CONFERENCE BOARD CEO IS DYESS LECTURER

Preston Townley, president and chief executive officer of The Conference Board, will speak as a guest of the Neeley School for the Earl E. Dyess Lecture Series Feb. 14-15.

The lectureship was established in 1982 by Houston businessman Jack Blanton Jr., president of Nicklos Drilling Company, to honor his late father-in-law, Earl E. Dyess of Fort Worth. The endowment enables the business school to bring a leader in the marketing field to campus annually to visit with students, faculty and the area business community.

The Conference Board conducts business research on key areas of the ever-changing business climate. Its monthly Consumer Confidence Survey and Help-Wanted Advertising Index are widely reported by the news media.

Founded in 1916, The Conference Board seeks to improve the business enterprise system and to enhance the contributions of business to society. This global business membership organization enables senior executives from all industries to explore and exchange ideas that influence and direct business policy and practices.

During his visit to TCU, Townley will speak to local business leaders, students and faculty members. Following a Feb. 14 luncheon address to key Fort Worth business leaders, he will lecture to and answer questions from students during an afternoon class. Townley will speak Feb. 15 on "Business and the New World Economy" during an invitation-only executive breakfast hosted by the Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center. Later he will be the guest of the business school faculty at a brown bag lunch.

Townley joined The Conference Board in 1988 after serving as dean of the Carlson School of Management at the University of Minnesota for four and a half years. He has directed a major restructuring of the board, reducing overall costs while increasing the organization's output. Townley also is credited with implementing a business discipline at the not-for-profit Conference Board that restored its operating surplus.

Previously Townley was associated with Procter & Gamble and General Mills Inc., where he rose through various marketing and management positions to become executive vice president of the Consumer Foods division.

A graduate of Harvard University, Townley served in Washington, D.C., as a White House Fellow. He also is a member of the board of overseers for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award.

NEW SERVICES, WORKSHOP OFFERED

Adult students' off-campus obligations frequently interfere with their access to the Writing Center during regular operating hours. Now faculty and staff members acquainted with adult students may refer them to an evening and weekend writing tutor and an upcoming Saturday morning forum/workshop.

Margaret Humphries has joined the Writing Center's staff on a part-time basis and is working with Sarah Schafer, extended education's adult student services coordinator. A former TCU adult student, Margaret also has worked with the Neeley School's Center for Productive Communication. While earning a bachelor's degree in journalism, granted in 1983, she emphasized English in her non-major studies.

Workshop participants may take their writing concerns — as well as ideas for future workshops — to the session, scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 19 in Sadler Hall 211.

Located within the extended education office area, Sadler 211 has been designated as a resource room and gathering place for the new adult student organization known as >Kappa Beta ("greater than 22"). Established in the fall, it offers support, friendship and fun for adult students. Sarah notes that students of traditional college age who have nontraditional commitments and "feel like adult students" also are welcome to participate.

Evening and weekend writing critique services, offered through May 13, are 5-7 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 10 a.m.-noon Saturdays, also in Sadler 211. Margaret may be reached at Ext. 7130 during those hours.

M.B.A. OPEN HOUSE IS SATURDAY

Prospective graduate business students are encouraged to attend a Master of Business Administration open house hosted by the Neeley School Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon.

The free public event will be held in Room 320 of Tandy Hall. Because seating is limited, the M.B.A. office requests that reservations be made by calling Ext. 7531.

William E. Greenwood, chief operating officer of Burlington Northern Railroad Co., will discuss the importance of an M.B.A. degree in today's competitive business environment.

The Neeley School offers both full-time and evening graduate studies. Students complete a full-time program in two years, while a three-year study plan is available for evening students.

SUPERFROG TO FACE BEAST OF BURDEN

A live camel may steal the show from the University's anthropomorphized mascot as students observe Super Frog's birthday from 9 p.m. Friday to 2 a.m. Saturday. The special guest will oblige partygoers with free rides outside the Student Center from 9 to 11 p.m.

