$3.5 MILLION IN TWO GIFTS TO HELP IN BUILDING KELLY ALUMNI CENTER

Two gifts totaling $3.5 million will help build the new Dee J. Kelly Alumni Center on campus.

TCU's board of trustees learned of the gifts — $1.75 million each from the Burnett-Tandy Foundation and the Sid W. Richardson Foundation — as it held its annual spring meeting on the campus. The gifts honor one of the board's own: Kelly, a 1950 graduate and TCU's "Distinguished Alumnus" of 1982, is a prominent Fort Worth attorney who has been a trustee since 1971.

"TCU welcomes the challenge of seeking an additional $1 million from alumni across the land and beyond to complete funding for the center," said Chancellor Bill Tucker. "The signal recognition of Dee J. Kelly on campus makes sense in every way," the chancellor said. "Naming the proposed alumni center for him is especially appropriate; countless TCU graduates nearby and faraway take pride in his gifted leadership and singular accomplishments."

Funds for the alumni center are among several encouraging gifts or pledges made recently in the "quiet phase" of a comprehensive fund-raising campaign, still in the planning stage, to take TCU into the 21st Century as a stronger university, Dr. Tucker said.

Reports on TCU's current financial condition also were encouraging. Seeing that the University will again operate "in the black" for the current year, trustees approved a budget that is 3.6 percent higher (to $116 million) for 1994-95.

The budget is built on about the same number of students but on slightly higher student charges. Tuition will rise 5.6 percent to a basic cost of $283 per credit hour; with other fees added, academic costs for two semesters of study will average $9,440 next year compared to this year's $8,930. Variable costs for room, board, books and other expenses are additional. The amount budgeted for student financial aid also will rise by 6.8 percent to $17 million for the upcoming year.

"We want our charges to be as moderate as possible while still increasing the quality of what we offer," Dr. Tucker said. Student charges provide about half the funds needed to operate the University; the rest comes primarily from endowments and gifts.

Roach re-named as trustee chairman

Trustees elected as their chairman, for the fifth consecutive year, John V. Roach of Fort Worth, chief executive officer and chairman of Tandy Corp. They elected three new members to the board and asked one to stay on in a different capacity: Jerrol J. Ray of Austin, who as president of the TCU Alumni Association was automatically a member of the board, was elected to a four-year term. Bridget Guthrie Thomas of Fort Worth, the incoming president of the alumni group, also will join the 50-member governing body this fall.

Other new members are Pamela A. Roach, a 1980 TCU graduate who is senior vice president of Overton Bank and Trust in Fort Worth, representing the alumni association, and John W. Long, a 1962 graduate with two degrees from Brite Divinity School, who is the senior minister of First Christian Church in Corpus Christi.

The board meeting came amid unresolved questions raised by the probable disbandment of the Southwest Conference, of which TCU has been a member since 1923. Trustees voted to reaffirm TCU's commitment "to be competitive and win at a national level in Division I-A Athletics." Some 106 schools in the country compete at this highest level.

The trustees took their action "with the understanding that the University's institutional and academic integrity will not, in any way, be jeopardized or diminished" by its commitment to the intercollegiate athletics program.

As approved by the trustees, the budget for 1994-95 includes some $2.1 million for increases in compensation.

Trustees approve promotions, tenure

The board also approved recommendations for faculty tenure and promotions, a traditional part of its spring meeting.

Promoted to the rank of professor were Philip Hartman of biology, Mark Toulouse of Brite Divinity School, William Moncrief III of Neeley School of Business, and Robert Cooter Jr. and Kathleen A. Martin of the School of Education.

Promoted to associate professor and granted tenure were Richard Hanson, geology; Rhonda Hatcher, mathematics; Craig Morgenstern and Lynda Donnell Payne, computer science; Mauricio Papini, psychology; Kooyul Jung, accounting; Ranga Ramasesh, decision sciences; Charles Williams, management; Joel Mitchell, physical education; Babette Bohn, art history; Susan Harrington, art and art history and David Whillock, radio-TV-film.

