24 SECOND street,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

Dear Sir:-

A number of prominent merchants of this city, associated with several practical newspaper men, the writer being among the number, will begin the publication here of a live, wide-awake afternoon newspaper about the first of the new year. They will take over the business of a well known literary publication. We have every reason to believe that the paper will be most favorably received in this section.

The writer met this week Mr. A.G. Carter, who was formerly connected with you and he states that it is probable that you might be able to place some advertising with us. We would be glad indeed to receive some business from you for our first issues, assuring you that the consideration will be most kindly remembered.

Very truly yours,
