LINK HOLDS NEW PROFESSORSHIP

The John Biggs Professorship of Ranch Management, newly established by a major gift from the E. Paul and Helen Buck Waggoner Foundation, will be held by Jim Link, associate director of the University's Ranch Management Program.

The professorship pays tribute to the late John Biggs, who was trustee and general manager of the W.T. Waggoner Estate of Vernon. Ranch Management Director John Merrill described Biggs as "well respected and much beloved by his fellow cattlemen." In expressing thanks to Electra Waggoner Biggs (widow of Biggs), to other family members and to the foundation, John pointed out, "This endowed professorship will keep his name and spirit alive and well and working for our industry for generations to come."

A native of Sherman, Biggs was a graduate of Virginia Military Institute and served in the U.S. Army as a lieutenant colonel stationed in Australia during World War II. He received the Legion of Merit decoration.

Biggs' cattle operations for the Waggoner estate specialized in commercial Herefords in Wichita, Archer, Baylor, Knox, Wilbarger and Foard counties. He served as president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association from 1956 to 1958. He also was a director of First National Bank of Fort Worth, Waggoner National Bank of Vernon and First Wichita National Bank of Wichita Falls, and advisory director of First National Bank at Seymour and had been president of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce.

Jim joined the Ranch Management faculty as assistant director in 1976 and was named associate director in 1989. Holder of a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from Kansas State Teachers College, he earned his Ranch Management certificate here in 1972 and his TCU M.B.A. in 1980. Prior to coming here, Jim had been a trust administrator for El Paso National Bank and later assistant vice president and manager of the ranch management department of Oppenheimer Industries, Inc.

Active in community affairs, he has been president of the board of the Crowley Independent School District, a member of the executive committee of the North Texas Area Association of School Boards and a board member of the Tarrant County Education District. Jim also is president of Southwest Tarrant County Homeowners Association and past president of Fort Worth Farm and Ranch Club.

The Biggs professorship is the second such position in the program. The Burnett Ranches Professorship, held by John, was endowed early in 1992 by the Anne Burnett and Charles Tandy Foundation to honor the ranches established by pioneer Texas cattleman Burk Burnett.

EMMITT SMITH RECRUITS AFROTC CADETS

Cadets from the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps detachment will hit the ground working as volunteers with the second annual Emmitt Smith Football Camp on campus June 24-27 and June 28-July 1.

Smith recruited the cadets so campers, ranging from 8 to 18 years of age, could meet older students who are preparing for careers outside the sports world and become aware of the military's college-based officer training programs.

"Many of the kids who attend camp don't have the financial resources or the opportunity for an athletic scholarship to continue their education or pursue a career," Smith commented. "Therefore, the Air Force provides an excellent alternative for youngsters to receive an education and develop a career. I feel fortunate to have the Air Force cadets involved with our camp, getting their message out to our campers."

Each day, three cadets will provide yeoman service as they sling hash and help with other routine activities -- thereby encountering campers on an informal basis, according to Capt. Davis Holloway, information officer for the detachment.

FOUR FROM HARRIS COLLEGE HONORED

Several Harris College of Nursing faculty and alumni were honored May 20 at the annual dinner meeting of Texas Nurses' Association, District 3. Faculty members Marsha Cox received the graduate school scholarship to continue her Ph.D. studies at Texas Woman's University and Carolyn Spence Cagle was reinstated as a member of the board of directors for 1993-94. Carolyn also was recognized for her recent election as a member of the nominating committee for Texas Nurses' Association and as a Texas delegate to the American Nurses' Association meeting in Washington, D.C., in June.

Two recent Harris College graduates also received awards. Ingrid Hinojosa, a December 1992 graduate currently working at John Peter Smith Hospital in maternity services, received the Rookie of the Year Award for her enthusiastic involvement in the governmental affairs committee of District 3. Margie Dorman-O'Donnell, employed in nursing administration at John Peter Smith, received the presidential award for her long-standing involvement in a variety of local and state Texas Nurses' Association activities.

FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

A member of the faculty since 1977, Joe Lipscomb will begin a three-year term as finance and decision sciences chairman with the fall semester's opening. Joe, interim chair in 1991, is a Texas A&M graduate and earned M.B.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Houston. A graduate of the School of Mortgage Banking, he has directed TCU's real estate program since 1985.

Charles Lord, who joined the faculty in 1987, has accepted a three-year reappointment as psychology department chairman. Named associate editor of Social Cognition earlier this year, the former Princeton faculty member was on the editorial board of Journal of Psychology and Social Psychology in 1991-92. Recent studies by Charles, a graduate of the University of Rhode Island and Stanford University, have been published in the Basic and Applied Social Psychology and Psychological Inquiry.