Tenure was also granted to Carolyn Durham of modern languages, Andrew Lester of Brite, Stuart Youngblood of management, Cooter and Donal Sacken of education, and John Burton of music.

Emeritus status, effective upon their retirement, was approved for Marjorie Stanley of finance, Henry Hammack of theatre and Mildred Hogstel and Nancy Sayner of nursing.

OPEN HOUSE TO FEATURE BOMBAY CEO

Robert E.M. Nourse, president and chief executive officer of The Bombay Company Inc., will be the featured speaker for a Master of Business Administration open house hosted by the Neeley School Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon.

The free, public event will be held in Tandy Hall 320. Because seating is limited, the M.B.A. office requests that reservations be made by calling Ext. 7531.

Nourse will discuss the corporate perspective of the Neeley School M.B.A. and its relevance to the workplace. A five-member panel of students will be available to answer questions regarding the graduate program.

HOLY WEEK OBSERVANCES SCHEDULED

The Christian season of Lent concludes with the Triduum or Pasch — the Great Three Days — from sunset Thursday through sunset Easter Sunday. In observance of that portion of the liturgical year, a University Ministries committee will offer two community events.

For a special Robert Carr Chapel service at noon Wednesday, according to Brite student Terry Inman, "the intent is to focus on Jesus' passion and death. We will journey as a community with Jesus" from the Garden of Gethsemane to the trial, humiliation and crucifixion. The service will include a scripture reading on "The Sorrowful Mysteries" by student officers of Uniting Campus Ministries as well as a dramatic reading of Bruce Carroll's "Driving Nails" by religion major Zephirin Ryan.

The TCU Wesley Foundation's Koinonia Dancers will perform a liturgical dance to singing accompaniment by biology major Eric Groce, Jr. A time of personal reflection and penitence will be incorporated into the service. Terry emphasized that the symbolic journeys leading to Easter during the three days may be regarded as one unified service.

This year's Easter sunrise service, a University tradition for more two decades, will include a medieval passion drama by theatre department students performing under the direction of George Brown. The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. Sunday on the Sadler Hall front lawn. Coffee, orange juice and doughnuts will be served afterwards.

NAVAJO POET/WRITER TO SPEAK

Luci Tapahonso shares herself through poems and other works that touch on a variety of subjects, both universal and exclusive to the Navajo culture of which she is a part.

Tapahonso will read and discuss her works with local audiences when she presents the Cecil B. Williams lecture April 6 on campus. Her talk, beginning at 3:30 p.m. in the Student Center Woodson Room, is sponsored by the English department as part of 1994 Creative Writing Week activities. It will be followed by a reception.

On April 7, awards will be presented to winners of the creative writing contests at ceremonies that will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. Results and some of the winning entries will appear in a publication that will be distributed in early April. A reception will precede the awards presentation.

Tapahonso's poems, stories, essays and articles have been published in several books and numerous popular and scholarly publications. Considered a leading interpreter of Native American literature and culture, she won the Outstanding Native American Award from the city of Sacramento, Calif., last year and was named one of the Top Women of the Navajo Nation by Maazo Magazine in 1986 and New Mexico Eminent Scholar by the New Mexico Commission of Higher Education in 1989. While on the faculty of the University of New Mexico, Tapahonso was named Excellent Instructor and served as both host and co-host of "Voice of the Navajo," a bilingual news feature program shown in New Mexico. She currently is on the faculty of the University of Kansas.

STUDENT NOMINATIONS OVERDUE

The nominating deadline for three categories of student awards has passed, but Carol Ann Lane, Student Activities program adviser, will accept late forms through today (Tuesday). Faculty and staff members were invited in late February to recommend one or more students for recognition as outstanding student leaders, sophomore leaders and Janet Perry awardees.

Recipients of special awards will be announced at the University Leadership Reception, scheduled for 3-4:30 p.m. May 4 on the lawn in front of Sadler Hall.

