RANCH PROGRAM RECEIVES $50,000

The Ranch Management Program's Charles Goodnight Scholarship Fund has received a $50,000 gift, proceeds from the Goodnight Gala held during the recent National Cutting Horse Association World Championship Futurity in Fort Worth.

The check was presented to Chancellor Bill Tucker and Ranch Management Director John Merrill by Kit Moncrief, chairwoman of the gala and wife of Trustee Charles Moncrief, and by Richard L. Connor, Star-Telegram president and publisher. The annual gala is co-sponsored by the Star-Telegram and the National Cutting Horse Association, which is headquartered in Fort Worth.

The Goodnight Scholarship, named for a 19th-Century cattleman and trailblazer, was established in 1992 with an initial gift of $12,500.

NOTRE DAME ORGANIST TO PLAY

Fort Worth's first recital by Philippe Lefebvre, organist titulaire of the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, also offers Metroplex music lovers a rare opportunity to compare his performances on the 84-rank organ in Dallas' vast Morton H. Meyerson Symphony Center and in TCU's smaller, intimate Robert Carr Chapel.

The recital at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23, hosted by TCU, is underwritten by TCU's Sue Wheeler Smith Endowment Fund.

The all-French program will include Louis Vierne's Symphonie pour Grand Orgue, Chorale No. 2 in B Minor by Cesar Franck and Maurice Durufle's Prelude and Fugue sur le nom ALAIN as well as an improvisation on a submitted theme.

Lefebvre will play his benefit recital in Dallas on Feb. 21.

Organist of the Cathedral of Chartres prior to his appointment to Notre Dame in 1985, Lefebvre also serves as the director of the Conservatory of Music in Lille, France.

Although he has concertized in the United States on several occasions, this first Fort Worth appearance came about through his friendship with Emmet Smith, Herndon Professor of Music and professor of organ and church music.

Emmet and his wife, Judy, were invited guests for the dedication of the restored organ at Notre Dame, festivities that lasted almost a week last December.

The massive organ, which has pipes dating to 1180, is renovated every 100 years, but the newest restoration included the installation of a computer system which enables the organ to re-play works performed on it. Because Notre Dame is one of 800 French churches that are national monuments, the government paid more than $2 million for the renovation. The organ, housed in a balcony at the rear of the cathedral, has a closed-circuit TV screen which enables the organist to watch choirs performing at the downstairs altar.

Notre Dame has two other organists, Olivier Latry and Jean-Pierre Leguay. Latry, also a close friend of the Smiths, has played three organ recitals in Fort Worth, two at TCU and one at St. Stephen Presbyterian Church.

All three organists performed during the Notre Dame festivities in December, and Lefebvre's recital included a piece he composed and dedicated to Emmet, Cipher E flat.

And Emmet played a post-mass recital on Sunday evening, Dec. 6, for organ builders and visiting organists.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK BEGINS FEB. 22

Stories, competitive cycling, World Cup soccer talk, an international buffet and other events are on the agenda for International Week Feb. 22-26.

Members of the International Students' Association and the staff of the International Student Affairs Office have scheduled a series of activities open to the University community. The final event, Tour de TCU, is a bicycle race restricted for insurance purposes to students, faculty and staff members, but others are welcome to attend as spectators.

Nancy Maxey, a junior political science/international relations major who traces her enthusiasm for other cultures to three high school years spent in Japan, has served as coordinator of International Week plans. When the Alaska native arrived at the University, she immediately affiliated with the International Students' Association, chose an internationally oriented major, enrolled in language studies and formed friendships with students from other countries. Japan, she recalled, "really opened my eyes."

Chancellor Bill Tucker will open the celebration Feb. 22 during a noon ceremony in the Student Center lounge. An exhibition of artifacts from other nations and cultures will open earlier that day near the entrance to the main cafeteria; viewing hours are 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Feb. 22-25.

Nigerian storyteller John Ow'honda, an alumnus who also has participated in Black History Month, will perform at 4 p.m. Feb. 23 in Student Center 218. Blindfolded participants may swat at piñatas while mariachi music fills the air in the lounge at 6 that evening.

Ash Wednesday services in Robert Carr Chapel at noon Feb. 24 are included on the International Week agenda.

A panel discussion of World Cup soccer will be held at 5 p.m. Feb. 25 in Tandy Hall.

