CAMACHO ADDRESS TO OPEN GLOBAL SEMESTER

The address by Manuel Camacho Solis, de facto mayor of Mexico City, for fall convocation Sept. 17 will be the formal opening of the first University-wide global semester. The public assembly, which annually marks the official start of the academic year, will begin with an 11 a.m. academic procession into Ed Landreth Auditorium with faculty members in full regalia.

This fall's global emphasis will include an intensive, interdisciplinary program devoted to neighboring Mexico and Latin America and their history, cultures and contemporary trends. Resident and visiting scholars will consider the future of the United States-Latin American relations, while the historic and ongoing interchange of cultures will be demonstrated by visual artists, business specialists, performers, playwrights and filmmakers.

A highlight of convocation will be announcement of the recipient of the Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Teaching, chosen from among faculty members recommended by nominating committees of their colleagues. Endowed by an anonymous TCU alumni couple, the honor includes a $12,000 check in recognition of outstanding accomplishments as a teacher and to cover the variety of expenses the recipient feels will enhance most fully his/her contributions as a teacher and scholar.

The first teaching award was presented in 1982 to English Professor Betsy Colquitt. Other recipients have been Emmet Smith, Bill Baird, Bob Doran and Mark Thistlethwaite. The Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Research and Creative Activity is given in alternate years.

Welcoming remarks and introductions will be made by Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler. The processional and recessional will be played by Emmet Smith, Herndon Professor of Organ and Church Music. Two numbers will be performed by the Concert Chorale, directed by Professor Ron Shirey. The invocation will be given by Dr. Eugene Brice, alumnus/trustee who is senior minister of University Christian Church. The benediction will be given by John Butler, minister to the University. Associate Professor Sheila Allen will lead the Alma Mater.

Camacho, who will be introduced by Chancellor Bill Tucker, is a political leader who confronts a tangle of environmental affairs. He is political adviser to President Carlos Salinas, with whom he has been a close friend since they attended college together in the 1960s. Frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Salinas in 1994, Camacho holds one of his country's most difficult public-sector posts as chief of the Department of the Federal District because of the capital's overpopulation and pollution problems. Environmental problems have taken much of his time since he took the mayoral position in 1988.

A graduate of National Autonomous University of Mexico and holder of a master's degree in political science from Princeton University, Camacho was Mexico's Secretary of Urban Development and Ecology in 1986-88. During that time he earned a reputation as a conciliator, and his role in resolving a conflict between the central government and a leading national teachers union in 1990 received major media attention.

Camacho also is a longtime activist in affairs of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI). He played a key role in Miguel de la Madrid's successful 1982 presidential campaign. He has been subdirector of political studies in the PRI's think tank and served briefly as PRI secretary general before assuming his current position. He was Salinas' undersecretary for programming and budget for four years.

Classes will be dismissed from 10:15 a.m. until 11:30 p.m. for convocation.

COLLOQUIUM PROPOSALS SOUGHT

Nov. 2 is the deadline for submitting proposed speakers and topics for the international colloquium on the theme of "A New Decade for Women" to be held on campus in March. A biographical summary and brief statement of professional interest in the colloquium topic should be included with the proposal, which should be sent to Doug Newsom, Journalism Department, Box 32930.

The research and working group on "Women and Development" of the Association for the Advancement of Policy, Research and Development in the Third World has issued the invitation for proposals for research papers, panels and country-specific studies. The areas of focus will be women in the professions, women in development and other issues pertinent to the New Decade for Women.

Questions concerning the international gathering, planned for March 26-28 on campus, should be directed to Doug at Ext. 7425.

BAND WILL GIVE PREVIEW

As it prepares for the first home game of the 1992 football season, the Horned Frog Band will present a halftime preview Thursday. The session will begin at 8 p.m. at the band practice field, located west of Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

"The Mo-Town Sound" will be the theme for the band's presentation at the TCU vs. Western Michigan game Saturday night. The TCU Alumni Band is sponsoring the halftime show.

JUST A REMINDER OR TWO...

...that reservations are due today (Tuesday) by 5 p.m. in the athletic ticket office in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum for the Fall Family Day supper. Thursday's party is planned for all employees and their families. Names of family members attending are needed along with reservation information.