A selection committee of faculty members and student affairs office staff members will consider all nominations, selecting three sophomores and 15 juniors and seniors for leadership honors. One individual will receive the Janet Perry Award, a memorial award established by the House of Student Representatives in 1987. Nomination forms, criteria and additional details are available by contacting Carol Ann at Ext. 7926.

LINK WILL SUCCEED MERRILL

John Merrill, who has held the reins of TCU's internationally known Ranch Management Program for 33 of its 38 years, has asked to relinquish his position as director June 1. Succeeding him will be Jim Link, a 1972 graduate of the program who currently is its associate director.

The intensive nine-month ranching program was established in 1956 at the request of Southwestern cattlemen. Since its inauguration to prepare people to manage ranches and allied resources profitably, the program has been recognized internationally as the premier study of its type and has graduated more than 900 full-time students plus 224 evening division graduates from 35 states and 22 other nations.

"The quality and reputation of the program reflect the contributions and work by John Merrill for more than three decades," said Provost/Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler. "His efforts are seen in the quality of the academic program, student scholarships, financial endowment, the new building and many other areas."

A fourth-generation Texas rancher, John will continue in the endowed position of Burnett Ranches Professor. He is initial holder of that position, endowed by the Anne Burnett and Charles Tandy Foundation in 1992 to honor the ranches established by pioneer Texas cattleman Burk Burnett.

John, a Texas A&M graduate, operates a commercial, stocker and farming operation near Crowley. A frequent contributor to national ranching publications and activities, the Tyler native is past president and a fellow to the International Society for Range Management and has received its highest award for contributions to the profession. He also serves as a director of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. He is a member of the executive committee of the Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show. He also has been a director and chairman for the research and education committee for the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

"Building on the good work of John, Jim is well qualified to provide strong direction to the program," said Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Adams. "We are fortunate to have Jim to continue a tradition of leadership for the program."

Jim, a graduate of Kansas State Teachers College and former trust administrator for El Paso National Bank, holds the John Biggs Professorship in Ranch Management. The position was established in 1993 by a major gift from the E. Paul and Helen Buck Waggoner Foundation to honor the late John Biggs, a trustee and general manager of the W. T. Waggoner Estate of Vernon.

Former assistant vice president and manager of the ranch management department of Oppenheimer Industries Inc., Jim joined the ranch management faculty in 1976 and was named associate director in 1989. He also completed the M.B.A. degree here in 1980.

Jim, active in community affairs, has been president of the board of the Crowley Independent School District, member of the executive committee of the North Texas Area Association of School Boards and a board member of the Tarrant County Education District. He also is president of the Southwest Tarrant County Homeowners Association and past president of the Fort Worth Farm and Ranch Club. His memberships also include the National Cattlemen's Association, Texas Farm Bureau and Texas Cattle Feeders Association. The Cedar Point, Kan., native has been president of the Tarrant County Extension Beef Cattle Committee.

TUCKER NAMES ADVISORY GROUP

A seven-member advisory committee to search for a men's head basketball coach was appointed March 16 by Chancellor Bill Tucker.

"This is a most important assignment," Dr. Tucker said. "We simply must develop and sustain a men's basketball program that is a credit to TCU and a source of pride for our city and all who care about the University."

Serving on the committee are:

- Frank Windegger, director of athletics;
- Bill Koehler, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs;
- Bill Beezley, holder of the Penrose Chair in History and head of the University intercollegiate athletics committee;
- Malcolm Loudon, trustee who chairs the trustee intercollegiate athletics committee;
- Kade L. Matthews, alumnus/trustee and member of the trustee intercollegiate athletics committee who ranches near Clarendon;
- Dennis Nutt, Class of 1986 member and four-year basketball letterman who is assistant coach at Westark, Ark., Community College;
- Jamison Monroe of Houston, Class of 1966 member and two-year basketball letterman who is vice president of Prudential Securities Inc.

The committee's charge is to find the right coach for TCU and submit its recommendation to the chancellor. The search will begin immediately, Dr. Tucker said in announcing the committee's membership.