Other highlights of the celebration, open to faculty and staff members as well as students, will include an hour by MTV and "Star Search" veteran Geoff Brown from 10 to 11 p.m. in the Student Center's main dining room, temporarily transformed into a comedy club. Elsewhere in the center, the reggae band Watusi will perform in the "Caribbean" Pit downstairs throughout most of the evening, while Alibi will provide country music in the ballroom, designated "Grand Southwestern Station" and outfitted with a velcro wall, "roller roper" and other amusements. Motion picture soundtrack music will fill the "Hollywood-style" Woodson Room, where browsers may inspect a movie poster collection. Painted pyramids will adorn the Student Center lounge.

TUCKER WILL DISCUSS ATHLETICS

Chancellor Bill Tucker will offer his views on "Into the Future: TCU Athletics" when he speaks Feb. 17 for the University staff luncheon. To begin at 11:45 a.m., the monthly event will be in the Student Center's Woodson Room.

Set at $5.75 per person, reservations are due by Feb. 14 to Michael Brooks, Box 32877.

Questions abound about the future of the Southwest Conference and other issues of athletics. Dr. Tucker, chairman of the Council of Presidents of the SWC institutions, can offer an overview about athletics with particular attention to private universities. He plays a major role in defining the future of intercollegiate athletics at TCU and will be available to answer questions following his presentation.

ENGLISH HOSTS GRADUATE SYMPOSIUM

An English department composition symposium February 19 will draw graduate students and faculty members from throughout Texas and neighboring states to hear lectures on "The Personal in Composition Studies." The program will be held in Moudy 141N. Registration will begin at 8:15 a.m. in front of Moudy auditorium.

Planned by TCU graduate students under the supervision of faculty members, the fourth annual day-long symposium will include morning lectures by alumnus Dr. Paul Heilker on "'Nothing Personal': Some Forays into the Personal in (My) Composition Pedagogy;" Dr. Kathleen Welch, University of Oklahoma, "Rhetoric/Writing/Electronic Cognition" and Jim Corder, English department, who will discuss "I'm Going to Be Personal Anyway."

Luncheon speaker will be TCU author/professor Winifred Horner, who will discuss "Personal Writing: Fact or Fiction." Afternoon talks will be given by Gary Tate, English department, on "The Problem of the Personal in Teaching Writing" and Dr. Victor Vitanza, University of Texas at Arlington on "...personally Against Authority."

The symposium's closing keynote address will be delivered by Radford Chairholder Susan Jarratt, who will discuss "When and Where I Enter: Histories of Persons in the Writing Classroom."

Textbooks from six publishers that helped fund the symposium will be on display. They include: The TCU Press, Southern Illinois University Press, SMU Press, St. Martin's Press and Harcourt Brace and Harper Collins college publishers.

Cost of the symposium is $25 for faculty members and $15 for graduate students. Additional information is available from Kathy Wolfe, Ext. 7240.

SNYDERS TO SAY 'IT'S LOVERLY!'

"It's Lovely!" will be the topic of Karl and Marion Snyder's presentation Feb. 14 for the Valentine luncheon of the TCU Woman's Club.

To begin at 11:45 a.m., the event will be in the Student Center's Woodson Room. Reservations, set at $7.50 per person, are due today (Tuesday) to Deanie Sewell in the controller's office.

Karl, who joined the English department faculty in 1942, was named emeritus professor when he retired in 1987. He and Marion have traveled extensively in England and Europe and the couple is well-known for their presentations to various groups.

Beginning at 11:15 a.m., shuttle vans will be available in the lot behind University Baptist Church.

ALUMNI COLLEGE ANNOUNCES TRIPS

Two trips, both starting in June, are on the agenda for the TCU Alumni College. Its program is open to alumni, friends and parents of students to add an educational element to their vacations.

