SURREALIST PHOTO SHOW OPENS

An exhibition of mystical, surrealist photographs by Jerry Uelsmann, whose works grace collections from Tokyo to Paris and in many of this country's major museums, opens today (Tuesday) on campus.

The Uelsmann images will be on view in Moudy Building Exhibition Space through Feb. 12. After today's opening reception from 6 to 8 p.m., hours will be 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Uelsmann, who is graduate research professor at the University of Florida, will be on campus during the latter part of the exhibit and will present a free, public lecture at the Modern Art Museum of Fort Worth at 7 p.m. Feb. 9.

Uelsmann's works are an exciting contrast to normal photographs. He uses several enlargers and a combination of masking, burning and dodging techniques to print one image. The resulting photographs appear dreamlike yet strangely realistic and believable. He uses recurring images of trees, rocks, doors, hands and female bodies to present themes that relate to nature, birth, creation and seeking knowledge.

A graduate of Rochester (N.Y.) Institute of Technology, he earned two master's degrees from Indiana University in 1960 and immediately joined the University of Florida faculty. He has held Guggenheim and National Endowment for the Arts fellowships. His photographs are in such permanent collections as the Biblioteque Nationale in Paris, Gallery of Modern Art of the National Galleries of Scotland, Stockholm's Modern Museet, Victoria and Albert Museum in London, Nihon University and the National Museum of Modern Art in Japan and the national galleries of both Australia and Canada.

U.S. museums that feature Uelsmann photographs include the Chicago Art Institute, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Museum of Modern Art in New York City, National Museum of American Art in Washington, D.C., and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art.

Uelsmann is a founding member of the Society for Photographic Education and a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain.

WISE, HOWE LEAD DECEMBER CLASS

Stephani Ann Wise of Ralston, Neb., and former Dallas resident Allison Ruth Howe were graduated Dec. 19 as the highest-ranking members of the fall Class of '92. Both majoring in exceptional studies education, they completed their baccalaureate degrees with 4.0 (straight A) grade-point averages.

A total 372 earned degrees were awarded during the baccalaureate-commencement held in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum with Chancellor Bill Tucker presiding.

Stephani, graduated from high school in 1988 in Richardson, plans to begin study toward a master's degree here in the fall. She currently is a substitute teacher in the Fort Worth Independent School District.

Allison, married to Richard Metheny a few hours before the Dec. 19 graduation ceremonies, now is a resident of Irving and teaches at McCullough Middle School in Highland Park.

In the fall class, two others -- Fort Worth residents Annida Martha Hobbs and Angelia Daleen Powell -- were graduated "summa cum laude," with highest honors.

Graduated "magna cum laude" were Andrew Biersmith, Jacqueline Chan, Julie Choate, Kimberly Daus, Rebecca Hall, Jill Hansen, Brent Janner, Rebekah Martin, Joseph Robertson and Linda Morris. Those completing baccalaureate degrees "cum laude" were Katrina Dana Bailey, Karie Bailey, John Cheyney, Tiffany Estill, Jonna Garrett, Kevin Chupik, Daniel Henderson, Michal Hester, Eugene Huskey, Krista Lang, Tina Ingram, Michael Merritt, Annette Morris, Jennifer Nicholson, Russell Rodriguez, Kimberly Spinks, Florence Romeo and Marie Fuente.

THREE ACCEPT NEW ROLES

Three faculty members -- Wayne Barcellona, Patrick Kinkade and Morrison Wong -- have accepted three-year departmental appointments effective with the opening of the 1993 fall semester.

A member of the biology faculty since 1973, Wayne earned three degrees at the University of Southern California. A postdoctoral fellow in 1970-72 at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institution, he was a research associate for a year at UT Medical Branch. He is active in a number of professional organizations, including the Society for Development Biology, New York and Texas academies of science and American Institute of Biological Science. The associate professor will chair the biology department.

Patrick, currently acting director of criminal justice who will become director next fall, joined the faculty in 1990 after five years as lecturer at the University of California-Irvine, where he earned the Ph.D. in 1990. A graduate of the University of California--Berkeley and California State, the assistant professor is author of works published in Justice Quarterly and Journal of Social Work and Welfare.