BARCELLONA DIRECTS SCIENCE FAIR

Public and private school students from 10 counties will exhibit their projects in the 43rd annual Fort Worth Regional Science Fair, scheduled for April 5-10 in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. TCU biologist Wayne Barcellona marks his 13th year as its director and his 19th year to work with the event.

Entry categories are behavioral and social studies, biochemistry, botany, chemistry, computer science, earth and space sciences, engineering, environmental sciences, mathematics, medicine and health, microbiology, physics and zoology. The two "best of fair" exhibitors will advance to the International Science and Engineering Fair in Birmingham, Ala., in May. The University cooperates in making scholarships available to graduating seniors among the winners, providing scholastic and other requirements of eligibility are established.

Students will begin installing their projects on April 6. Judging is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. April 8 and conclude at 6 p.m., followed by an awards ceremony at 8:15 p.m. Public viewing of the exhibits will be permitted from 9:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. April 8, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. April 9 and from 1 to 3 p.m. April 10.

Judges' criteria include creative ability, scientific thought/engineering goals, thoroughness, skill and clarity. In addition to recognition granted by the judges, many professional and scientific organizations and corporations will present special awards; each military branch also will award certificates to select exhibitors.

TWO TANDY SCHOLAR EVENTS SET

James B. Hayes, publisher emeritus of Fortune magazine, and paleontologist John R. Horner, who was technical adviser for the movie "Jurassic Park," will be featured March 31 in Anaheim, Calif., at a Tandy Technology Scholars event. On April 14, Dr. Freeman Dyson of Princeton University's Institute for Advanced Study, who was featured on campus for the 1993 Honors Week Convocation, will speak for a similar event in Indianapolis, Ind.

"Diggin' Dinosaurs and Schooling in America" will be the topic of Hayes and Horner at the Anaheim Convention Center program that will include presentation of awards to Tandy Prize teachers attending the 1994 meeting of the National Science Teachers Association.

"Mathematical Elegance and Physical Truth Need Not Be Incompatible" will be Dyson's topic for the Indianapolis event that will include presentation of Tandy Prize awards to teachers attending the 1994 meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Tandy Technology Scholars recognizes academic excellence in the areas of mathematics, science and computer science. One hundred teachers will receive $2,500 each, and 100 students will receive cash scholarships of $1,000 each. These recipients of the Tandy Prize will be proclaimed "Champions of the Classroom."

One of the teacher awardees is a TCU alumna. She is Kathleen Walker Murrell, Class of '74 member who teaches at J. Frank Dobie High School in Houston.

More than 67 percent, a total of 14,645 of all secondary schools in the United States, are enrolled in this major educational initiative, which is funded by the Fort Worth-based Tandy Corp. and administered by TCU. Now in its fifth year, the Tandy Technology Scholars program is open to students and teachers in accredited high schools throughout the United States.

Presiding at the Anaheim event will be TCU alumnus/trustee John V. Roach, who is chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Tandy Corp., and Chancellor Bill Tucker. In Indianapolis, Roach will be joined by Provost/Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler. Attending both events will be Assistant Vice Chancellor Leo Munson.

WOMEN'S STUDIES MINOR TO BEGIN

A minor in women's studies, designed to complement Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees, will be inaugurated with the opening of the 1994 fall semester. The program will be headed by Jean Giles-Sims, associate professor of sociology and chairwoman of that department.

As announced by Associate Dean Priscilla Tate of AddRan College, two courses — "Sex, Gender and the Disciplines" and "Senior Seminar in Women's Studies" — will be required for the 18-hour minor. Students may choose four additional courses to complete the requirement. Currently studies are scheduled in English, history, nursing, religion and sociology.

The new minor will provide a theoretical framework for recovering and analyzing women's experiences, she explained, while offering opportunities to study disciplines through women's perspectives.

"We are making available in a public way what has been going on for some time," Priscilla said. "Other courses probably will be added to those currently in place, while additional ones will be developed as the program progresses."

