PASTORAL CARE CENTER TURNS 25

Brite Divinity School's Pastoral Care and Training Center will celebrate its 25th anniversary tomorrow (Wednesday) with a reception at the center and a dinner in the Student Center ballroom.

The invitation-only reception and dinner also will honor center founder Charles F. Kemp, emeritus distinguished professor of pastoral care and pastoral psychology at Brite. A member of Brite faculty from 1957 to 1979, he has written 19 books. His most recent work on pastoral care is The Caring Pastor.

The center was established in the fall of 1968 on Rogers Avenue behind University Christian Church and is one of few seminary-associated pastoral counseling centers accredited by the American Association of Pastoral Counselors. Advanced students may receive AAPC credit when they serve as faculty-supervised counselors to individuals, couples or families at the center, which is now located at 2828 W. Lowden.

According to Charles, more than 200 ministers have completed the center's counselor training program, ministering to more than 6,000 community members. Graduates of the center now serve in 30 states and represent eight denominations.

At the dinner, Charles will make a brief presentation, "Reflections on a Caring Tradition." The evening's guest speaker will be Dr. Howard Clinebell, emeritus professor at the School of Theology in Claremont, Calif. He will discuss the problems and possibilities of pastoral counseling in the 21st Century.

Clinebell also will conduct a continuing education workshop on empowering a congregation as a spiritually centered well-being center Thursday at University Christian Church. Reservations for that event can be made at Ext. 7580 through tomorrow.

CAREER FAIR SCHEDULED NOV. 8-12

Nearly 100 businesses and organizations will be on hand Nov. 8-12 for Career Week 1993, sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement Center. With a theme of "Meet Your Future," Career Week will offer various seminars and workshops for students from the freshman class through the graduate level. Students also will have an opportunity to interact with representatives from industry, government and academia who will staff booths each day in the Student Center lounge from noon until 5 p.m.

"The purpose of the fair is to give students the opportunity to get valid career information in a non-threatening way," explained Carolyn Ulrickson, Career Center director.

The fair will focus on different areas each day including business, health professions, human services and arts/communication. The engineering firm of Freese & Nichols will be on hand as the Career Center launches a new effort to include the area of engineering. Also new this year will be an entire day devoted to graduate and professional schools with more than a dozen institutions expected on campus Friday.

Business downsizing in recent years has made career fairs popular with employers because they can see a large number of students in one day, explained Ginger Nicholas, Career Center assistant director and Career Week coordinator. She added that such events are beneficial to students, too, allowing them to learn about a variety of job assignments within a given organization. "It's also an incredible opportunity for students to discuss part-time opportunities and internship possibilities with the firms," she said.

Ginger urged faculty members to encourage students to attend Career Week. "The impact that faculty have on students is tantamount. A brief word from a faculty member can influence a student to attend," she added.

A schedule of events is available from the Career Planning and Placement Office, Ext 7860.

'INTO THE STREETS' VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT

"Into the Streets," an all-day event designed to introduce more students to thoughtful community service, will link the University to other participating campuses across the country Saturday. After students spend several hours volunteering where help is needed, designers of the program hope the learning experience will challenge them to volunteer on a regular basis. Work assignments will focus on family issues and the homeless.

Coordinated by the Alcohol and Drug Education program, the effort also involves other University offices and student organizations.

Participating students will meet at 9 a.m. in the Rickel Building for a general orientation, then go in groups to designated places of service. At 2 p.m. they will reconvene in Rickel to evaluate the day.

Faculty and staff members are invited to facilitate the reflection and evaluation portion, to indicate their intended participation by calling Ext. 7100 and to attend an orientation meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday in Rickel. The meeting location will be posted inside the building on Thursday.

"Into the Streets" began in 1990 during a Virginia summit conference of 77 students and representatives from national coalitions, non-profit institutions, local and national service agencies, universities, colleges and student community service programs. Funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the conference resulted in a plan "to channel the positive energy of students across the nation into a reflective and diverse service experience." With further support from the foundation pilot programs began on 115 campuses. Participating schools have included Stanford, Emory, Rice and Kansas State universities, and the Harvard Business School.