To chair the sociology department, Morrison was a postdoctoral fellow and then research associate at Duke University before coming to TCU in 1981. He is a graduate of California State and earned two degrees at the University of California at Riverside. The associate professor is active in the North American Chinese Sociological Association, Pacific and Southwestern sociological associations and serves as secretary/treasurer of the Asia and Asian American section of the American Sociological Association. He has been on the board of directors of the United Community Centers.

KING MEMORIAL PROCESSION SET

On Thursday three groups will co-sponsor an evening procession and program in tribute to the late civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. The Black Student Caucus, the House of Student Representatives' Programming Council and Office of Student Activities have coordinated planning for the two events. The procession will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center lobby, progress around the campus and end in the ballroom with the 7 p.m. program featuring the Fort Worth King's Kids.

Black Student Caucus President Wanda Mosley, a junior advertising/public relations major, noted that Monday's closing of campus facilities marked the second year the University has observed King's birthday as a holiday. Thursday's procession will continue the commemoration. "We hope a lot of people will share this important celebration with us and take time to reflect on Dr. King's life and all he fought for," she said.

University Ministries will provide candles for the march; participants also may carry flashlights or penlights.

AUSTRALIAN CHORALE TO SING HERE

The chorale from St. Peters Lutheran College in Brisbane, Australia, accompanied by its own composer, will perform here and at Peace Lutheran Church in Hurst next week.

The church concert of Australian and traditional music will be at 7 p.m. Jan. 24 at 941 W. Bedford-Eules Road (telephone 284-1677), and the TCU performance of contemporary Australian music will begin at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 25 at Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The noted high school choir was founded 10 years ago by Graeme Morton with the dual goal of being closely involved in the creation of new Australian music and also extending its cultural boundaries by traveling internationally.

The chorale was invited to sing at the 20th international conference of the International Society for Music Education last year in Korea. The youths also performed in Japan in 1991 at the International Youth Choirs Festival and toured Germany, Holland, England and Scotland in 1990.

Fort Worth was included on its first U.S. tour itinerary because the choir leaders became acquainted with music chairman Ken Raessler when he served as a consultant to the Australian Department of Education in 1988 working on a music curriculum for that country's public schools.

Touring with the choir and Director/Conductor Graeme Morton will be his brother, Dr. Ralph Morton, the St. Peters accompanist, and composer Stephen Leek, who has won a number of Australian awards for his compositions. One of his well-known compositions is "Once on a Mountain," an unaccompanied 20-minute work, particularly Australian in its themes and musical language, that was commissioned by the St. Peters Chorale in 1988.

The chorale also has a policy of working under leading conductors at home and abroad and has taken workshops with Stephen Cleobury, director of Music at Kings College, Cambridge, the composer John Rutter and Prof. Rodney Eichenberger of the University of Southern California. At TCU choir members will view rehearsals of the Chapel Choir and Concert Chorale, both directed by Ron Shirey, and will attend a choral organization class taught by Ruth Whitlock. The group is hosted at Peace Lutheran by Willie Martinez, church organist and TCU alumnus.

The Australian choir's tour began Jan. 10 at Glendale, Calif., and also includes San Francisco, Tacoma, Seattle and Bloomington, Minn., concluding Jan. 28 in Claremont, Calif.

THREE RECEIVE BURLINGTON AWARDS

Three faculty members are recipients of 1992 Burlington Northern Faculty Achievement Awards. Honorees are Linda Hughes, professor of English; Joey Jeter, who is Granville and Erline Walker Professor of Preaching in Brite Divinity School; and Kathleen Martin, associate dean of the School of Education.

The awards of $2,500 each were presented Dec. 19 during TCU's winter commencement by Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler. The honorees "are among those who incorporate unusually successful teaching with the other professional expectations of the University's faculty members," Dr. Koehler said.