NEELEY SCHOOL TO HOST TRIER STUDENTS

The Neeley School will host 16 high school students from Trier, Germany, Thursday as part of an exchange program in conjunction with Fort Worth Sister Cities International.

Eight to ten Neeley School students will serve as hosts, joining the Trier students for breakfast and taking them to class. Al Mladenka, International Student Affairs director, along with five TCU students from Germany will participate in a luncheon panel discussion about their experiences in the United States. The Trier students also will have the opportunity to tour a residence hall and the Rickel Building.

TCU IN THE NEWS

TCU was among three prestigious educational institutions featured in an article that appeared in a recent issue of Korg Proview, a magazine published by Korg USA Inc., a Westbury, N.Y.-based company that produces electronic musical instruments and equipment. The article focused on the Korg Concert Piano Learning System that was installed in TCU's piano lab last August, but it also noted that "TCU and its staff are world renowned for piano performance and pedagogy, featuring one of the world's premier piano faculties." In the article, Janet Pummill, TCU's director of class piano and accompanying, said that the system has helped her "better assist students' progress. The students learn more and quicker, and do not have to wait for assistance or attention." Other institutions featured in the article were the Royal Academy of Music in London and the Berklee College of Music in Boston.

The Living Church, an independent weekly record of Anglican news and views, carried a feature on Jonathan Ogujiofor (University Ministries) in its March issue. The profile was titled "African Missionary to a U.S. Campus."

As Cadet Dave Miller (Army ROTC) leapt — uniformed, blindfolded and grasping a rifle — from the high diving board in the Rickel pool during March 10 water survival tests, Dallas Morning News photographer William Snyder captured his descent. The photo, titled "Up in arms," ran in the March 11 edition.

"Male, female E-mail College students exchange ideas via computers" was the Star-Telegram headline March 17 for the feature on cross-country communication between students from a TCU English composition class and their counterpart, at the University of Southern California. The program was the brainchild of USC's Irene Clark and Margaret-Rose Marek (Writing Center). Assignments focus on cultural diversity and are completed via Internet, the worldwide computer network. Students Christina Christenson and Colette Sissons were shown in a photograph that complemented the story.

Political scientist Jim Riddlesperger was interviewed March 24 by KRLD Radio regarding the assassination of the candidate for Mexico's presidency as well as the effects of Whitewater problems for President Clinton's policies.

Brite Divinity School student Charlotte Vaughn Coyle was the author of a op-ed page piece titled "Condom ads won't work" that appeared March 17 in the Dallas Morning News. Married and the mother of three teen-agers, she also is a registered nurse.

"Things are slowly getting better," commented Jennifer Clough (Career Planning and Placement Center) in a March 23 Dallas Morning News story headlined "Job outlook a little brighter for grads." "It isn't a dramatic increase, but that's how this (economic) recovery has been," she added.

ACTOR/MINISTER/EX-ADDICT TO LECTURE

Clifton Davis, an African-American actor best known for his starring role in the long-running NBC television series "Amen," will draw from the mixed bag and mixed blessings of his life and career when he speaks on campus April 5.

The program, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom, will focus on his triumph over drug and alcohol addiction as well as his work in music, theatre and television, his ministerial education and other activities.

With Broadway and off-Broadway credits ranging from Gershwin revues to "Jimmy Shine" with Dustin Hoffman and Lorraine Hansberry's "To Be Young, Gifted and Black," Davis has held many television roles as co-star, guest star, game participant and talk show guest. As a songwriter, he received a 1971 Grammy nomination for the Jacksons' "Never Say Goodbye" and has composed gospel as well as pop hits. He received a B.A. degree in theology from Oakwood College in Alabama and an M.Div. from Andrews University in Michigan. He currently hosts a syndicated gospel radio show, "It's a Celebration," and resides in the Los Angeles area.

Davis' talk will be hosted by the Programming Council's forums committee. Admission is free to all faculty and staff members as well as students; others may attend for $2.