RADFORD CHAIR HOLDER WILL LECTURE

Susan Jarratt, holder of the Lillian Radford Chair of Rhetoric and Composition, will deliver her inaugural lecture Nov. 11 in the Faculty Center. Sponsored by Sigma Tau Delta, the undergraduate English honor society, the lecture will begin at 4 p.m. following a 3:30 p.m. reception.

Endowed in 1985, the Radford Chair was initially held by Winifred Bryan Horner, who retired earlier this year.

Known in United States academic circles for her work in women's studies and the history of rhetoric, Susan will discuss "Rhetoric: What Is It? Who Has It? Who Needs It?" She will use slides to examine the rhetoric of public imagery and other aspects of public rhetoric, drawing from TCU Daily Skiff editorials and contrasting the news media's visual treatment of First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton with its imagery of men.

Susan came to TCU in August from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, where she was associate professor and director of college composition. She earned bachelor's and Ph.D. degrees with honors from the University of Texas at Austin and the master's degree from the University of Texas at San Antonio. Before joining Miami's faculty in 1985, she served as assistant instructor and assistant director of UT-Austin's freshman English program and was a University Fellow there. While at Miami, she earned a National Endowment for the Humanities summer stipend.

Susan's book, Rereading the Sophists: Classical Rhetoric Refigured, was published in 1991 and earned honorable mention in competition for the Modern Language Association's Mina P. Shaughnessy Prize. Her most recent work, Rhetoric, Democracy and Space of Appearance, considers connections between visual theory and rhetoric in several historical periods.

Susan has written a number of articles and book chapters dealing with feminism and composition. She has lectured at academic institutions and conferences throughout the United States and visited Turin, Italy, last summer to present a paper at an international conference on the history of rhetoric.

HEALTH ENRICHMENT WEEK UNDER WAY

The impact of individual decision-making for or against a healthy life and the risk of substance abuse are illustrated in the casino theme "It's Your Deal" during the 1993 Health Enrichment Week for students.

The R.O.A.D. (Responsibility of Alcohol and Drugs) Workers group has organized a series of activities that began yesterday (Monday) on campus with an address by Barbara Babb, R.N. Hosted by Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Babb described a program on drinking and driving called "Make the Right Call."

A health fair will be held from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. today (Tuesday) in the ballroom. On Thursday, R.O.A.D. Workers will host "the world's largest aerobics class" at 5:15 p.m. in the Rickel Building, followed by a casino night from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. The Word of Truth Gospel Choir will perform at noon Friday in the lounge. The week of special-emphasis programming concludes Saturday as R.O.A.D. Workers coordinate with other offices and student groups to recruit volunteers for the all-day "Into the Streets" service program.

COMPUTER FIRM MAKES AWARDS

Senior computer science major Jonathan Morgan has been awarded an $8,000 scholarship by Computer Associates International Inc. Jonathan is one of 10 U.S. students who received the award under the firm's New Leaders Scholarship Program.

Recipients were chosen from among 50 universities having accredited computer science departments. Outstanding sophomore and junior computer science students were nominated by their universities based on individual need and academic performance. The purpose of the awards is to assist and encourage American university students cited as new leaders in computer sciences or related engineering fields.

As one of 10 finalists, Jonathan also will receive a $2,000 gift certificate from CompUSA and Computer Associates software. Fellow computer science major Jennifer Burson, named a semifinalist in the competition, will receive a $2,000 gift certificate and software.

The computer science department's Bachelor of Science degree program is accredited by the Computer Science Accreditation Commission of the Computing Sciences Accreditation Board.

Computer Associates, a software company employing 7,000 people worldwide, sells integrated systems, data base management, business applications and application development for mainframe, midrange and desktop computers.