FRYE RECEIVES ABBOTT AWARD

Bob Frye of English has added to his long list of teaching awards the T.A. Abbott Award for Faculty Excellence, presented by the Division of Higher Education of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Bob, who will receive $1,000 and an engraved plaque, was chosen from 10 nominees submitted by colleges and universities related to the Christian Church.

A native of Plainview, Bob earned his undergraduate degree at Wayland Baptist College in 1961, then completed the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Tennessee. He joined the TCU faculty in 1966 and has been named Mortar Board "Top Prof," received the Honors Faculty Recognition Award, Faculty Award for Excellence in Teaching, Black Faculty and Staff Caucus Recognition Award, TCU House of Representatives "Teaching Excellence Award," Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Teaching and honorary membership in Golden Key National Honor Society.

He also has won the Burlington Northern Foundation Teaching Award, has been president of South Central College English Association and has been named to Who's Who in American Education.

The Abbott Award is named for a Disciples pastor who attended Christian University, now Culver-Stockton College in Missouri, and served on its board of trustees for 20 years. The award was presented to Ken Lawrence in 1987.

BRITE OFFERS D.MIN. IN HOMILETICS

At a time when enrollment in doctoral programs in ministerial studies is declining nationwide, Brite Divinity School has instituted one that has drawn a lot of attention even before it has been publicized. The new Doctor of Ministry in Homiletics degree will be in place beginning this fall for a maximum of 12 students. Though it hadn't been officially announced, Brite had received more than 80 inquiries about the program by June 1.

Bryan Feille, director of the Doctor of Ministry Program, said he had learned in discussions with pastors and congregations that preaching is their biggest concern.

The new degree is designed to equip ministers for excellence in the preaching ministry. Aims of the program are to help ministers increase knowledge of homiletics and preaching, build on current skills in preaching and interpretation, understand the congregations to which they preach and gain knowledge and self-awareness as pastor/preacher/person.

The degree is designed for persons who already hold the Master of Divinity degree or its equivalent, who have been in the preaching ministry for at least three years and plan to continue in ministry during their studies.

Major professors in the program will be Joey Jeter, Granville and Erlene Walker Professor of Preaching at Brite, and Bryan, who holds the Harold Glen Brown Lectureship in Pastoral Ministry.

The degree requires successful completion of 32 semester hours of academic work, including nine semester hours of high-level graduate courses in preaching and 12 semester hours of selected classes in biblical studies, theology, history of Christianity, pastoral care, ethics and church in society. Also required are preaching labs. Feille said such a lab would be offered each summer under the direction of a nationally known preacher.

Tuition grants equal to 60 percent of tuition are available to all students.

Most courses will be offered in the late spring and early summer, Bryan said, as well as special courses on Mondays during the fall semester. The doctoral students must maintain a 3.25 grade point average in order to graduate.

JOURNALISM HOSTS WORKSHOP

Nineteen area minority high school students are on campus to take part in the 14th annual Urban Journalism Workshop, which continues through June 24 and is hosted by the journalism department. Thirteen students are from Fort Worth schools, three from Arlington, two from Duncanville and one from Stephenville.

Sponsored by the Dow Jones Newspaper Fund, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and The Dallas Morning News, the workshop introduces students to many aspects of newspaper production, including interviewing, writing, editing and page layout. Students will spend one day at the Star-Telegram's downtown offices and production facility on Highway I-20 and also will have a picnic and trip to the Fort Worth Zoo.

The students will produce a newspaper. Closing event of the 12-day workshop will be an awards banquet June 24. A 1992 participant, Stella Bernardo of Duncanville, received a $1,000 college scholarship from the Dow Jones Newspaper Fund as one of eight winners in the fund's national writing competition. Her story on increasing teen-age violence, which ran in the workshop newspaper, helped her win the scholarship.

Full-time workshop faculty will be Anjetta McQueen and Raul Reyes from the Star-Telegram and Selwyn Crawford, John Yearwood and Robyn Fisher from the Dallas News. Visiting faculty will include 23 specialty writers and editors from the Star-Telegram and three from the News. TCU staff members are Pat Gordon, director; Charlene Blair, assistant director; Dick Lane, photography director; Debra Whitecotton, production supervisor; Beth Aine Bollinger, assistant production supervisor; and Michelle Smith and Jeff Guerrero, dorm counselors.