A grant from the Burlington Northern Foundation, which represents the Burlington Northern Railroad Company in its charitable program, provides for three awards annually in recognition of faculty members whose teaching in the immediately preceding academic year has been both significant and meritorious. Other major considerations are research and creative activity, services to the institutions and professional organizations, academic advising and continuing professional development.

Linda, who joined the faculty in 1988, currently is on the executive board of the Midwest Victorian Studies Association. She has held offices in the Midwest Modern Language Association and has received grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Council of Learned Societies.

A native of Dodge City, Kan., Linda earned a baccalaureate degree from Wichita State University and completed master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Missouri in Columbia. She formerly was a faculty member at the University of Missouri at Rolla and Washburn University. She is author of a number of book chapters and studies, including those published in Victorian Newsletter, Victorian Periodicals Review and Teaching Political Science.

A Fort Worth native nationally regarded as an outstanding preacher in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Joey joined the faculty in 1984 and was named to the endowed Walker professorship in 1991. Active in the American Academy of Homiletics and the Disciples of Christ Historical Society, he is the author of two books, Alexander Procter, the Sage of Independence and Fruit of the Spirit: The "Triple Trinity" of Galatians 5, in addition to numerous articles and sermons.

Graduated from TCU in 1965, Joey earned the B.D. degree at Union Theological Seminary and completed master's and Ph.D. degrees in 1983 at Claremont Graduate School, where he was a lecturer. He has served several pastorates.

Kathleen, widely known for her teaching and research in science and mathematics, came to campus in 1985 after seven years at the University of Dallas. During four years at Xavier University in New Orleans, she headed the education department and directed the freshman studies program. An alumna of St. Louis' Notre Dame College, she earned the M.Ed. degree at Tulane University and the Ph.D. at the University of Texas in Austin.

The former secondary school teacher has held several awards from Exxon Education Foundation, National Science Foundation and Eisenhower Grants as well as Educational Economic Security Act grants. Much of her research has centered on mathematics and science education, mathematical thinking and problem-solving and use of computers in mathematics. In 1991 she received National Science Foundation and Eisenhower grants for minority mathematics and science education cooperatives. She is co-author of several books. Her studies have appeared in Classroom Computer Learning, School and Science Mathematics and Educational Leadership.

TEN HEADED FOR LONDON

Ten juniors and seniors are looking forward to a longer, colder winter than most of us, a winter they will spend studying and working in the heart of London. They have been chosen to take part in the University's annual spring semester internship program with Regent's College. Twenty-five TCU students have interned in London since 1991.

Through the spring semester, they will work three days each week in pre-assigned internships appropriate for their majors and will take two academic classes.

The students are Suzette Copeland, senior political science major who will be working at the American Chamber of Commerce; Celia Cullen, whose majors are history and art history, interning at London's Leighton House Museum; Alyson Outenreath, junior political science major, accepted for internship in a London law firm, Lurn Boehner, senior in fashion design, interning with couturier Nicole Farhi; Amy Burdett, junior political science major, and Matt Herndon, senior finance major, both assigned to the Royal Bank of Scotland.

Others are Kristin DeLeeuw, senior majoring in advertising/public relations, working for Chatto Consultancy; Stephanie Feaster, senior speech communication major, American Airlines; Jason Van Eaton, junior double-majoring in political science and philosophy, Conservative Central Office; and Penny Woodcock, senior, working in a British social work setting in keeping with her social work major.

For successfully carrying out their busy internships, the students will earn nine hours of TCU credit. The two Regent's College courses carry an additional six to eight credit hours. The academic classes all have United Kingdom connections, said Don Jackson, who directs the London internships.

The London experience already is paying off for participants now in the job market. Sarah Glanville of Edina, Minn., who interned at Saatchi and Saatchi, London's largest advertising agency, accepted a full-time job there after graduation last spring. Jane Waller, English graduate from Bryan, now is a paralegal at a Washington, D.C., law firm. Firm members told her she was selected from among a number of applicants because of her internship in the office of Sir John Wheeler, a Conservative member of Parliament.