Marriott food services will cater "Taste of the World" from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Feb. 26 in the lounge. A complimentary sampler of 10 nations' traditional cuisines, the crowd-attracting free buffet will be hosted by students from those countries volunteering alongside representatives of several sponsoring campus organizations and sharing cultural information with those who partake.

Another component of International Week will combine the culinary and performing arts. A banquet and talent show is scheduled for 6 p.m. Feb. 27 in the ballroom. Many international students' host families as well as others from the community have attended this banquet in previous years. Tickets are $9 per person and may be purchased on student meal tickets.

Tour de TCU, open to all covered University students and employees, begins at 1 p.m. Feb. 28 at Frog Fountain. Circling the fountain area in heats of one to three laps, competitors will race to advance to semifinals and quarterfinals. The entry fee is $5 per person. Further details concerning registration for the cycling event are available by calling 923-2159 or Ext. 7871.

KOLKHORST TAKES NEW POST

Lois Kolkhorst, assistant sports information director for the last four years, has assumed the new position of director of athletics marketing and promotions. Announced by Athletic Director Frank Windegger, the position will include promoting Horned Frog athletics to the general public as well as students and alumni through advertising and marketing.

The 1988 graduate lettered four years and was named academic all-Southwest Conference on the Lady Frogs golf team. She formerly was with Host Communications, where she worked with the SWC radio network.

ODOM AGAIN ASSISTING BOOK FAIR

English professor Keith Odom's expertise in identifying rare and unusual books is being utilized again this year for the silent auction that will be an opening night event for the 36th annual Book Fair. Sponsored by the National Council of Jewish Women, the Feb. 27-March 3 sale of books ranging from cooking to computer instruction to novels will be held at Will Rogers Memorial Center's poultry building from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Keith and other Book Fair leaders were interviewed for Channel 45's Stepping Out with Sandy show, which will air daily this week through Saturday. Viewers should consult the cable TV guide to find the air times each day.

The silent auction is planned from 7 to 10 p.m. Feb. 27. For the auction, Keith has found several pre-Civil War Shakespeare pieces, including Histories, Tragedies and Comedies from 1843. Included, too, will be such collectible first editions as Gertrude Stein's Portraits & Prayers and Sidney Poitier's This Life. Book prices start at 50 cents, and this year's sale will be the first to offer CDs, cassettes and laser disks.

PRE-GAME EVENT SET IN CHICAGO

TCU's Chicago-area alumni and friends of TCU will gather tomorrow (Thursday) for a social event before the basketball game between the Horned Frogs and the Blue Demons of DePaul University. Sponsoring the occasion is the TCU Chicago alumni chapter, headed by Dave and Amy Galino Steinbarth, members of the Class of 1983.

Billed as "Subs, Slices and Slam Dunks," the event will begin at 5 p.m. at Clarion International Hotel, formerly the Sheraton, at O'Hare Airport. Tip-off for the game in Rosemont Horizon will be at 7 p.m.

MAGICIAN TO HOCUS-POCUS CAMPUS

Comedian and magician Brad Montgomery will bring his tricks to the Student Center for two shows Friday. His performances, sponsored by the T.G.I.F. committee of the Programming Council, will begin at 11 a.m. in the cafeteria and at noon in the lounge. Both will be free and open to the public.

Montgomery, based in Denver, recently won the Colorado Magician of the Year award. He also is a regular performer at the Hollywood Magic Castle, and his audiences have included George Carlin, Buddy Ebsen and Dr. Ruth Westheimer.

Since 1988, when he was graduated from Brown University with a political science degree, Montgomery has taken his act to campuses and nightclubs on the East and West coasts. He entertained in 10 states last year.

"I definitely enjoy performing for college audiences," he said. "They seem to appreciate a complex mix of comedy: everything from subtle political references to more silly, almost slapstick types of gags. I love meeting the students, performing for an entirely different group each night and seeing the campuses." However, Montgomery confessed, "Being a full-time performer is harder than I'd guessed. I still don my pointy-toed shoes and my horrible Olde English accent for the outdoor Renaissance festivals, and I've been known to work cheap comedy clubs and even a couple of biker bars."

TENNIS PLAY DAY TO BE FEB. 28

Faculty and staff members will join forces with students for the faculty/staff/student play day Feb. 28. Reservations are due by Feb. 26 for the 1:30-3 p.m. event at Mary Potishman Lard Tennis Center.

Faculty members must play with students, according to Tut Bartzon, tennis center director who coordinates the annual play day. Partners can be arranged by calling the tennis center, Ext. 7960. The $3.50 charge includes both court reservation and balls.