WRITING PROGRAM TO SPONSOR LUNCHES

The University Writing Program will sponsor two November brown bag lunches for faculty members on the teaching of writing. Lemonade, coffee and cookies will be provided.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) faculty members of all disciplines are invited to join in a discussion on grading and responding to student writing in Student Center 214. On Nov. 16, a discussion in Student Center 203 will focus on designing and evaluating essay exams.

Follow-up discussions on the same topics will be held in the Faculty Center the day after each brown bag (Thursday and Nov. 17). Brown bags and follow-up discussions are held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Those planning to attend are asked to call Ext. 7240.

ASIAN STUDENT GROUP CONTINUES

The United Asian Community has begun its second year as a campus organization for international and Asian-American students. Sociologist Morrison Wong serves as its adviser, and Christina Chang is president.

Plans for the current academic year include a celebration of Asian Week in January and, Christina stated, "making the Asian population at TCU known, adding to the diversity, providing a cultural influence."

Bimonthly meetings are held in the Student Center, with the next meeting scheduled for 4 p.m. Thursday.

TCU TO HOST STUDENT DIETITIANS

Some 100 dietetics students and their sponsors from across Texas are expected on campus Friday and Saturday for the annual convention of the Texas Student Dietetics Association.

Texas is the only state with such an organization, according to Mary Ann Gorman, nutrition and dietetics chairwoman. Four of its five officers are TCU students. They are Traci Upp, president; Tori Cuccia, vice president; Erin Shanafelt, treasurer; and Caroline Holmes, secretary.

Speaker for the opening night's dinner in the Student Center will be Kathy Helm, Registered Dietitian and entrepreneurial nutritionist who is author of several books. She will discuss "Business Opportunities for Dietitians."

Speakers for Nov. 6 will be Linda Schuester, president of the Texas Dietetic Association who is both registered and licensed as a dietitian, and Nina Cochran, R.D., who is an ambassador of the Texas Dietetic Association.

CAUCUS PLANS HARAMBEE FESTIVAL

The Black Student Caucus will bring music, dance and a sampling of ethnic foods to the Student Center lounge Wednesday. The occasion is Harambee, a unity celebration named with a Swahili word that translates as "coming together" or "Let us pull together."

Vendors of Afro-centric books, clothing, gifts, recordings and other items will show their wares all day. Marriott Food Service will cater a buffet of African and African-American foods, to open at 11 a.m.

During the noon hour, students Tamika Banks and Tequila Barnes will dance, and the Word of Truth Gospel Choir will sing. At 1 p.m. a band will perform. Faculty and staff members as well as students are welcome to attend, according to Wanda Mosley and Deidra Crawford of the caucus.

ISLAMIC SERVICE WILL BE HELD

Hatim Hamidullah will lead "An Islamic Service of Prayer Understood" at noon tomorrow (Wednesday) in Robert Carr Chapel. Others participating will include Yushau Sodiq of the religion faculty and Khaled Al-Rayes, president of the Muslim Student Association. The service is open to all faculty and staff members as well as students and the public.

Hamidullah is the Imam, or elected spiritual leader, of the Masjid Hassan, one of two mosques in Fort Worth.

Because of the interfaith nature of the service, according to Brite student and University Ministries intern Terry Inman, the traditional format will vary from that observed in a mosque.

As described in an Islamic prayer book, the performance of prayer is both a physical and a spiritual exercise. "It is not only reciting words in praise of Allah, the Most High, but it also involves a mental attitude. The first condition of a prayerful mind is humility, a feeling of submission. This feeling must be maintained while praying."

HALL OF FAME HONORS M.B.A STUDENT

Gregory Jon Moehlis, a Master of Business Administration degree candidate in the Neeley School, has been honored by the Texas Business Hall of Fame Foundation and awarded a $5,000 academic scholarship.