PRE-GAME EVENT IS WEDNESDAY

Alumni and friends will gather tomorrow (Wednesday) for a pre-game party before the Horned Frogs meet Southern Methodist University's Mustangs for a basketball game in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

To begin at 6:15 p.m., the event will be held in the TCU Lettermen's Room in the coliseum. Sponsoring the occasion is the TCU Alumni Association's Fort Worth chapter, headed by Richard and Kristi Wiseman.

The Southwest Conference game will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Due today, reservations for the informal supper party and game tickets, set at $8.50 per person or $4 per person for the pre-game party only, can be made by check payable to TCU and taken to the alumni office, 2901 Princeton St.

Tickets will be available in the Lettermen's Room, accessible through the lettermen's gate at the north end of the coliseum, prior to the event. Entrance to the coliseum will be by ticket only.

GUIDE OUTLINES NON-CREDIT ARRAY

Growing environmentally literate, learning the secrets of great minds, surveying Kennedy assassination findings and mastering water aerobics are among non-credit choices to be offered during the spring. Other community courses invite participants to view sports in a new way, to consider the impact of the Soviet Union's breakup, to sample a graduate curriculum or to rock and roll.

The Office of Extended Education has published its 30th issue of The Learner's Guide, a catalog including non-traditional study opportunities ranging across the disciplines. Full-time and adjunct faculty members are among the instructors. Staff and senior citizen discounts are available for most courses.

Listings in the guide include:

- "Champions of Nature: Readings Toward Environmental Literacy," a survey of writings spanning 140 years of environmentalism in the United States from Henry David Thoreau and John Muir to Annie Dillard. Doctoral candidate Shelly Aley, English, will conduct six Tuesday evening sessions beginning Feb. 9.
- "The Kennedy Assassination: What We Know Now," taught by David Murph, church relations director, with David Perry and Hugh Aynesworth. The three men will bring a collective 50 years of investigative expertise to their lectures and discussions, which are scheduled for Monday evenings beginning Feb. 15.
- "Looking at Sport Through Liberal Arts," a series featuring the insights of scholars in journalism, psychology, anthropology, history and physical education and reflecting new directions in interdisciplinary sport study. Anantha Babbili, journalism; Richard Fenker, psychology; Andrew Miracle, anthropology; William Beezley, history; and Alan Lacy, physical education, will lecture and lead discussions on Wednesday evenings beginning Feb. 3.
- "What Does the End of the U.S.S.R. Mean?" taught by political scientist Eugene Gregory, assistant vice chancellor for advancement. Participants will examine reasons for the breakup and discuss its fallout and the lessons it affords. Conflicts of ideology, legacies of alienation and discontent, antipathy between Westernizers and Slavophiles, evangelical mysticism within the Russian Orthodox Church and other elements of the Soviet experience also will be considered. The Monday evening course begins Feb. 1.
- "M.L.A. Potpourri," a series of evening lectures by Master of Liberal Arts program faculty members David Cross, psychology; John Breyer, geology; William Graham, physics; Jim Corder, English; Joel Mitchell, physical education; and Fred Erisman, English. Their programs are scheduled for Tuesday evenings, Feb. 2-March 9.

Among other spring non-credit highlights are a Spanish course designed for social service practitioners, a children's class in cartooning, an evening water aerobics sequence and "Chaos: The Lowdown," a two-session class taught by physicist Bruce Miller on non-linear phenomena.

Copies of The Learner's Guide are available in the Office of Extended Education, Sadler Hall 212. Further details on courses may be obtained by calling Ext. 7132.

TCU ECONOMIC IMPACT IS SIGNIFICANT

Higher education is one of North Texas' biggest industries, and TCU accounted for more than $79 million in direct regional economic impact during fiscal year 1991. During that same year, the University's indirect regional impact was $69.5 million, accounting for 1,167 jobs.

These figures come from a recent study titled "Serving the People." Commissioned by the Alliance for Higher Education, the study showed that higher education in the North Texas region generated more than $8.8 billion in economic activity in the state in 1991. The research also concludes that TCU and 22 other private, public and community colleges constituting the alliance have a greater impact on the area than tourism and conventions.