...that today (Tuesday) is the deadline for reservations for the Sept. 15 welcoming tea hosted by the TCU Woman's Club. These can be made by calling 292-1035, 292-4098 or 738-2944.

HONORS WILL BE 'LOOKING FOR AMERICA'

The fall Honors Retreat, scheduled this year as a day-long event Saturday at YMCA Camp Carter, will follow the theme "Looking for America," with keynote addresses by journalism chairman Anantha Babbili and guest Frank McLemore, president of the Tribal American Network. Reservations, at $5 each, must be made with the Honors Office by Thursday.

Rather than spending Friday night at Camp Carter as in the past, Honors students and faculty will register at 8:45 a.m. Saturday, then start the faculty/student softball game at 9 a.m. Bus transportation will be available in front of the Student Center, leaving for Camp Carter at 8 a.m.

Keynote presentations will begin at 10:30 a.m., when McLemore speaks on "A Tribal Perspective on the Quincentenary," followed by Anantha's talk, "Looking for America: Reflections on the Idea and the Ideology of the U.S.A." A fajita lunch from Taco Cabana will be served at 11:45 a.m., and discussion groups will meet at 1 p.m.

Leading the groups will be Neil Easterbrook, English, "E Pluribus Plures, or: Why It's A-OK that Postmodern American Doesn't Have a Culture"; Ron Flowers, religion-studies, "What Do Jimmie Swaggart, William Rehnquist, and George Bush Have in Common?: Religion in American Public Life"; Gregg Franzwa, philosophy, "Conforming to the Individualist's Lifestyle"; Donna Hall, speech communication, "Reflecting the American Spirit"; John Harvey, economics, "Myth and the American Economy"; Don Jackson, political science, "Whatever Happened to Popular Democracy?"; Mike Robinson, psychology, "Virtual Reality: Changing the Face of America"; Alan Shepard, English, "The Politics of Public Art; or, Should We Abolish the NEA?"; Ken Stevens, history, "In Search of the American Dream"; and Fred Toner, French, "From the Outside Looking In."

Individual and team games will be played at 2:15 p.m., with the 4 p.m. awards ceremony bringing the day to a close. Buses bus will leave for TCU at 4:30 p.m.

VISITING RESEARCHER TO DISCUSS ALCOHOL

Dr. Juan C. Molina, who will be a campus guest Sept. 10-20 as Green Honors Chair Professor in the psychology department, will lecture twice and hold an informal session with graduate students and others next week. Molina researches the effects of alcohol consumption on learning in developing rats and on the intoxication of both mother and fetus.

His Sept. 14 presentation, designed for an audience of both non-scientists and scientists, is entitled "Interactions between alcohol and the developing organism: A psychobiological analysis." On Sept. 16 Molina will lecture on "Alcohol learning in utero: Postnatal changes in responsiveness to the drug." Both events are scheduled for 4 p.m. in Sid Richardson 501.

The research psychologist also will meet with graduate students and any interested faculty or staff members and students at 4 p.m. Sept. 17 in Winton-Scott Hall 246. "This informal meeting will be a good opportunity for students to find out more about Dr. Molina's research and its relevance to the problem of alcoholism, about his general ideas on psychology in a social context and about aspects of research and education in Argentina," said Mauricio Papini, psychology faculty member who is a fellow Argentinian.

In Córdoba, Argentina, Molina is affiliated with the Instituto de Investigación Médica Mercedes y Martín Ferreyra. A past president of the Argentine Association of Behavioral Sciences, he recently served on the psychology advisory board of the National Council of Research of Argentina. He holds the doctoral degree from the Universidad Nacional de Córdoba.

PRE-GAME PARTY TO BE SATURDAY

Billed as a "FANtastic Frog FANdango," a pre-game party will begin at 4:30 p.m. Saturday when students and fans alike gather at Arnon Carter Stadium to prepare for the first "Walk of Frogs."

The event was the idea of Coach Pat Sullivan as the beginning of another tradition and one that will enhance school spirit and set the tone for the evening's game. After receiving Pat Sullivan paper fans and enjoying a band performance and munchies, the group will line a pathway from Moncrief Hall to the stadium for the 5 p.m. "Walk of Frogs" to their locker rooms.

Of those in the procession, one person will be given two round-trip Southwest Airlines tickets. Those enjoying the pre-game activities can register for four other sets of airline tickets or one of several portable television sets until the 7 p.m. kickoff.