The foundation inducts top scholars from Texas colleges and universities as well as business leaders who live or work in the state. Past business community honorees have included Mary Kay Ash, Ross Perot, the late Amon Carter Sr., Stanley Marcus and Trammell Crow. Schools nominate their top scholars for consideration by the Hall of Fame, which interviews leading candidates and presents cash scholarships to winning students.

Among the latest in a long line of Hall of Fame honorees from TCU, the Fort Worth resident was one of 21 students selected this year. Gregory graduated from Iowa State University in 1988 with a Bachelor of Science degree in aerospace engineering. He was employed by General Dynamics as an engineer on the Advanced Tactical Fighter project where he was involved in the proposal process for the next-generation fighter jet.

Later, as a subcontractor for the defense firm, Gregory conducted an extensive aircraft performance trade study and optimization analysis for the preliminary design effort in the AX program. His computer-assisted research included analysis of the mission, maneuverability and aircraft carrier suitability of the proposed advanced fighter/attack aircraft.

ALUMNI TO MEET IN CORPUS CHRISTI

Alumni and friends from the Corpus Christi area will meet Thursday for "An Evening with a Professor" in the home of Mark and Mary Elmore Williams. Speaker for the complimentary event will be Rick Boettger, adjunct professor of international business strategy.

"The National Debt: Fact or Farce" will be his topic for the program.

GAME-WATCHING PARTY SET

East Texas alumni and friends will gather in Longview to watch Saturday afternoon's game between TCU and Texas Tech University. The game-watching party and potluck lunch in Longview will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Brenda and Michael Liverman.

Sponsoring the event is the TCU Longview alumni chapter, headed by Phil and Carolyn Cupp Wilson, members of the Class of 1969.

ROUND-UP WILL BE IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City's American Royal Building will be the setting Nov. 9 for the "TCU American Royal Round-Up." Planned for TCU alumni and friends along with parents of students currently enrolled, the event is sponsored by the Kansas City alumni chapter. Its chairman is Monty Spradling, Class of '84 member from Prairie Village, Kan.

A 5:30 p.m. barbecue buffet will be followed by a 7 p.m. rodeo and country western concert featuring John Michael Montgomery. The $15-per-person reservations for the entire evening or $7.50 reservations for the buffet only can be made through the alumni office.

NEELEY SCHOOL TO HOST EXECUTIVES

The Neeley School will host four guests in its executive-in-residence program during November. Lon Winton of Union Pacific Resources will lecture Thursday to an evening M.B.A. class. AT&T's Sara Jane Koperski will speak to students Nov. 11. Judy Apel from IBM will be in class Nov. 16, and Clark Johnson of Pier 1 Imports will be on campus Nov. 22.

Winton, director of information services, joined Union Pacific in 1980 as manager of technical applications and later served as regional manager of information services at the company's Houston office.

As sales vice president for AT&T in Atlanta, Koperski directs efforts of a sales force that markets long-distance services to small- and medium-sized companies in 14 southern states. With AT&T since 1971, she directed corporate-level management of divestiture of the Bell operating companies in the early 1980s.

Apel assumed her responsibilities as general manager of the Dallas/Fort Worth office of IBM in 1991. Previously she was general manager of IBM's Central Plains area, regional manager in Minneapolis and manager of IBM's Enterprise Systems marketing. She joined IBM in 1968.

Chairman and chief executive officer of Pier 1 Imports, Johnson joined the retail firm as president in 1985. Earlier he was chairman and chief executive officer for MacGregor Golf Co., which was acquired in a leveraged buyout with Jack Nicklaus. Johnson has served on the TCU board of trustees since 1988.

The executive-in-residence program, begun in the early 1980s and made possible by an annual gift from the Tandy Corp., allows students to interact with business leaders.

ROBINSON WILL SPEAK NOV. 9

Nell Robinson, emeritus professor of nutrition and dietetics will speak at the Nov. 9 meeting of the TCU Woman's Club. "What's New in Nutrition" will be her topic.

The program will be in the first-floor lounge of Ed Landreth Hall, beginning at 11:45 a.m. Those who wish are encouraged to take a sack lunch, according to Helen Goldbeck, program chairman.