"Higher education is an integral part of the region's overall economic health," said Dr. Allan Watson, president of the alliance, a non-profit organization that provides educational support services to North Texas academic and business communities. "A strong system of higher education is not only essential to our future, but also it has an immediate and daily effect on the financial well-being of local businesses and companies. Research by our member institutions fuels advancement in science and technology. Graduates from these institution are a vital resource as are programs and continuing education for professionals. Faculty are a source of information and counsel for businesses and government," he added.

The study, released during a Dec. 3 news conference in Dallas, examined the direct economic impact of the institutions on the region's economy and the indirect contributions they make to the quality of life through community service and outreach programs.

The $8.8 billion in annual economic activity in Texas includes $2.2 billion in direct spending by the institutions and their students, employees and visitors, while the region's tourism and convention industry produced only slightly more than $1.5 million in spending in 1991. Higher education's indirect economic activity totaled $1.9 million in this region, and the economic activity elsewhere in Texas was $4.7 billion.

The 23 member institutions have a combined annual payroll of $900 million and support more than 130,000 jobs -- nearly 22,000 faculty and staff members and another 110,000 jobs indirectly statewide.

Specifics about TCU's economic impact include the following:

Table 1. TCU Direct Regional Economic Impacts, Fiscal Year 1991

Source	Spending (Millions)	State & Local Sales Taxes (Millions)
Purchases by Students	$43.6	$1.6

HEALTH ENRICHMENT WORK NOTED

The R.O.A.D. (Responsibility of Alcohol and Drugs) Workers and members of the Alcohol and Drug Education Program staff recently assessed their fall 1992 Health Enrichment Week, termed it a success and sent thanks to all volunteers within the University community. They "would also like to sing the praises of Kristen Lieber," staff member Cathi Wentworth said. Kristen, a sophomore majoring in education of exceptional students, coordinated the special-emphasis week on campus and will be working on the spring program, "Safe Break '93."

SERVICES HELD FOR MIXSON

Private services were conducted Jan 2 by Rev. Carl D. Reimers of Princeton, N.J., at St. Stephen Presbyterian Church for Keith Mixson, emeritus professor of music who died Dec. 31. A member of the music faculty from 1934 until retiring in 1975, the well-known pianist had performed with chamber music groups and accompanied such opera singers as Richard Tucker, Blanche Thebom and Frances Yeend. He was a founding member of TCU's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Keith, who completed the B.A. degree in history in 1928 at the University of Texas, earned the Bachelor of Music degree from Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the master's from the University of Michigan. He was a cryptographer with the 5th Army Air Force in World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Linda, and three nieces. The family suggests memorials to the Van Cliburn Piano Competition, Fort Worth Symphony, St. Stephen church or a favorite charity.

FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

Joseph A. Greenawalt, recently retired at the rank of major after 20 years' service in the Air Force, is new director of mechanical systems. He had been chief of operations for the 97th Civil Engineering Squadron at Oklahoma's Altus Air Force Base. Holder of a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Ohio State University, the licensed professional engineer served as mechanical design engineer at Eielson AFB, Alaska, then at Ramstein AB, Germany, as command facility energy program manager and later as chief of utilities and services. The Ohio native is a member of American Institute of Plant Engineers, American Management Association, Association of Energy Engineers, National Society of Professional Engineers and Society of American Military Engineers.

Sharon Fairchild has accepted reappointment as head of the modern languages department. Also chair of the department in 1981-84, she joined the faculty in 1978. The holder of three degrees from Wayne State University was a Fulbright teacher in Vanves, France, in 1990-91. Her writings have appeared in several publications, including Nineteenth-Century French Studies, and she has been a bibliographer for the Modern Language Association International Bibliography since 1983.

Holder of two degrees from TCU and the Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Erika Matulich will join the School of Business as assistant professor of marketing for 1993-94. She co-authored works published in Principles of Marketing, Developments in Marketing Science, Journal of Ambulatory Care Management and Advances in Health Care Research. Holder of several scholarships as an undergraduate and a varsity swimmer, she has been named to Who's Who of Emerging Leaders in America and Who's Who of American Women, both for 1993-94.