Apart from the afternoon of tennis, Tut encourages faculty and staff members "to utilize this opportunity to meet our assistant professionals, Karl Richter and Karen gai Hooson."

ADVISING SEMINARS SET

The Center for Academic Services has scheduled two seminars in March that deal with specific issues in academic advising. Both programs are open to all interested faculty or staff members.

Al Mladenka, director of International Student Affairs, will discuss "Advising International Undergraduate Students" from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. March 2. "Advising Undergraduates with Learning Disabilities" will be Gail Zimmerman's topic from 3 to 4 p.m. March 30.

Both seminars will be held at the center, Rickel 106, and reservations may be made at Ext. 7486.

Michael Brooks, director of the center, also reminds faculty and staff members that his office can provide support for students who need to work on study skills as well as those considering a change of majors or seeking information on career opportunities in their fields.

KING TO BE BREAKFAST SPEAKER

J Luther King Jr., president and chief executive officer of Luther King Capital Management Corporation, will speak at a Feb. 23 event in the TCU Dallas Breakfast Series. "Investment Outlook for 1993" will be the topic for the 7:30 a.m. program at Park City Club. Sponsoring the event is the TCU Dallas Alumni, headed by Franci Moses of the Class of '65.

In 1979 King founded the Fort Worth-based company, which currently has an international reputation and manages more than $5 billion in assets. The Dallas resident earned both B.B.A. and M.B.A. degrees here. He serves on the board of trustees and in 1992 was presented the distinguished alumnus award by the TCU Alumni Association.

The $10-per-person reservations for the breakfast program are due Thursday. These can be made at the alumni office.

TCU DOMINATES AD COMPETITION

Of more than 700 entries in the annual competition sponsored by the Advertising Club of Fort Worth, those from TCU dominated the top winners' circle. The competition in the areas of magazine, newspaper, outdoor, television, radio, promotional and direct mail were judged on the basis of creative concepts and execution by four advertising creative professionals from across the nation.

This was the first time in the Ad Club's history that a single university "swept the competition," according to Ad Club officer Jack Raskopf. The awards included:

- Best of show to Margie Adkins, professor of graphic design, for her "Images of Texas" booklet promoting Arthur Meyerson Photography of Houston;
- Best of show in the student design division to Kevin Gardner, senior advertising and public relations major who is advertising manager for the Daily Skiff, for his four-color ad promoting Fort Worth's excursion railroad, The Tarantula;
- An ADDY, the top award in its division, to Lewis Glaser, assistant professor of graphic arts, for his entry in the special event material category;
- Silver award for design and copy of the TCU annual report to Judy Oelfke Smith, assistant director of publications, and John Ohendalski, director of editorial services;
- A bronze award to John Maddox, publications assistant, and David Van Meter, editorial assistant, for their design and copy, respectively, of the athletic department's newspaper entry.

Other awards in various categories were presented to Margie, Lewis and Kevin.

Thirteen communication graphics and advertising/public relations students won awards in the student design division. Graphic communication major Andre-Michael Le was awarded six of the top ADDY trophies. Other student ADDY winners included Shannon Dunbar, Krystal Baker and K.K. Ward.

Winners in the professional competition are eligible to enter their winning presentation at the next competitive level, which includes agencies and clients from most of the Southwest. Winners at that level move on to compete in the prestigious national ADDY awards competition. Last year Lewis' entry was the only one from the Fort Worth show to win a national ADDY award.

PSI CHI TO HOST REGIONAL CONFERENCE

When some 100 psychology students and psychologists from a four-state region assemble in the Student Center Friday and Saturday for an honor society conference, they will hear Dr. Stephen Davis' remarks on "Rats, Type A Behavior, Lead Exposure, Fear of Death, and Some Famous Psychologists: Prescription for Success." He will speak during an 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. luncheon Saturday in the Woodson Room.

Non-members may register to attend the program and any of the Saturday conference sessions. The University's chapter of Psi Chi, the national honor society for psychology, will host the event for the fourth time.

Davis, who chairs the division of psychology at Emporia State University in Kansas, is an animal learning specialist who also conducts research in the areas of cheating behavior, person perception and Type A behavior. He received his Ph.D. here in 1972 and has remained active in Psi Chi as an adviser, mentor and officer. Currently he chairs a task force for the American Psychological Society and serves on the board of directors of the American Association of Applied and Preventive Psychology. He is a past divisional officer of the American Psychological Association, Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology and other state and regional organizations.