ODOM HONORED BY NCJW

Keith Odom of English was honored May 20 by the Fort Worth chapter, National Council of Jewish Women, for his eight years of service in selecting rare books and collectibles from among the thousands of volumes donated to the chapter's annual Book Fair.

Keith and Dr. Jerry Mitchell, retired Fort Worth ophthalmologist who also is a Book Fair volunteer, were honorees at a chapter luncheon, where they received plaques from Robin Nagle, 1993 Book Fair chairwoman.

NOTES ON FOLKS

The Journal of Drug Education's most recent issue includes an article by Jennifer Peel (psychology Ph.D., 1992), Sandra Dees (IBR) and Don Dansereau (psychology) entitled "Identifying the best scenario for using schematic organizers as integration tools for alcohol-related information."

Bill Moncrief (marketing) presented two papers titled, "Issues in International Selling" and "Using Role Plays in Sales Management" at the Academy of Marketing Sciences conference in Miami in May.

Journalism chairman Anantha Babbili is one of 20 persons from across the nation invited to participate in the 9th annual Leadership Institute for Journalism and Mass Communication Education. To be held at Columbia University under the sponsorship of its Freedom Forum Media Studies Center, the June 20-25 program will include sessions conducted by outstanding leaders of higher education and the media as well as various specialists.

A new book on health assessment for nursing students and practicing nursing, Practical Guide to Health Assessment Through the Life Span, has just been published by the F.A. Davis Company. Co-authors are Mildred Hogstel and Rhonda Keen-Payne (nursing).

NOTES ON FOLKS

Monica Mendez-Grant (student activities) has been appointed to the scholarship selection and education committees of the Fort Worth Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. She also represented the University at the New Professional Institute at Memphis State University June 2-6.

Former Fulbright Fellow Carolyn Durham (modern languages and literatures) was an invited guest at the recent 46th-anniversary celebration of the Fulbright exchange program, a tribute to founder Sen. William Fulbright on his 88th birthday. Carolyn, whose 1989 Fulbright-Hays Award provided her first opportunity to conduct research in Brazil, took her daughter, philosophy major Diana Durham, as her guest. President Bill Clinton, Albert Gore Sr. and soprano Anna Moffo as well as Fulbright himself were part of the program at a Georgetown hotel in the District of Columbia. Carolyn is a member of the Fulbright Association, an organization for alumni and friends of the program.

Nowell Donovan (geology) recently gave a talk at the annual evening banquet of the Fort Worth Geological Society. His subject was "Hutton's Heroes," a lighthearted look at the origins of geological science.

With Art Busbey and geology graduate students Courtney McElmoyl and Randy Hosey, Nowell led a one-day field trip for members of the University of Michigan geology department to visit the Slick Hills in southern Oklahoma. One of the chief objectives was to examine the world's smallest oil field, which measures approximately one foot across and eight inches deep.

The geology department faculty recently hosted 30 sixth-graders from the Episcopal School of Wichita Falls. According to Nowell, the visiting students registered special interest in dinosaur remains and the Oscar Monnig Meteorite Collection.

Graduate student Samantha Sloan (speech communication) was honored as outstanding graduate teaching assistant by the department during an end-of-year awards banquet.

Timothy Barth (psychology) and Driss Boussaoud, M.D. and Steven Wise, M.D., both of the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), are co-authors of an article, "Effects of gaze on apparent visual responses of frontal cortex neurons," in the current issue of the journal Experimental Brain Research. Tim and Troy Schmanke (psychology graduate student) presented a poster, "The Effects of Amphetamine on Somatosensory Function After Cortical Lesions" at the recent Corpus Christi convention of the Southwestern Psychological Association.

At the Southwestern and Rocky Mountain Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual meeting in Albuquerque, N.M., Tim, Troy and other faculty members, students and alumni represented the University's psychology department. Papers presented within the psychological science area included "The Effects of Haloperidol and Scopolamine on Amphetamine-Induced Increases in Ascorbic Acid in the Rat Caudate" by Rod Saponjic (graduate student), Kathyrne Mueller and Paul Kunko (psychology Ph.D., 1991); "The Role of Nucleus Accumbens and Caudate Nucleus in Amphetamine-Induced Locomotor Stereotypy," Doug and Kathyrne; and "Amphetamine Facilitates Recovery of Motor but Not Sensory Function Following Cortical Damage in the Rat," Troy and Tim. Rod received an honorable mention for his paper, and Doug was elected secretary of the organization's psychology division. Tim organized and took part in a technical symposium on recovery of function after central nervous system damage and presented his paper on "NMDA System and Recovery."