Planned for June 9-12, "LBJ, A Texas President" will be led by Dr. Paul Boller, emeritus member of the history department who was TCU's initial LBJ Professor of U.S. History, and Jim Riddlesperger, associate professor of political science. Reservations are due by March 18 for the program that will include field trips to the LBJ Ranch, LBJ Library and Texas State Capitol as well as the historic Driskill Hotel. Cost is $250 per person.

Scotland native Nowell Donovan, who is the Charles B. Moncrief Professor of Geology, and his wife will lead "A Scottish Experience." Priced at $994 per person, excluding air fare, the June 26-July 2 tour will include reception and dinner at Clarendon Hotel in Edinburgh, a visit to Arthur's Seat and Holyrood Park, an all-day field trip to the Scottish Borders with stops at Abbotsford, Dryburgh Abbey and Smiholm Tower. Also included will be castles and the Scottish Highlands, dinner at Invercauld Arms Hotel in Braemar, a tour of Craigevar Castle and a tour of St. Andrews.

Reservations are due by April and can be made through the alumni office, Box 32921.

CAMP DAY '94 SET FOR THURSDAY

Representatives from nearly 30 summer camps will be on campus Thursday for Camp Day 1994 to interview students for seasonal employment.

Interviews will be conducted in the Rickel Center's Gym 1 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Camp Day is hosted by TCU's Career Planning and Placement Center.

Many camps have needs for a wide variety of positions ranging from cabin counselors and lifeguards to nurses and stable workers. Students from all majors are encouraged to apply. Working at a summer camp is an enjoyable way to meet people, get job experience and develop skills that future employers will find desirable, explained Jennifer Clough, Career Center assistant director.

"This is a great opportunity for students to find a summer job," Jennifer said. "Where else are they going to find 30 employers who will come to them with multiple job openings?"

BELL TO HOST ROUND TABLE

"Downsizing: Corporate Anorexia or Strategy for Growth?" will be the topic of a Thursday Human Resources Round Table coordinated by the Neeley School's Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center. The noon event is scheduled to take place at Bell Helicopter Textron and will be hosted by P.D. Shabay, Bell's vice president of human resources and administration.

A panel moderated by TCU management department chairman Bob Greer will discuss the issue of "rightsizing" organizations. The panel is made up of George Berger, Tandy Corp. human resources vice president; Roger Williams, Bell's director of employee relations; and Jude Olson, senior vice president of the human resource management consulting firm Drake Beam Morin Inc. Following the panel discussion, the group will tour Bell's final assembly plant and its Hall of Heritage.

The Human Resources Round Table is composed of human resource executives from 37 Metroplex organizations who gather quarterly to review and discuss issues of importance in the field. The round table is one of several services provided to the local business community by the Tandy American Enterprise Center.

COMPUTERS, WRITING ARE TOPICS

Dr. Cynthia Selfe, a national expert on computers and writing instruction, will discuss "Writing as Democratic Social Action in a Technological World" and "The Politics of the Interface" Thursday and Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Student Center Woodson Room.

An English professor and chairwoman of the humanities department at Michigan Technological University, Dr. Selfe is the author of seven books and serves as the editor of the journal Computers and Composition and as chairwoman of the National Council of Teachers of English's Committee on Instructional Technology.

According to Debbie Nash of English, Dr. Selfe's visit "provides an opportunity for the TCU writing community to contemplate both the uses to which computers can be put in teaching writing intensive courses and the facilities that can be used in teaching those courses."

Registration can be made by calling The Writing Center, Ext. 7221.

TROMBONE TRIO TO PLAY

The Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra Trombone Section will present its first-ever TCU concert Feb. 14 in Ed Landreth Auditorium as part of the University's Music Series. The free, public concert featuring solos and chamber music trios will begin at 7:30 p.m.

TCU music faculty member Dennis Bubert will begin the concert with a bass trombone rendition of Frigyes Hidas' Rhapsody. John Michael Hayes, who plays both euphonium and trombone, will perform J. Edouard Barat's Introduction and Dance on euphonium, followed by trombonist Ron Wilson's presentation of Arthur Pryor's "Thoughts of Love." Faculty member Janet Pummill will provide piano accompaniment for the solo performances.