"We hope you'll come early and stay late to make each game a real 'happening,'" Pat said.

FACULTY ROOM APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Applications for faculty research rooms in the library are available now in the library's administrative office. Due by Sept. 18, these forms also may be requested by calling Ext. 7106. Assignments are made for a full academic year, according to Director Fred Heath. These will be determined by the University library committee during its first fall meeting.

THANKS FROM FWISD

In a letter to Chancellor Bill Tucker, Superintendent Don R. Roberts has expressed appreciation from the Fort Worth Independent School District for TCU's cooperation in Vital Link, the summer program in which Fort Worth secondary students worked on campus to learn more about the relationships between the skills they learn in class and those needed in the workplace.

"Please convey our thanks to Shari Barnes and to all of your participating employees for their contribution of time and energy," Roberts wrote. "They were instrumental in the success of the program. We are truly grateful to Texas Christian University for the role it has played in transforming the future."

FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

An assistant professor in Harris College, Lillian Barron formerly was director of educational services for Houston's Northwest Medical Center. Active in Sigma Theta Tau and the National League for Nursing, she earned the M.S.N. degree in 1985 at the University of Texas in Arlington.

Dennis Bounds, currently completing the Ph.D. degree at the University of Texas at Austin, where he earned the M.A. in 1985, has joined the radio-TV-film department as lecturer for 1992-93. A Baylor graduate, he is a member of the Society for Cinema Studies and Popular Culture Association.

RUSSO OPENS MUSIC SERIES

Songs spanning the 18th to the 20th centuries will make up the TCU Music Series opening program Sept. 14 that features lyric baritone Vince Russo. New starting time for the Monday evening recitals in Ed Landreth Auditorium is 7:30 p.m.

Vince, a member of the music faculty since 1986, will begin his program with recitatives and airs from "La Musette" by J.P. Rameau. Accompanists for the piece will be alumna Karen Hall, playing the bass viola da gamba, and her husband, Kevin Hall, playing the baroque bassoon. Both perform with the Fort Worth Symphony and other North Texas groups.

The program also will include songs of the "Schwanengesang" by Franz Schubert, the count's aria from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Eight Epitaphs adapted by T. Chanler from Walter de la Mare's story "Benighted" and "The Call" from R. Vaughan Williams' "Five Mystical Songs."

Keyboard accompanist will be Janet Pummill.

BOETTGER GOING TO MOSCOW ON FULBRIGHT

Rick Boettger of management has received a Fulbright grant to conduct a lectureship this semester in Moscow at the Academy of Foreign Trade. Rick, who leaves Saturday, is one of approximately 100 Fulbright lecturers for the 1992-93 academic year.

Russian managers ages 35 to 40 will participate in an executive-style M.B.A. program to learn about American management techniques and business strategy and work in teams to complete case studies. Rick, who learned Russian at the Defense Language Institute while in the U.S. Army, will lecture in Russian.

Rick stressed that he will avoid teaching a get-rich-today recipe for capitalism. He noted that in the ever-changing Russian economic system, specific knowledge about how to do business now will be irrelevant in two to five years when the system begins to stabilize. Instead he hopes to instill the knowledge of how to find information.

Given his experience as a U.S. Army translator, Rick said traveling in the former Soviet Union would have made him fear for his life prior to the collapse of the superpower late last year. He noted that people with his background routinely were jailed by the government for allegedly spying. He added that he lacked respect for a country and a people corrupted by communism.

Rick explained that the failure of the August 1991 coup changed his attitude. "There were thousands of people willing to fight and lay their lives on the line for democracy after only four years of knowing it. That is worth my respect. It is worth my work," he said.

Fulbright grants are administered by the United States Information Agency and awarded by the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board on the basis of a national competition.

CORNELL CHEMIST TO LECTURE

Dr. Hector D. Abruña of Cornell University's Baker Laboratory and chemistry department will present a seminar at 11 a.m. Thursday in Sid W. Richardson Lecture Hall 4. His lecture, "Ligand Mediated Metal-Metal Interactions, Redox State Induced Transformations and Electrocatalytic Activity of Transition Metal Complexes," is offered as part of the Research Fund Lectureship Series. Coffee will be served in Sid Richardson 446 at 10:30 a.m. All interested faculty and staff members and students are welcome to attend.

