Frederick Gooding, Ph.D., chair of TCU's Race & Reconciliation Initiative, and Marcellis Perkins, graduate assistant for the RRI, will lead a discussion about TCU's affiliation with Universities Studying Slavery, the global consortium of universities studying their institutions' relationship to slavery. They will provide an overview of some common trends among USS partners and share more details about how the RRI is collaborating with and learning from the consortium. Learn more about the growing global movement, launched in 2013 by the University of Virginia, to engage in truth-telling projects addressing enslavement and racism in institutional histories.
