Cattleman, Worker

President Truman traveled to Oklahoma Tuesday after leaving his presidential campaign cause in Fort Worth with the farmer, the cattleman and the working man. The smiling president, with the look of a small-town businessman freshly scrubbed for church, used less than 10 minutes of his 45-minute visit Monday to strike at the 80th Congress and urge a straight Democratic ticket vote in November. Thousands jammed the T&P terminal area to see and hear him speak from the flag-draped platform that seated almost 100 national and state Democratic leaders.

freedom from labor. Those Republicans are not interested in the common man," Truman continued. "They are for special interests. I'm for the common man. I ask you to vote for yourselves. To do that, the president stated, "you can't help but put in a straight Democratic ticket." Heads Reception Line. President Truman's train arrived exactly on schedule at 2:05 p. m. At 2:14 he led his party off the special train, and 2:50 a black convertible whisked him away to Dallas. The huge crowd gathered early to welcome the president. Police, unable to keep the mass from pushing into the terminal concourse, finally roped off a small passage from the track to the platform and let the crowd surge within inches of Truman as he walked from his train. Before he left his velvet-draped special coach, the president stood at the head of a reception line to greet the official welcoming committee. Next to him was Mrs. Truman and on her left was daughter Margaret. Across the line were Governor Jester and House Minority Leader Rayburn. Heading the welcoming group were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Buck

WANTED MAMA

'Escapers' Foiled by Babe's Howl

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two little boys, one with a broken arm and the other with a fractured jaw, climbed out of a hospital window on a bed early Tuesday—because they were homesick for their mothers. Robert Fogarty, 8, and William Stanton, 9, were back in the General Hospital's first floor children's ward a half hour later. They were much happier, however, because their mothers had spotted their bedsides. Police Capt. Harold K. McGuire found the party and they fled runaways hiding in a way, a block from the hospital. This was the strategy behind the break. At dawn the boys tied a sheet to a crib near a window and slid to the lawn. Their mission was to hitch the get-away route to a bed with an occupant who would be disturbed—a baby's howl. Nurses checking on the ward arrived in time to see the end of the second boy disappearing down the sheet.

THERE WAS NOTHING SECRET ABOUT THE SARGE'S DUTIES

A city policeman bested a U. S. Secret Service agent in a minor duel of protocol during President Truman's visit here Monday. Sgt. Tom Hollis was stationed at a tunnel entrance off the T&P Station concourse with orders to allow "no one" to pass a certain area. A man in civilian dress started by. Hollis stopped him. "But I'm Secret Service," complained the man, again trying to pass. "Then where are your credentials?" Hollis asked. "I don't need to show anything—I'm Secret Service," the man countered. Hollis remained adamant. Resignedly the man displayed an official Secret Service badge and only then was permitted to pass by the police sergeant.

Spy Probers Press Hunt For Atom 'Scientist X'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Congressional spy probers pressed their hunt Tuesday for a mysterious "Scientist X" after demanding immediate trials for four persons they accused of tampering with atomic secrets. The House un-American activities committee linked the unidentified scientist with Steve Nelson, who the committee said should be tried as an outright wartime spy. Nelson is a Communist Party organizer in Pennsylvania. The House group's preliminary report Monday night also declared that Dr. Clarence F. Hiskey, his former wife, Marcia Sand Hiskey, and Dr. John H. Chapin should be prosecuted on charges of conspiring to hand over atomic secrets to Soviet agents. Hiskey and Chapin were atomic bomb project scientists during the war. The penalty for conviction on either charge, spying or conspiracy to spy, is death or up to 30 years imprisonment. At his New York home, Chapin said: "I have not conspired to commit espionage. I have not yet read the Thomas committee's report and their action comes as a shock. So far as I know I have never done anything for which I need fear legal reprisal and the only effect that I can foresee on me personally is that of blasting my professional and personal reputation." While stressing that so far it has been able only to "scratch the surface," the committee declared that the evidence it has turned up has been known to government agents for more than five years. It said failure to prosecute is "indefensible." There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department. Attorney General Clark, who has denied previous committee charges that his staff has been lax in prosecuting spy cases, was en route to Washington from Texas, where he had been traveling on President Truman's campaign train.