CAMPUS UNITY CONFERENCE SCHEDULED

The Division of Student Affairs' development committee will host a videoconference titled "We Can Get Along: A Blueprint for Campus Unity" Nov. 10 in Dan Rogers Hall 134. Presented by Black Issues in Higher Education and moderated by Julian Bond, the panel program will feature Jacqueline Fleming of Barnard College, Paul Shang of Colorado State University, Andrew Hacker of Queens College, Curtis Polk of the University of Texas at Austin and Gloria Romero of Loyola Marymount University.

Faculty and staff members are invited to the conference; those planning to attend are asked to call Ext. 7855.

TCU IN THE NEWS

El Informador Hispano, a Fort Worth Spanish-language newspaper, carried illustrated coverage of Mirta Toledo's Sept. 29-Oct. 1 art exhibition in its Oct. 1 issue.

"Achieving an Admired Organization: The Essential Elements of Communicating Nonprofits" is the title of an article by Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Lauer that is in the September/October issue of Nonprofit World. The article is the first in a six-part series prepared by Larry for the journal for The Society for Nonprofit Organizations.

Choir director Ron Shirey was pictured Oct. 7 in the Star-Telegram's Northwest Metro section in conjunction with the performance of the Richland and Haltom high school choirs in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The Oct. 10 event led by Ron, was a fund-raising program for the choirs' trip next year to Great Britain.

Dean Bob Garwell of the College of Fine Arts and Communication and Steven Breese (theatre) were shown in the Sept. 30 Star-Telegram Click section at the recent English tea held by the college's guild at the home of Mackye Rose.

"Purple Passion: Devoted family sees 23rd member study at TCU" was the Star-Telegram headline for an Oct. 9 feature on freshman Julia Ferguson and members of her family who have attended TCU since the late 1920s.

Lt. Col. Ann Lupton (Air Force ROTC) appeared as the featured guest for Channel 21's "Metroview" program Oct. 2, discussing women in the military, benefits of the Reserve Officer Training Corps' college programs and related issues.

A National Hispanic Institute recognition dinner, held on campus Sept. 30, received Star-Telegram coverage Oct. 1. Area representatives honored 61 local high school students who recently took part in the Texas Young Leader Conference, Lorenzo de Zavala Youth Legislative Session and Collegiate World Series.

"Oftentimes, parents are putting on an unbelievable amount of pressure," Career Center Director Carolyn Ulrickson told the Dallas Morning News in an Oct. 13 story titled "Parents can be asset in helping children find jobs."

Mark Toulouse (Brite) recently discussed the future of televangelism on a KRLD radio news program. At the conclusion of the discussion, Mark said despite recent scandals he believes televangelism is here to stay. "People live by their television sets in many respects. Many people who have been unable to be touched by or get in touch with a religious community near them are still going to seek outlets for their religious interests and televangelism will be there."

Journalism's Doug Newsom will write a communication plan for Fort Worth's All-America City Celebration, to be held June 24-July 4, 1994. During the 10-day "open house," residents will be encouraged to "vacation in their hometown," seeing many of the sights that out-of-town visitors see, according to the Oct. 15 issue of the Star-Telegram's Tarrant Business section.

TCU IN THE NEWS

"Route to a rout" was the caption in the Oct. 20 Star-Telegram for the color photo of the Frogs' Amy Marlar and an Oral Roberts University soccer player during the game that TCU won.

Quoted in the Oct 21 Star-Telegram, Coach Tut Bartz described the field for the 1993 Rolex championship as "among the most talented in recent memory." Six of the eight seeds in the singles rank were among the nation's top 54 men.

"TCU pair heads for nationals" was the caption for a photo of Frog tennis players Paul Robinson and David Roditi in a match in which they beat Texas players in the recent regional doubles championship here. The two, along with Stefan Figley, all qualifiers for the national competition in February, were included in Star-Telegram photos on Oct. 26.