AIDS GROUP PRAISES TCU EFFORTS

Efforts of the TCU Student Public Relations Student Society for the fifth annual commemoration of World AIDS Day has been praised. Laura Rankin and her volunteers who designed the publicity campaign were noted in a letter from Laurie Barker, who chaired the World Aids Day Committee. "Thanks to them," she wrote, "World AIDS Day in Tarrant County was a fantastic success." She noted the students created the logo, produced a top-notch media packet and volunteered to help with events. Barker estimated that about 2,000 persons "were touched by the AIDS Memorial Quilt display...we also received a lot of favorable publicity, and there was such 'consciousness-raising' done. Most important, World AIDS Day was commemorated this year. It would never have happened without your students' involvement and commitment to this project," she added.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Stuart Youngblood (management) has been notified that his paper, entitled "Reactions to Unjust Dismissal and Third-Party Dispute Resolution: A Justice Framework," co-authored with Linda Klebe Trevino and Monica Favia of Pennsylvania State University has been accepted for publication in the Employee Responsibilities and Rights Journal.

Rhonda Hatcher, George Gilbert and David Addis (mathematics) received notice that their National Science Foundation grant proposal entitled "Computational Group Theory and Graph Theory" has been funded. The $26,140 grant will fund a Research Experiences for Undergraduates Site at the TCU mathematics department this summer.

Dale Young (education) recently returned from the Texas Association of School Personnel Administrators--Texas Association of School, College and University Staffing (TASPA-TASCUS) conference where he presented a workshop, "Working Together for Positive Outcomes," on recruitment of quality students into the teaching profession. Dale also begins serving on the Texas State Teachers Association board of directors this month.

Ken Stevens (history) published an essay on the National Archives, Southwest Region, in the November 1992 issue of the Organization of American Historians Newsletter. The article is part of a series on National Archives regional centers being published by the OAH.

Dean Bob Garwell of fine arts and communication, 1992 president of the International Council of Fine Arts Deans, presided over the 29th annual conference of the council at San Francisco in late October. His wife, Judy, led an information session for spouses and special guests.

Nineteenth-Century Scottish Rhetoric: The American Connection by Win Horner (English) has been published by Southern Illinois University Press. Win examined previously inaccessible 19th-Century Scottish archives, including student notes of lectures at the universities of Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen, the only record of rhetoric and English literature courses taught in Scottish universities during that time, and found documentation of a logical transition from traditional rhetorical instruction to what is known as contemporary English courses. These universities were very influential in the development of the English literature and composition courses in American universities.

Win's study was supported by TCU and by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the University of Edinburgh Institute for the Advancement of Studies in the Humanities and the National Council of Teachers of English. She currently is working on an edition of selected writings from three 19th-Century Scottish rhetoricians: George Jardine, Edward Edmondstone Aytoun and Alexander Bain. Win has published six books and numerous articles on the history of rhetoric and composition.

An essay entitled "Wilderness as a Psychic Dumping Ground: The Psychology of Littering" by Steve Sherwood (Writing Center) has been accepted for publication in Weber Studies: An Interdisciplinary Humanities Journal. Publication date probably will be in the fall of 1994. Also accepted by the Writing Lab Newsletter was Steve's essay "Order Out of Chaos: Fostering Meaning Without Crushing Creativity," a paper he delivered to the Rocky Mountain Writing Center Association in October.

Cathy Block's college textbook, Teaching the Language Arts: Expanding Students' Thinking Through Student-Centered Instruction, was published Dec. 15 by Allyn and Bacon of Boston. "Engaging Students' Minds," an article by Cathy, appeared in the December issue of Educator's Forum.

Wedding bells rang Jan. 2 for Doug Newsom (journalism) and Bob Carrell, TCU former journalism chairman who is now professor emeritus from the University of Oklahoma.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Nancy Meadows (curriculum and instruction) presented two papers at national conferences in November. "Problematic Social Behaviors in School Settings" was her topic at the National Adolescent Conference in Reno, Nev. Nancy and Sheri Searcy, principal of Starpoint School, wrote "Making Social Skills Instruction Relevant to Students' Needs," which was presented at Tempe, Ariz., for the TECBD National Conference on Severe Behavior Disorders of Children and Youth.