Psi Chi adviser Michael Robinson has praised Davis for his efforts to involve students in research and pre-professional activity. "In the last 15 years, his students have won 30 awards in research competitions, including the Psi Chi's J.P. Guildford award for the best undergraduate research paper in the nation," Michael noted. Davis also has shared authorship of more than 120 scientific articles with his students.

Presenters from the University's psychology department include:

- Jimmy Flint and Sylvia West, "The Ring Toss Task: Motivational Deficiencies?";
- Scott Barbay, T.D. Schmanke and T.M. Barth, "Early MK-801 Treatment Prevents the Reinstatement of Forelimb Placing Deficits Following Unilateral Cortical Lesions in the Rat";
- Bethany Marks, L.S. Young and T.M. Barth, "Tactile Extinction Following Unilateral Lesions in the Rat Anteromedial Cortex: The Effects of a Contralateral Cue";
- Cherylynne Johnson, "Sexual Discrimination in the Hiring Process: A Review of the Literature";
- Takayuki Nakata, Steven Cole and Maria Luisa Garcia, "Intrinsic Motivation: Minorities' Reaction to Success and Failure Feedback".

Kathleen Thorp, a freshman majoring in psychology, also will present a research paper during the Psi Chi conference.

In addition to their research, Michael's Psi Chi affiliates roll up their sleeves to conduct behind-the-scenes conference fund raising through stocking and marketing "Pink Freud" T-shirts and staffing an unorthodox "biorhythm" booth at Fort Worth's Oktoberfest. Proceeds have enabled them to underwrite the 1993 gathering of students and professors from Kansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas colleges and universities.

Psi Chi organizes conferences, according to Michael, to provide students with an arena for presenting original, refereed work to peers and established scholars. Psi Chi was founded in 1929 during the Ninth International Congress of Psychology at Yale University.

Registration fee is $15 per person. Further details and an agenda are available by calling Ext. 7410.

Self-Study Report

Reaffirmation Committee Completes Work on Campus

The Reaffirmation Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools was on campus Feb. 1 and 2 to conduct interviews and examine documents for its evaluation of all areas of TCU's operation. On Wednesday, Feb. 3, the committee met with the Chancellor, vice chancellors, the Self-Study Steering Committee, and Dr. Paul King, Chair of the Faculty Senate, to present a summary of its report.

The full written report is now being edited by Dr. Melvyn D. Schiavelli, chair of the reaffirmation committee. After final committee approval, the report will be sent to the Southern Association, which will forward the report to the university. If necessary, the university has an opportunity to respond to the report prior to its presentation to the SACS Committee on Criteria and Reports. If the process moves quickly, the "C and R" Committee could recommend reaffirmation as early as June 1993. Final vote on reaffirmation would occur in December at the annual meeting of the Delegate Assembly of the SACS Commission on Colleges. The commission is comprised of the chief executives of all the colleges and schools of the Southern Association.

Reaffirmation Committee Praises the University

Dr. Melvyn D. Schiavelli, chair of the reaffirmation committee and provost of the College of William and Mary, praised the university at the final meeting of the committee with the university administration. He stated that the fact that the work of the committee went so smoothly and that committee members were able to finish their work and retire "at the normal hour" each evening was testimony to the exceptional quality of TCU as an institution of higher education.

Earlier, Dr. Schiavelli mentioned to members of the Steering Committee that the reaffirmation committee found the self-study reports to be an accurate reflection of the university as confirmed by the on-campus interviews and the documents examined by the committee. The self-study, he indicated, clearly pointed the way to areas of the university that needed attention and for which the reaffirmation committee's expertise and advice was sought.

He also said the committee was particularly pleased to see the high involvement of the faculty in the self-study process. Reaffirmation committees often visit campuses where administrators run the self-study. He said the committee was impressed with the contribution of the faculty and praised them for their dedication. He applauded the administration for seeking wide faculty input in the self-study process.

Steering Committee Thanks the University Community

Literally hundreds of individuals were involved in some way in the process of self-study at TCU over the past eighteen months. It was a tremendous effort on behalf of faculty, students, alumni, administrators, and staff that has brought this process to completion. The Steering Committee wishes to express its thanks and great appreciation to all those who contributed their time and effort to this critical task for the university.

Thanks to all who contributed!