"School's pollution project furthers pupils' science skills" was the headline Oct. 16 for the Star-Telegram feature on the project involving the School of Education with local schools and the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History. Financed by an NSF grant, the cooperative effort is coordinated by Laura Daly (education). The photo showed children at work on a project.

Recent issues of Novedades, a Spanish-language weekly newspaper published in Dallas, have carried articles on the Mirra Toledo art exhibition on campus; the projections of Stuart Youngblood (management) concerning temporary jobs and the restructuring of businesses in the United States; Joel Mitchell (physical education) sharing findings concerning unnecessary ingredients in sports drinks; and Mary Anne Gorman (nutrition and dietetics) commenting on the social and recreational benefits of congregate meal programs for senior citizens.

STAFF APPOINTMENTS

David Grebel, former director of the Community GoodGuy Program of Fort Worth, joined the staff Oct. 11 as printing services manager in the printing, postal and conference services division. The Baylor graduate holds two master's degrees from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, where he directed printing services in 1983-86. He was minister for Lakeview Baptist Church for three years.

Director of development for the American Cancer Society's Fort Worth-based Area VI in 1991-93, Richard Stein joined the development staff Sept. 20 as an annual fund officer. The 1985 Texas A&M graduate, active in the Fort Worth A&M Club, had been associated with the cancer organization since 1986.

NOTES ON FOLKS

The Tarrant Area Community of Churches (TACC) honored John Butler (University Ministries) with its "Ecumenist of the Year" award Oct. 28 during the organization's annual assembly held at University Christian Church. Rev. Liz Lamberth, interim executive director of TACC, noted John's work in helping to establish the Tarrant Interfaith Council and his ongoing commitment to both groups.

A special issue of Mexico's Tramoya theatre journal (Universidad Veracruzana) focused upon Latin American indigenous theatre has published two contemporary Mayan plays edited and annotated by Don Frischmann (modern languages and literatures). They are accompanied by his introductory essay "El Nuevo Teatro Maya de Yucatán y Chiapas: Grupos Sac Nicté y Sna Jtz'ibajom."

NOTES ON FOLKS

Lee Daniel (modern languages and literatures) recently attended the II Conferencia Internacional Sobre Cultura Yucateca: Colonización, Nación y Nacionalismo," held in Mérida, Yucatán. The conference was jointly sponsored by the Universidad de Yucatán and the University of Alabama. Lee presented an invited paper titled "Crónica del Mayab: Los pájaros negros del señor," dealing with one of Joaquín Bestard's most recent novels.

Efton Park (mathematics) organized and presided over a special session titled "Noncommutative Differential Geometry" at the American Mathematical Society meeting Oct. 22-23 in College Station. The session featured 13 speakers from all over the United States, including representatives from Harvard and the University of California at Berkeley.

Bob Cooter (education) recently served as a keynote speaker at two conferences for teachers hosted by the Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading. He spoke Oct. 23 at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos and at Angelo State University in San Angelo on Oct. 2. Two of Bob's articles have been published in the Mental Measurements Yearbook, 12th edition. They discuss the values of new informal instruments for measuring literary abilities in children.

Steve Sherwood (English/writing center) presented an essay titled "Environmentalism as Misanthrope: The Danger in Loving the Earth Too Much" at the International Conference on Representations of Love and Hate held Oct. 22-24 in Atlanta.

Mary Nell Kivikko (English/writing center) presented a paper titled "Taking Writing Center Strategies into the Classroom: Preparing Students and Teachers for the 21st Century with Collaborative Writing Skills" at the Southeastern Writing Centers Association Conference in Atlanta on Oct. 21-24.

Alan Shepard (English) and Colette Connelly (graduate student/English) attended the Group for Early Modern Cultural Studies Conference at the University of Oklahoma Oct. 8-10. Alan's paper was "Patten's The Expedition of Somerset . . . into Scotland as Colonialist Discourse: A(n)esthetizing the Violence"; Colette's was titled "Margaret Cavendish's Rhetorical Episteme: Proto-Feminism or Aristocratic Apology?"