Bayard Friedman, former trustee chairman and former Fort Worth mayor, was honored Jan. 13 when he was presented the 1992 J. Erik Jonsson Aviation Award from the Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport Board. The honor, named for the Dallas mayor who helped establish the airport in the late 1960s, is in recognition of significant contributions to aviation in North Texas.

Alumnus Art Hanna, who earned B.A. and B.D. degrees here in the 1960s, has been elected vice president of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). To assume the new position July 1, 1993, he will continue as corporate secretary. Before joining the Pension Fund in 1973, he was minister in Alpine as well as for other congregations in Texas and Oklahoma.

Administrative assistant Lynn Evans (chancellor office) has completed 40 hours' training to be certified as a mediator by the Dispute Resolution Services of Tarrant County Inc.

Sympathy is extended to Kaye Thornton, (Tandy Scholar program), whose mother, Martha Anna Dysart, died Jan. 8 after a lengthy illness. Funeral services for the TCU alumna, who was well known for her trophy-winning golf and nature-related activities, were held Jan. 11 at First Methodist Church. The family suggests memorials to Harris College of Nursing.

Eulaine King McIntosh, who earned both bachelor's and master's degrees here in modern dance, brought dance to the entire nation on Christmas Eve. She choreographed and danced the Processional and the Call to Communion for a special worship service at First Christian Church in Tulsa that was aired nationally by ABC at 11 p.m. Dec. 24. Elaine's husband, Ken McIntosh, earned the M.Div. at Brite and is working toward his Ph.D. in history at TCU.

Angela O'Donnell (psychology Ph.D. 1986) and Don Dansereau (psychology) have written a chapter, "Scripted cooperation in student dyads: A method for analyzing and enhancing academic learning and performance," for R. Hertz-Lazarowitz and N. Miller (Eds.), Interaction in cooperative groups: The Theoretical anatomy of group learning, to be published by Cambridge University Press.

With educational psychologist D.W. Johnson of the University of Minnesota, Don recently presented "Cooperative learning and individual achievement: A focus on the adult learner" to the Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Research Council, in Irvine, Calif.

The department also was represented at a fall conference of the Society for Neuroscience in Anaheim, Calif., through presentations by several faculty members and graduate students. Students Scott Barbay and Troy Schmanke, with Tim Barth, presented a paper, "Early MK-801 treatment prevents the reinstatement of forelimb placing deficits following unilateral cortical lesions in the rat." Tim and student Bethany Marks contributed "Tactile-extension following unilateral lesions in the rat anteromedial cortex: The effects of a contralateral cue." A third paper, "The nucleus accumbens and caudate as neural mediators of amphetamine-induced locomotor stereotypy," was given by student Doug Krug and Kathyrne Mueller.

SCHULTZ EARNS REUTER AWARD

In his 30 years here, Frank Reuter taught, chaired the history department for a number of years and served as dean of the Graduate School from 1971 to 1975. When he retired from full-time teaching, the history department established the Frank Reuter Prize for the best research essay by a history graduate student.

First winner of the $100 award, announced at the close of the fall semester, is graduate student Marvin Schultz for his essay on "The Politics of Penal Reform in Tennessee, 1807-1829." The essay has been accepted for publication by the Tennessee Historical Quarterly.

GRASSLAND CLASS OPENS TONIGHT

The spring Ranch Management evening course, beginning tonight (Tuesday), will be "Grassland Management" taught by John Merrill and Nick Wilson. Classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays in Sid Richardson Lecture Hall 4.

Topics to be studied include basic plant growth, economically significant characteristics, classification of rangeland, relation of grazing animals to forage plants, range management practices, introduced pasture plants, grazing management of improved pastures, harvest of forage and seed, ranch planning and establishment, fertilization, weed control.

Late registration will be from 5 to 6:30 p.m. tonight in the classroom.

JUST A FEW REMINDERS...