France and Belgium Assail Reds

Schuman Appeals to U. N. to End Soviet Blockade of Berlin

PARIS, Sept. 28 (AP)—France joined Britain and the United States Tuesday in blaming Russia for the Berlin crisis, which appeared headed for a Security Council airing within 48 hours. French Foreign Minister Schuman spoke in the United Nations general assembly shortly before British sources disclosed Sir Alexander Cadogan, Security Council president, may set council debate in the Berlin question for Thursday. Schuman appealed to the U. N. to end the Soviet blockade, saying the three Western powers have "exhausted every possibility of direct agreement" with the Kremlin.

Belgium Joins Fight.

He said Britain, France and the United States had not found even "a minimum of good will" in their talks with "our Russian partners." Belgium, too, struck at the Soviet Union. Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak, former president of the general assembly, told the Russians: "We fear you because in every country represented here you maintain a fifth column, the like of which even Hitler did not know."

Spaak was cheered for nearly five minutes by the non-Communist delegates in one of the greatest demonstrations in U. N. history.

British sources, meanwhile, said the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France had agreed on the final draft of their complaint, in which they charge Russia with threatening world peace by the Berlin blockade.

Urgent Action Sought.

The Western powers will ask the council for urgent consideration of their complaint. This means discussions can be begun at once, without waiting the three days required for issues not labeled as urgent. The Western power note will be published Wednesday, together with 30 pages of annexes and documentary supplements, a British spokesman said.

A Russian source at U. N. headquarters, meanwhile, hinted a Soviet surprise when the Big Four dispute is argued in the security council. This usually reliable informant said the Russians will be present in the council chamber when Berlin is discussed and "you will see what happens then."

Clear Fork Water Study Will Be Made

Preparations for an analysis of water in the Clear Fork of the Trinity River for possible use by the city as a reserve supply within the next few years were being completed here Tuesday. In Fort Worth to complete arrangements was Budge Ireland, representative of the U. S. Geological Survey, who will set up a single test station near the double dams in Trinity Park. The location is near the USGS flow measurement station. The water samples, to be taken every day for a year, will be sent to Austin to the Texas Water Board of Engineers for analysis. Report on the analysis will be made to City Council next March when Black and Veatch and Freese and Nichols complete a full report on water needs for the city for the next 25 years. The two engineering firms early in October will furnish the city with a preliminary report on how to correct weak points in the water system by next summer so that a shortage of filtered water can be averted.

Black Holds Hearing.

But U. S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, who Tuesday was hearing a petition by Johnson to stay Judge Davidson's temporary injunction, which is preventing Johnson's name from appearing on the November ballot, indicated clearly he thinks it is an election contest.

Justice Black Declared: "It Appears that the real issue here is whether federal courts have jurisdiction to hear election contests when the states have other methods."

Black said he failed to see "that this case is not an election contest." "I fail to see," Black enlarged upon the point, "that this case (the one before Davidson) is not a case in a federal court to see if one man or another received the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senate in Texas." Black said he doubted that the Supreme Court has ever settled "that question." Alvin Wirtz of Austin, attorney for Johnson, maintained "the case is nothing but an election contest."

Lewis Case Cited.

Arnold noted to reporters that John L. Lewis went directly to the Supreme Court—bypassing the Circuit Court of Appeals—in the famous case last year when Lewis was found guilty of contempt for refusing to comply to a no-strike order of a federal district judge. Attorneys for Stevenson and Johnson were continuing their arguments before Black Tuesday afternoon on Johnson's petition for a stay, but Johnson's attorneys said they would appeal the whole thing to the Supreme Court regardless of the outcome of the hearing on the petition for the stay. During the hearing Tuesday Black said: "The injunction apparently means that neither candidate can have his right decided before the November election." Black also said that both attorneys for Stevenson and Johnson should agree with him that neither

FIANCEE WARNED AGAINST GIVING AID

Death Strikes to End Wedding Plans As Couple Inspect Their Future Home

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 (INS)—Wedding plans of a young Chicago couple were canceled by death Tuesday after a former Air Force gunner was killed by electric wiring in the apartment that was to serve as home for himself and his bride. The dead veteran was Sebastian Dimatteo, 24. He died with a warning to his fiancée not to touch him and risk death herself. Death came to Dimatteo as he was putting the finishing touches on the five-room apartment that he and his bride intended to occupy after their wedding Sunday.