Following an intermission, the trio will return to play George Osborn's arrangement of Three Transcriptions, Pergolesi/ Sauer's Sonata No. 4, Henri Vachey's Minuet and Allen Chase's Three Waltzes. The concert will conclude with Snosko-Borovsky's Scherzo, Op. 13.

Bubert, Hayes and Wilson have performed recitals and conducted music clinics together throughout the Southwest. In recent years the trio was featured as part of the Dallas Museum of Art's Beethoven Series.

EXHIBIT TO FEATURE STUDENT WORKS

An array of artworks will be on view Feb. 14-18 in the Moudy Building exhibit area as student artists from all majors vie for recognition and prizes in the third annual TCU All-Student Art Competition.

Entries may include everything from ceramics, sculpture and paintings to photographic, mixed media and graphic design works, said David Conn, art and art history department chairman.

An awards presentation and opening reception will be held Feb. 14 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Moudy Building exhibit space. The exhibit and related events are free and open to the public.

All currently enrolled full-time TCU students are eligible and may submit a maximum of three pieces for jury selection. The works will be judged by Dalton Maroney, associate professor of art at the University of Texas at Arlington and recipient of a Visual Arts Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts. Winners will receive gift certificates from the University Store.

Regular exhibit hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 15-18.

EAST TEXAS IS NEW BOOK'S SETTING

Whistle Punk, the TCU Press' latest issue, took place in 1944, at the peak of World War II. German prisoners of war were being held in rural areas of the South and Southwest and were put to work in the agricultural and logging industries.

Twelve-year-old Mac Johnson lived in the Piney Woods of East Texas, where his father has a logging operation. Already angry with "those evil Nazis" who killed his brother, Donald, a pilot, young Mac's desire for revenge intensified when his father was assigned POWs to help cut lumber — and one of the Germans looks exactly like Donald. Together Mac and his best friend, Arlen, plotted for revenge, but, as plan after plan fails, Mac's frustration and anger grew along with his hatred.

When Mac got a chance to be the whistle punk — to blow his whistle when a log is loaded on the skidder and the workers are safely away — he comes up with a foolproof plan to get even. Caught between his own desire for revenge and the friendliness of the German POW, Mac faced the most difficult decision of his life.

German POWs were stationed in East Texas, did work in the logging campus and were, like the POWs in this novel, model prisoners who posed no threat to citizens. Whistle Punk is the story of what might have been between one American family and a group of POWs.

Chapin Ross is a professor of communication at the University of Texas at Arlington. His wife, Alice, is a homemaker who began writing for children when their own grandchildren were born. Although Chapin and Alice grew up in East Texas during World War II, they never knew about the German POWs working in the region's logging camps.

Whistle Punk is a Chaparral Book for young readers. The series contains titles which have been on the Texas Library Association Bluebonnet List.

The 141-page book is available in the University bookstore.

MATH DEPARTMENT SERIES CONTINUES

"Cohomology of Arithmetic Groups" is the title of this semester's first TCU Research Fund Lectureship hosted by the mathematics department. Dr. Mark McConnell from Oklahoma State University will be the featured speaker for the event, which begins today (Tuesday) at 3:30 p.m. in Winton-Scott Hall, Room 171.

McConnell, who received a Ph.D. from Brown University, earned the Levenson Prize for excellence in undergraduate teaching while at Harvard University. His research interests are algebraic topology, locally symmetric spaces and their compactifications, connections with number theory and automorphic forms as well as combinatorial theory of convex polytopes.

Today's presentation is the sixth in a series of nine lectures scheduled by the mathematics department this year. A list of speakers for future lectures is available from the department.

GRADUATES' WORK TO BE SHOWCASED

The choreography of three TCU graduates will be among those featured Feb. 11-12 in the Contemporary Dance/Fort Worth Dance Exchange: A Choreographers Showcase at 8 p.m. at Orchestra Hall, 4401 Trail Lake Drive. The event is co-sponsored by TCU New Century Danscene.

