Party Row Over Dewey Embroils Dec. 7 Probers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP).—Representative Keefe of Wisconsin demanded to know in the midst of a political flareup at the Pearl Harbor hearing Monday whether a Senate-House committee is "investigating Pearl Harbor or Governor Dewey?" Keefe's question was fired during arguments over committee employees and the future course of the investigation as the committee prepared to hear Vice Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson, former director of naval intelligence. The controversy arose after Senator Brewster of Maine told the committee that he is personally paying the salary of Percy L. Greaves, a former employee of the Republican national committee whose presence at the inquiry has evoked caustic remarks from Democratic members. Brewster read into the record a statement by Greaves saying that the latter never had intended to "insult or reflect in any way" on members of the committee.

The general was met in Weatherford Sunday by his former aide and orderly, war bond campaign leaders from Fort Worth and his host during his stay, Amos Carter. Lowell Lafferty, county war finance chairman; Ben E. Keith, chairman of the finance group's general committee; Lt. Col. Dooley of McKinney, former aide to the general in the Philippines, and in Japanese prisoner of war camp; and Master Sgt. Hubert Carroll of Paris, former orderly on Bataan and in prison camp, greeted him and escorted him to the city. There he was met by the city welcoming committee headed by Mayor Carnrike and Homer Covey, president of the chamber of commerce. The general also was met by the 43rd Cavalry Squadron which he once commanded, and after a brief review of the troops, sandwiched his car into the mile-long motorcade of armored vehicles for the ride to the downtown section. For Unified Command. At a press conference, the general repeated his views in favor of universal military training for youths who would thus create a "potential military reserve" and his advocacy of a unified military command for the United States. While here, he was notified he has been made an honorary member of the Sons of Confederate Veterans and given that organization's Distinguished Service Medal. Notification came from Maj. Edmund R. Wiles, retired, of Little Rock, member of the SCV general executive council and former officer under Wainwright at Fort Riley. The general came here from Midland in the car which was given him by citizens of Walla Walla, Wash., his home town. The car carries the only license plate of its kind—one designed by Governor Walgren of Washington and bearing the letters V-J, the date of the Japanese capitulation for numbers, and the general's initials. Parade at 2:30. Monday at 2:30 p. m., the general was to start the parade north on Main from Lancaster to Weatherford, west to Houston and south to Lancaster. At 6 p. m. at Hotel Texas, he will address purchasers of $1,000 Victory bonds and get the report on how much Fort Worth and Tarrant County have purchased.

Police Break GM Picket Line for Office Workers

FLINT, Mich., Dec. 17 (AP).—A squad of police, formed in a flying wedge, charged through a picket line at a strike-bound General Motors Corporation plant here Monday but no violence was reported. Thirty officers, led by Capt. Gus Hawkins of the Flint police, forced their way through the main gate at GM's AC Spark Plug division here after pickets had refused to permit them to escort office workers into the plant. Some 30 office workers, part of a group of 700 instructed to report for work Monday, followed the police into the administration building. Others filtered through the gate after the pickets, members of the CIO United Automobile Workers, made no attempt to mend their lines. After their line was broken, the pickets sent out a call for "reserves" and scheduled an immediate citywide strike strategy committee meeting. After General Motors directed its office workers in several Michigan cities to enter the struck plants Monday, the Flint CIO council called for reinforced picket lines and announced that such action would be resisted. Police promptly replied they were "going to enforce the law" and would escort any office workers desiring admittance to the plants. At Lansing, office workers at the Oldsmobile and Fisher Body divisions were reported entering the plants without interference.

The XB-42 was on a flight from Bolling Field Army Air Base.

The highly streamlined craft averaged 432 miles an hour in the five-hour, 17-minute flight from Long Beach Dec. 8.