He was fatally shocked when he brushed against an exposed wire. Dimatteo and his fiancée, Natalia Carnaggio, 21, had gone to their "bridal suite" as workmen were finishing up a remodeling job. Miss Carnaggio said they were picking up plaster when Dimatteo noticed a wire hanging from the ceiling. He walked over to move it, and suddenly it brushed against his chest. He cried out and Miss Carnaggio rushed to help him. Seeing her dash to his side, Dimatteo shouted: "Please, God, don't touch me."

Miss Carnaggio's scream brought two friends, who were assisting the engaged couple, into the room. The friends were Joseph Catalana and his sister, Mrs. Anna Casaterie. When Catalana moved toward Dimatteo, the ex-gunner said: "Don't touch me or you'll die, too." Catalana found a rubber raincoat, and using it for insulation, removed the wire from contact with Dimatteo. By this time, the wire had been wrapped around Dimatteo's body by his attempts to free himself.

DIXIECRATS PASSED UP Biggest Truman Crowds In 'Borderline' Territory

BY SAM KINCH.
Star-Telegram Staff Writer.
ABOARD TRUMAN'S TRAIN, Sept. 28.—President Truman's Texas campaign trip, which appeared to have been routed away from Dixiecrat territory, brought him his greatest crowds in what might be called borderline territory. Observers estimated the president saw nearly a third of a million persons on his automobile ride from Fort Worth's T&P passenger terminal to the Dallas baseball stadium and inside it. They gave him great crowds in the two cities and almost solidly along the highway between them. So many lined Grand Prairie's main street that the president stopped to thank them for the turnout. No one would confirm the relationship between routing and party loyalty strength in the state, but it was obvious that the president spent the most time in his San Antonio stronghold, gave close-margin Dallas next most and closer-margin Fort Worth third place. Dixiecrat stronghold Houston was omitted entirely, although Harris County holds the most votes in the state. Warned to Johnson. The party loyalty faction which won control at the party convention in Fort Worth two weeks ago appeared to have gained one other victory. The president started out Monday by praising Congressman Lyndon Johnson, whose nomination for United States senator is being contested in court by former Governor Stevenson. Such action would have to come from the national committee, and all talk of it was turned aside in deference to the president's visit. Rumors floated along the train that both men were secure. Both did preside at platform appearances Monday. Skelton presented the president at Temple, and Morrow was in charge at his birthplace, Hillsboro. The Dallas rally, where approximately 20,000 filled the ball park to hear the president, showed evidence of permanent peace between liberal Harry Seay, former state executive committee chairman, who presided, and Governor Jester. Sang Party Song. Seay introduced Jester as "the man who led the rout of Dixiecrats at Fort Worth and put the party in the hands of honest-to-God Democrats." Jester himself sang the party song in Fort Worth, where he took occasion to tell newspapermen traveling with the president that Texas will be in the Democratic column in November. "Now is the time," he told the Fort Worth audience, "to tell the nation. There has been some confusion abroad—unjustifiable—as to what Texas is going to do. I'm an undiluted, unhyphenated, unfractionated Democrat and that's the kind of party I want." But the president warned progressively to the subject at Austin and Temple, and at Waco he flatly urged Texans to elect Johnson in November "and all other good Democrats."

Truman Opens New Attack In Oklahoma

GOP Senator Moore Is Target of Speech Across Red River

ABOARD TRUMAN'S TRAIN, Sept. 28 (AP).—President Truman opened his fight for Oklahoma's 10 electoral votes Tuesday with an attack at Marietta on U. S. Senator Ed Moore of Oklahoma, Republican. The president referred to Moore, 76-year-old wealthy oil man, as "Old Man Moore" who "never was any good anyway." He endorsed former Gov. Robert S. Kerr, democratic candidate for Moore's senate seat against Rep. Ross Rizley of Oklahoma, Republican. Moore is not seeking re-election but is actively supporting Rizley. Kerr, Democratic Gov. Roy J. Turner, Democratic Senator Elmer Thomas and other party leaders stood on the platform with him. Truman started out of Texas Tuesday calling for a "landslide" vote in November in the interests of the people. Speaks at Sherman. He said the people have "only one representative in Washington who is all the time for the people—that's a Democratic president."