Alumnae whose works will be featured in the 10-choreographer production include Michelle Adams, Zoe Stein Pierce and Elizabeth Gillaspy, who also serves a part-time dance faculty member. Mercy Sidbury, winner of the 1990 Isadora Duncan Award, will perform her work, "The Invitation," and will critique the other choreographers' work.

Tickets are $8 for general admission and $5 for students and senior citizens. They may be purchased at the door or through Central Ticket Office at 335-9000.

CHINESE ARTISTS WILL PERFORM

Four young Chinese musicians, including an award-winning erhu (two-string fiddle) player, will give a free solo and chamber music concert (Wednesday) tomorrow from 3 to 4 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The artists, who also include a cellist, violinist and pianist, are conducting a U.S. tour as part of the International Ambassadors of Music/China and U.S.A. Cultural Exchange. Four American artists will then do a concert tour of China.

Performers include:

- Ma, Xiang-Hua, who was a first-place winner in the erhu junior division during the ART Cup International Competition of Chinese Traditional Instruments. Last year Ma played concerts in France, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden and the Netherlands;
- Ma, Wen, who won the "Wang Que Cup" Special Grand Prize during the Second National Cello Competition in China in 1993 and whose quartet won the International String Quartet Competition of Czechoslovakia;
- Lu, Wei, who won first prizes in the Violin Competition of the Central Conservatory of Music and in the junior division of the National Violin Competition of the People's Republic of China;
- Li, Chen-Yin, two-time first-prize winner of the Beijing Children's Piano Competition. Li won the Division B second prize of the Marla Canals International Junior Piano Competition held in Barcelona, Spain. In 1993 she participated in the International Chamber Music Competition in Osaka, Japan.

PENSION FUND REP TO VISIT

A representative of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church will be on campus Feb. 18 for personal conferences with faculty and staff members as well as retirees. The semiannual visit affords an opportunity to obtain current information about the Pension Funds, options available for retirement income, taxes, Social Security and other matters.

Individual appointments for the conferences, which will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Student Center 215, can be made by calling the benefits office, Ext. 7792.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Gail Davis (nursing) was one of 38 invited participants to the workshop on Biobehavioral Pain Research: A Multi-Agency Assessment of Cross-Cutting Issues and Research Needs held Jan 18-21 in Bethesda, Md. The workshop was sponsored by 10 institutes of the National Institutes of Health and the Fetzer Institute to discuss and identify priority biobehavioral pain-related issues to be addressed through research.

Keith Odom (English) attended the convention of the Texas Council of Teachers of English in Austin Jan. 28-29. He received the TCTE Presidents' Award Research Grant of $1,500. Currently on research leave, Keith will use the grant for travel to libraries and manuscript collections in England.

Sheryl Doll (Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center) has been named to the board of directors for Fort Worth Sister Cities International. Jack Barrett, CTEAC director, and executive-in-residence Bob Bolen presently serve on the Sister Cities advisory board.

Sympathy is extended to Kaye Higgins (housing), whose father, Dan Higgins, passed away Jan. 29.

"The Status of Hume's System," written by Spencer Wertz (philosophy), appeared in the January issue of Southwest Philosophy Review.

Several promotions have been announced by the Human Resources office. These include Laurie Morris of psychology to University staff as research assistant; Geraldo Ramirez Pulido of the physical plant to Groundskeeper II, Barbara Kimball of residential living to Service Assistant III and Jonatan Colunga to Service Assistant II in facility services.

Funeral services were conducted Feb. 4 in Brockport, N.Y., for the father of Peggy Barr, former vice chancellor for student affairs who is now at Northwestern University. He died Jan. 31. Peggy's address is 3443 Davis St., Evanston, Ill. 60203.

A book review by Linda Hughes (English) appeared in the fall 1993 issue of Victorian Periodicals Review. Linda reviewed Roger Simpson's Camelot Regained: The Arthurian Revival and Tennyson 1800-1849.