NOTES ON FOLKS

George Gilbert (mathematics) co-authored an article, "A Sliding Block Problem," which appeared in the September issue of The College Mathematics Journal.

English professor Fred Erisman's essay, "The Night Christopher Lloyd Danced with Mary Steenburgen," has been published in the Journal of Popular Film & Television. The article compares the community dance in John Ford's classic Western, "My Darling Clementine" (1946), with a corresponding sequence in Robert Zemeckis's science-fiction comedy, "Back to the Future III" (1990), using the comparison to suggest ways in which the Western myth may adapt to changing times and changing societies.

David Vanderwerken (English) sends the following message to the campus: "I want to express my sincere gratitude to all faculty, staff, administrative and student colleagues who were so supportive and caring during my recent surgery and recovery. Your cards were hilarious, your flowers and gifts thoughtful, your visits uplifting. For me, the 'TCU community' is a very concrete entity."

Since her visit to Russia and Hungary as a United States citizen ambassador, Cathy Block (education) is developing a pen pal exchange program between graduate education students and Russian teachers. One of 32 U.S. reading educators who made the trip, she also is working with Russian publishers to have two of her books translated into Russian.

Cathy also heads the Southern Association for Colleges and Universities accreditation team for the Fort Worth School of the Performing Arts and recently served as a book manuscript reviewer for Harcourt Brace Jovanich, Millbrook Press and New Horizons Inc. She has just been appointed to the editorial advisory board for the International Reading Association journal, The Reading Teacher.

Neil Easterbrook (English) may be proving that it never rains but it pours. He has three papers appearing almost simultaneously in literary journals. "'The Arc of Our Destruction': Reversal and Erasure in Cyberpunk," a topological reading of how a literary sub-genre attempts to evade ethical responsibility, is due soon in Science-Fiction Studies. In press at Critique: Studies in Contemporary Fiction is "The Sublime Simulacrum: Repetition, Reversal, and Re-covery in Lem's Solaris," an essay that identifies emblems of the postmodern sublime in the Polish novelist's work. Finally, Philosophy and Rhetoric will publish Neil's "'By indirections find directions out': Kierkegaard's Socratic attractor," which interprets the image of Socrates in the Danish theologian's The Concept of Irony through such contemporary analogs as the notion of the strange attractor developed by a group of physical scientists working in what is now called "Chaos theory."

Bob Cooter (education) recently returned from participating in a three-week series of teacher workshops in Iowa and Texas. Major topics related to innovative teaching methods, including whole language teaching, portfolio assessment, early literacy programs, writing process instruction and literature-based reading. Texas districts included Pinetree (Longview) ISD, San Marcos ISD and Good Shepherd Episcopal School in Dallas.

Bob and Mike Sacken, also of education, were in Great Britain this summer to establish ties with schools of education at the University of Oxford, University of Edinburgh and Regent's College (London) for the purpose of offering comparative courses in education, maybe as early as the summer of 1993. The trip was made possible by a TCU Global Education Grant.

Rick Boettger (management) presented his paper "Limits to Managerial Influence on Employee Initiative" in June at the national meeting of the American Psychological Society in San Diego.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Lynn Rhoades (education) presented a session, "Beginning and Maintaining an NIE Teaching Curriculum" at the annual Fort Worth Star-Telegram Newspaper in Education Conference at the Will Rogers Complex. The July 28 session was attended by elementary and secondary teachers from throughout the metroplex.

Arturo Flores (modern languages) attended the III Congreso Internacional de Culturas Hispánicas Aug. 12-14 at the University of Chile in Santiago. He presented a paper entitled "Visión histórica del teatro hispano-Mexicano en el suroeste de los Estados Unidos."

The November 1991 volume of the Romanic Review, published at Columbia University, includes an article, "Photoghosts," by Stephen Infantino (modern languages). It presents relationships between narrative, photography and death as these co-exist in the autobiography of Marcel Proust. Stephen's book, Photographic Vision in Proust, is now in the final stages of publication and will carry the article.

The most recent issue of the Bulletin of the Geological Society of America included an article, "Shale Facies and Mine Roof Stability," by geologist John Breyer. The work on which the article was based originally appeared as a proprietary report for Exxon Coal and Minerals Company.