John L. Waggoner, 78, Oil Man and Rancher, Is Dead

DECATUR, Sept. 28 (SpI).—John L. Waggoner, 78, nephew of the late Dan Waggoner, died on one of his ranches three miles east of here Monday night. Still active in his Wichita and Wise County oil and ranching interests, Waggoner had spent Monday in Fort Worth buying cattle. He returned to the Decatur property late and complained of feeling ill shortly afterward. He died soon after the arrival of a physician. He and Mrs. Waggoner, who survives, had maintained a home in Wichita Falls for more than 60 years. His father was John Waggoner, also an extensive holder of land, cattle and oil interests.

As he left the train, only nine minutes after its stop, Truman waved a five-gallon western style hat. Briskly he walked down the ramp to the concourse. Two Secret Service men were in the lead. At the president's shoulder were Attorney General Clark, Congressman Lyndon Johnson, Jester, Buck and Carter. A knot of children hiding in a faded doorway to another track ramp was the first of the crowd to yell. He waved. Then he walked down a line of 27 motorcycle patrolmen, shaking hands with each. From there it was a loud cheer from the crowd proper that began in the main concourse. Again the president waved his hat, his broad smile flashing. He paused at the Carswell Air Force Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and moved on to the platform with the "Eyes of Texas." His double-breasted blue suit, complete with white handkerchief in the lapel pocket, remained unrumpled. Mrs. Truman and Margaret followed. Remembered for her Fort Worth visit last year, the daughter drew cries of "Hello, Margaret." She wore a Navy blue dressmaker suit. Her mother was dressed in a blue crepe dress with black accessories. Both wore white orchid corsages. Buck Introduces Visitors. Less than 10 yards separated the platform from the crowd that pressed into terminal's east parking area, jammed the large building's windows and overflowed onto the track coverings. Buck, chairman for the reception, introduced the distinguished visitors. They included Rayburn, Clark, National Committeeman Wright Morrow, National Committeewoman Mrs. H. H. Weiner, Johnson, Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, Congressman Patman of Texas, Kansas, Congressman Lyle of Corpus Christi and Mrs. India Edwards, chief of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee. Johnson, still battling in the courts for the U. S. Senate nomination, drew a burst of applause that equaled any received by the president. Buck then introduced Carter, who said it was his privilege to present "other members" of the president's family. Mrs. Truman and Margaret. "First, his wife, who so graciously and charmingly presides over the affairs of the White House as First Lady of the Land—Mrs. Harry S. Truman," Carter stated. Next he introduced Margaret, "a young lady not new to this community," Carter referred to her trip last fall when she sang in concert and remained over a day to sing "Home on the Range" at the Will Rogers equestrian statue dedication. "Through that she won our love and admiration, and we are delighted to have her back again," Carter concluded. In turn, Carter introduced Mayor Deen, who presented Jester as "the greatest governor Texas has ever had." Jester, who formally introduced President Truman to the crowd, said he had found Truman to be a fighter that Texans admire and predicted that Texas will vote Democratic in the coming election. "Unhyphenated Democrat." "I think it pretty clear what kind of a Democrat your governor is," Jester stated. "It's clear beyond a doubt, I'm a Democrat—a plain undiluted, unhyphenated Democrat. And I'll vote a straight Democratic ticket from president to constable."