A book co-authored by David Gunn (religion) was recently published by Abingdon Press. In Gender, Power & Promise: The Subject of the Bible's First Story, David and co-author Danna Nolan Fewell of the Perkins School of Theology in Dallas "seek an approach to biblical interpretation that promises to liberate women and men from, rather than reinforce, religious ideologies of male dominance."

Graduate student Thomas Mays (history) of Elliston, Va., often has re-enacted Civil War battles as a participant in living history. Now his Confederate persona takes celluloid form as he appears in the newly released film "Gettysburg." At the end of the first hour, Tom rides up on a horse to deliver a message to Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Judy Gans (music) judged the South Texas District National Association of Teachers of Singing Artist Auditions held at the University of Texas at Austin Oct. 16. North Texas district governor for the National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS), she will be the host/coordinator for the NATS Texoma Regional Conference to be held Nov. 11-13 at TCU.

George Brown (theatre) recently received the "best production" award from the South Eastern Theatre Conference for his direction of "Dance Bongo," a macabre West Indian drama by Errol Hill. The drama, which deals with the Trinidadian dance of the dead, was produced originally for the Island Center for the Performing Arts in St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands, where George was managing artistic director. The production has been chosen to participate in the Istanbul International Theatre Festival to be held in Turkey in 1995.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Members of the geology department recently have been on the lecture circuit. Ken Morgan gave three lectures in one day at Vanderbilt University, addressing audiences from its geology department and engineering school. His presentations were titled "Application of Remote Sensing to Geological Exploration," "Remote Sensing for Environmental Mapping" and "The Use of Computers in Geographical Information Systems: Applications to Urban Mapping."

Nowell Donovan addressed the local branch of the National Audubon Society, lecturing on "Birds, Rocks and the Old Red Sandstone." Subsequently he presented a paper to the geology department at the University of Oklahoma on "The Southern Oklahoma Archipelago — a tale of transgression, burial and resurrection." In a third presentation he spoke to the Scottish Clans of North Texas, relating "TCU at Edinburgh — Exploits of the Tartan Frogs." The Scottish Journal of Geology recently published Nowell's paper, "An evaporative imprint in the Middle Devonian of Southern Caithness, Scotland."

Steve Sherwood (English/writing center) presented a paper at the Rocky Mountain Writing Center Association-Rocky Mountain Modern Language Association meeting Oct. 14. Titled "Keeping a Safe Distance: Fostering Dependency-free Collaboration," the paper explored dependency relationships that sometimes develop in writing center settings.

Harris College's Pat Bradley and Rojann Alpers presented their research at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association held Oct. 24-27 in San Francisco. Pat had two presentations titled "The Impact of Home Visits on Pregnancy Outcomes: Measurement Issues" and "Students Learn Essential Community Health Concepts Through Home Health Care Placements." "Factors Influencing Gravidopuerperal Adolescents' Health Education Participation" was the title of Rojann's presentation.

Graduate students Dave Kuhne and Sue Hum presented papers Oct. 15 at the South Central Modern Language Association meeting in Austin. Dave's paper was titled "This Dog Won't Hunt: The Puzzling Case of the Puppy in the Book of the Duchess." Sue read a paper titled "Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde: Dreams, Meaning, and Authority."

An essay, "Farmer Boy: The Forgotten 'Little House' Book," an essay by Fred Erisman (English), has been published in Western American Literature. The article argues that Farmer Boy, although normally set apart from the other books in Laura Ingalls Wilder's series for children, is actually a necessary component in completing the picture of the westward movement that Wilder presents.

Graduate student Diana Shaffer (English) presented a paper "'Long ago was the then beginning to seem like now': Contingency and Transcendence in the Poetry of John Ashbery" at the annual meeting of the South Central Modern Language Association in Austin Oct. 15.
