

The $15,000 Whiteman paid for "Walking Horse Farm" a year ago is the smallest part of his investment, for he has since spent about $40,000 on improvements, including such equipment as this cultivator, trucks and tractor

Just as enthusiastic a farmer as Paul is eight-year-old adopted Margo Whiteman, shown with him on tractor. Farming, in fact, has become a favorite avocation of radio stars such as Bess Johnson, Frank Black, Tommy Dorsey

Close-up of the Jazz King doesn't leave much doubt as to his yen for farming. At left is a game hen and her chick. Fighting cocks and hens came from Texas on same train as Whiteman band returning from recent trip

Aberdeen heifers, Suffolk ewes, Hampshire gilts and sundry animals fill "Walking Horse" pastures, but most prized is this Texas steer called Amon Carter for one-man Texas Chamber of Commerce Carter, who gave it to Paul