MORE ABOUT JOHNSON

Continued From Page 1. candidate can campaign for the Senate until this case is disposed of. Moody pointed out that it is not necessary for men to campaign for the Senate in Texas after receiving the Democratic nomination. "I could not take judicial knowledge of that," Justice Black, himself a former senator, replied. Most of the earlier part of Tuesday's hearing before Black was taken by a legal argument over whether Black has jurisdiction to act singularly to stay an injunction of a federal district court. Davidson's determination in the matter included the appointment of special masters who now are endeavoring to determine what actually did occur in Jim Wells, Zapata and Duval Counties. The personal endorsement of Johnson by the president was made several times Monday as Truman campaigned across Texas, with Johnson as one of the guests aboard the special train. Truman's action drew from Stevenson, headquartered in the vote probe area, the comment: "It's not to be wondered at that a candidate of the Kansas City machine endorses a candidate of the Parr machine." The state committee, meeting under a big tree in the yard of Representative Rayburn's home at Bonham, where the members gathered to meet Truman, decided in the early hours of Tuesday to support Johnson in his court struggle with Stevenson. The body named former Governor Allred to represent it at the Tuesday hearing before Justice Black. Allred already was one of Johnson's counsel in the effort to nullify the district court injunction. John C. Calhoun of Corsicana, committee chairman, called a meeting of the committee for 9 a. m. Saturday at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas to take whatever action is necessary to get the certified nominee's name on the ballot. The petition for stay, if granted, would remove the restraint now preventing Texas Secretary of State Brown from placing Johnson's name on the ballot. Johnson's petition holds that the district court was without jurisdiction in the matter and that the stay is necessary in order to prevent violation of Johnson's rights and the right of the Democratic Party in Texas. Washington lawyers representing Johnson include Arnold and Hugh Cox, high officials of the Department of Justice during the Roosevelt administration, and Abe Fortas, undersecretary of interior during the same period. All three were closely identified with New Deal policies. W. R. Smith Jr., the district court master investigating Jim Wells County voting, has impounded the ballot boxes there. The other master, J. M. Burnett, also a San Antonio lawyer, was in San Diego, Duval County, Tuesday. As Smith took testimony Monday from Mrs. Juanita Hulsey, chief deputy county clerk in Jim Wells County, it was discovered that the padlock of Precinct 13 box—upon which Stevenson has principally based his allegations of fraud—was hanging open. Everett Looney, a Johnson attorney, made the discovery. The key was hanging by a string attached to the box. Mrs. Hulsey said she did not know whether it was that way when received. She told the examiner that she had not in any way tampered with it, and added it had been kept in a vault along with other boxes, and had been hidden behind some other supplies. County Clerk C. H. Holmgreen is vacationing in California. Smith said he would subpoena three other deputies in the clerk's office for the Tuesday hearing. W. W. Ainsworth, deputy U. S. marshal from Corpus Christi, reported to Smith that service could not be obtained on three subpoenas because the men were out of town. They were Clarence Martens, former chairman of the Jim Wells County executive committee; B. F. (Tom) Donald, former secretary of the same committee, and Luis Salas, election judge of Precinct 13. Donald's wife Tuesday testified that her husband telephoned her Monday night from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, and added she did not know when he was coming back. Martens, located on his ranch in Duval County, then testified that he received 13 of the 17 Jim Wells ballot boxes the night of the Aug. 28 election and included was the box from Precinct 13. He continued that he put the 13 boxes in the county jail, but he did not have a key to the jail and did not know how they were locked up.

There were rumors, too, that the loyalists had succeeded in their plan to have the national committee oust Wright Morrow of Houston and replace him with Byron Skelton of Temple. Seay, too, asked the president to look at the Dallas crowd and see if it weren't refutation of the charge that Texas Democracy is divided. He predicted the greatest Democratic majority in history. The president caught the swing, and at Bonham declared openly that Texas is going to keep Democratic government. Probably the unluckiest man in the state was Robert W. Calvert of Hillsboro, retiring chairman of the state executive committee. Calvert used all his party influence to get the train to stop at Hillsboro, and Monday, when the train stopped, Calvert was trying a lawsuit in Houston. 90-Year-Old King Bags 2 Elks on Hunt. STOCKHOLM, Sept. 28 (AP).—Keeping up a royal tradition, Sweden's 90-year-old King Gustaf V went hunting Monday at Hunneberg in western Sweden. VA Holds Up Three-Fifths of Flight Training Applications

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Veterans Administration crackdown on GI "fun" courses has held up three-fifths of the recent applications for flight training and one-third of those for photography. In all, the VA said, of 15,016 applications for courses on its "questionable list," 6,237 have been granted, 262 rejected and 8,517 delayed because not enough information was submitted. The agency ruled July 1 that a veteran who wants to take a course "known to be frequently pursued for vocational or recreational purposes" must first prove he plans to use it for his present or proposed occupation.

There have been sharp protests against the ban, particularly from flight school operators in Michigan and California. Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray Jr. said last week persons in those two states have falsely accused VA of Communist tendencies. Of the applications for flight training or related aviation courses, 3,044 were approved, 196 denied outright and 5,323 held up pending action. Only 12 applications for photography courses were refused, but final action was deferred on 850. The applications of 1,212 would be photographers were approved.
