

THE PEPTIMIST.

THE PEPTIMIST is a cross between an optimist and a pessimist.

The optimist will look at one side of a thing and declare it good, the pessimist will view the other side and pronounce it evil, but the PEPTIMIST takes a slant at both sides, drills a hole through it and admits it isn't half bad.

When the weather man predicts "fair and warmer," the PEPTIMIST slips on his B.V.D.'s, but carries a topcoat and umbrella.

The PEPTIMIST doesn't believe the garden seeds he plants will produce something equal to the picture on the package, but he does believe they will grow into something good to eat.

When opportunity knocks at the door, the pessimist straightway dreams of burglars, and crawls under the bed, the optimist eagerly rushes downstairs and breaks his neck, but the PEPTIMIST slides down the porch column and grabs her before she gets away.

The PEPTIMIST looks for the bright side of life, but he always has a flashlight handy.