Sheila Allen and Vincent Russo (music) judged the Metropolitan Opera District Auditions Jan. 22 in Little Rock, Ark. Sheila also has been invited to judge the finalists for the Dallas Opera Guild Career Development Grants program.

A book titled Twentieth-Century Brass Soloists by Michael Meckna (music) is scheduled to be published by Greenwood Press later this month. The book "analyzes and celebrates" nearly 100 brass soloists who have performed and recorded widely and "whose genius, technique and style have combined to produce unforgettable moments in music." Michael says although the book is basically a scholarly one, it "should appeal to both academic and general readers."

Tandy/Radio Shack representatives sought out John Loud (modern languages and literatures) in January for his help with the engraving order for a metal plaque to accompany a personal computer for Boris Yeltsin. Presentation of the gift was scheduled to coincide with the opening of the company's first Moscow store during President Bill Clinton's visit to Russia. John, who is working to establish a local circle of Russian translators, welcomes chances to pass along freelance opportunities to his contacts. He referred the job to a Russian-born Fort Worth resident. Following through with a bit of fine-tuning, John assisted in coping with an engraver's software program that lacked a lower-case "p" in the Cyrillic alphabet; explaining that, in Russian, abbreviating "personal computer" is just not done; and in overseeing the engraving process and correcting a glitch that would have resulted in a mispronunciation of the U.S. leader's name as "B-did C-dinton" if read aloud in Russian.

TCU IN THE NEWS:

In interviews videotaped in his office and classroom Jan. 19 by the Dallas-Fort Worth affiliate of Spanish-language television network Univision (Channel 23), Don Frischmann (modern languages and literatures) commented on the current political upheaval in Chiapas. His research into the contemporary theatre of Mexico's Yucatán peninsula has resulted in multiple visits to Chiapas, including the city of San Cristóbal de las Casas, and in close work with Indians of the region. Don provided background information on the poverty, problems of seasonal agricultural workers from the highlands and marginalization "that have pushed people to adopt extreme measures to call attention" to their region. He noted the significance of the cease-fire and the Mexican government's willingness to negotiate.

Terri Gonzales (communication sciences and disorders) was quoted for a Jan. 20 Star-Telegram feature, "Signs of the Times: The hearing-impaired are becoming more sensitive in the way they handle their language." Although influential centers such as Gallaudet University and the American Sign Language Institute are substituting new signs for traditional, minority-offensive ones, Terri noted that until such changes appear in sign-language books, regional adoption may proceed at a slow pace.

In covering local responses to the California earthquake, Channel 5's Linda Frederick met with John Schuster (Counseling Center). John discussed children's reactions and fears that an earthquake might threaten their own homes and families. Such fears are typical, he emphasized, suggesting that parents reassure their children that earthquakes are rare in Texas. The interview aired during the 6 p.m. news program Jan. 19.

A recent feature in African News Digest, a Houston newspaper, focused on Jonathan Ogujiofor (University Ministries), the goals of his ministry with minority students and his role in the larger community as an Episcopal priest and Nigerian immigrant.

Ranch Management's John Merrill was the subject of a story in Worth Wren's Star-Telegram column Jan. 27. The article told of John receiving the first W.A. "Bill" King Award for Excellence in Agriculture. The award, created by Fort Worth's Farm and Ranch Club, will be presented annually at the Stock Show.

In its Jan. 30 opinion page article titled 'It'll feel like home,' the Star-Telegram cited the TCU Press and its printing of "significant books about the history of the West" as one of four reasons Fort Worth is a natural setting for a National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Lady Frog basketball coach Shell Robinson was one of two described as "good young coaches" in a Jan. 27 Dallas Morning News sports column titled "Player turned broadcaster sees game on the rise." The story was a question-answer with Nancy Lieberman-Cline, two-time Olympic champion and headliner with the Women's Professional Basketball League who now is a sports analyst.