CHANGES ADD TO PARKING PROBLEMS

Finding a parking space has been a bit more difficult this fall. "We sincerely regret the inconvenience," said Edd Bivin, vice chancellor for administrative services. "Some of the changes made over the summer are temporary, but others were made in response to safety and legal compliance issues."

Parking on Stadium Drive had become a serious safety problem, crowding vehicles moving on the street. Pedestrians walking into the moving traffic from between the parked cars became a dangerous situation.

Also, federal law mandated that handicapped spaces be added. This was completed over the summer and reduced the number of close-in parking spaces.

The portion of the lot closed for the construction of the Ranch Management Building added to the problem, but it will be reopened upon the completion of that facility.

"The University Master Plan addresses the campus parking issue, and the situation will get much better for everyone as we are able to implement it," added Bivin. "In the meantime, we do regret any inconvenience and appreciate your understanding."

TCU IN THE NEWS

"TCU engineers broaden horizons with new program" was the headline Aug. 20 for the Star-Telegram story by Anita Baker about the first students in the new engineering program. Quoted were Harold Nelson, engineering chairman, and Dean Mike McCracken of AddRan College. The story was complemented by an Associated Press feature, "Horned toads disappearing from much of Texas landscape."

Development officer Ann Clinkscales along with her husband and sons Baird and Austin were the featured family in recent Hulen Mall advertising. Their picture appeared in the Aug. 13 Star-Telegram.

TCU IN THE NEWS

"Campus ritual" was the title the Star-Telegram gave in its Aug. 20 issue to the photo of freshman Sara Deal of Houston and her mother carrying a small refrigerator into a campus residence hall.

Alumna Kris Tschetter, Class of '87, made headlines Aug. 24 in the Star-Telegram and Dallas Morning News as well as other papers across the nation after she won the Northgate Computer Classic in Minnesota. This was the first official LPGA victory for the South Dakota native.

Graduated from TCU in 1974 with majors in chemistry, journalism and history, Tom Siegfried is the 1993 winner of the American Chemical Society's James T. Grady-James H. Stack Award for interpreting chemistry to the public. The Dallas Morning News science editor earned the M.A. at the University of Texas - Austin.

M.L.A. student Pat Sloan and her daughters Samantha and Celeste Sloan, both TCU students, were interviewed by TV station KPRC for the 10 p.m. news Aug. 15. The reporter was especially interested in the "I Saw Elvis at the Republican National Convention" button designed by Pat. The Star-Telegram also included a story about Pat and her button in its Aug. 21 morning edition. Another of her popular buttons was "I Survived the Republican National Convention."

Other TCU students interviewed during the convention were Jennifer Piccirilli and Trent Loftin, both on CNN; Rochael Soper and Jason Sneed, Chronicle of Higher Education; and Lisa Fernandez, David Box, Kimberly Gratland and Brian Sasser, Houston Chronicle. Trent also appeared daily on C-SPAN, to which he was assigned for his convention work.

Bob Cooter (education) was interviewed on Channel 5 News Aug. 22 about home schooling in Texas. He said while home schooling may work well for some, what is needed is closer ties and cooperation between parents and teachers in public and private education. Bob added that such innovative education programs as the TCU-Fort Worth ISD Professional Development Schools project should attract many disenchanted home schoolers back into American school systems.

A USA Today story Sept. 1 revealed that TCU students are listed as fourth best-looking in the nation (behind Denison University, University of Richmond and Miami University and just ahead of Southern Methodist University) in a Princeton Review book, The Student Access Guide to the Best Colleges, which is due out today (Tuesday).

A special friend was the description used by the Star-Telegram recently in its half-page ad that featured alumna Melissa Webb, 1989 honor graduate in journalism who is on the paper's staff. The ad noted that she offers support and caring to an Arlington man through the AIDS Outreach Center," and that she began her volunteering as a 10-year-old. "With TCU's Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, she painted homes for the disadvantaged, took puppies and kittens to nursing homes and helped out at Loaves and Fishes."

"City considering 3 proposals to manage coliseum" was the headline Aug. 28 for The Business Press story about management of Cowtown Coliseum. The story noted a TCU study, commissioned by the city, that recommended a $100,000 subsidy and private management.

Ralph Carter (political science) discussed the impact of selling F-16 jets to Taiwan on Sept. 1 during the 6 and 10 p.m. broadcasts of Channel 8 News.