WOMEN WIN ALL-ACADEMIC AWARD

TCU's women's swimming team received the All-Academic Team award from the College Swimming Coaches Association of America. The honor for the first semester of the 1993-94 academic year was announced by Gail Pebworth, all-academic chairwoman for the South Carolina-based CSCAA. "Your swimmers and divers have excelled in the best tradition of the collegiate student/athlete," she said in the announcement letter.

The Lady Frog team had a grade-point average of 2.89 for last fall. According to Coach Richard Sybesma, this marks the seventh consecutive semester that the women's team has received the award. A total of 29 NCAA Division I women's teams were chosen for the honor. Other Texas teams included Texas A&M and Rice.

WOMEN'S FORUM TO HONOR MENTORS

Members of the Neeley School's Executive M.B.A. Women's Forum and their mentors will attend a "Mentor Appreciation Dinner" this afternoon (Tuesday) beginning at 5 p.m. at the Arlington Museum of Art.

Organized during the 1992-93 academic year, the Women's Forum strives to provide both female and male M.B.A. students with a channel to address women's issues in the business environment. The group's goals also include providing opportunities to develop leadership skills, become involved in community outreach and create an executive women's network.

Following the dinner, students and their mentors will be able to view the Arlington Museum's current show, "Profiles IV: Paint." The dinner is being underwritten by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Mentors are affiliated with such Metroplex organizations as: All Saints Hospital, Arlington Museum of Art, Bank One Texas NA, Camp Bowie National Bank, D/FW International Airport Board, Exxon Corp., Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Harris Methodist Health Services, Johnson & Johnson Medical Inc., New Day of America Inc., Overton Park National Bank, Pier 1 Imports, Pinnacle Brands Inc., Southwest Airlines, Tandy Corp. and Training Unlimited.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Ralph R. Guenther (emeritus, music) reports from Seattle that he has been included in the winter issue of Pan Pipes, a publication of the national music sorority, Sigma Alpha Iota. The annual edition details the work of American composers for the last year, and Ralph has been included since 1955. Two of Ralph's former TCU students included are Glenn Spring and A.J. Patterson.

James Jacobson (emeritus, music) was awarded "Outstanding Music Educator" honors in February by the National Federation Interscholastic Music Association at the TMEA conference in San Antonio.

Lee Daniel (modern languages and literatures) attended the national conference, "The Mosaic of Texas Culture," March 10-12 on the campus of Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. He served as moderator of the "Literature of Texas: Ethnic Diversity" panel. Lee also presented a paper on the Chicano dramatist Carlos Morton. Also attending the conference was Fred Erisman, who read a paper, "Elmer Kelton's 'Other' West." Bob Frye's presentation was titled "The Shaping Spirit of Comedy: Humor in Elmer Kelton's Honor at Daybreak." Joyce Roach with Robert Flynn of Trinity University, presented "That Old Time Religion," and graduate students Susan Ayres and Ariel Peugh read papers on "A Feminist Challenge to Texas Rape Law" and "Aurora, McMurtry's Finished Woman in Terms of Endearment," respectively. Ty Cashion also presented a reading, "The Case of Lottie Deno."

An essay by Linda Hughes (English) appears in the winter 1993 issue of Victorian Poetry. Titled "Victors and Victims: Tennyson's 'Enid' as Postcolonial Text," the essay examines Tennyson's poem within the context of Ashis Nandy's postcolonial theory.

Gary Whitman (music) presented a clarinet and bass clarinet clinic on "basic tone concepts and performance fundamentals" at Plano East Senior High School on March 8. Sixteen junior- and senior-level students from Plano East attended the two-hour clinic.

At the recent meeting of the Mid-Atlantic Writing Centers Association in Baltimore, Md., Christina Murphy (Writing Center) presented the keynote address on "Rethinking the Center: Models for the 21st Century." The Mid-Atlantic WCA represents the states of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia and is a regional affiliate of the National Writing Centers Association.

In February, Richard Estes performed the role of Lt. Pinkerton in "Madama Butterfly" at Popejoy Hall in Albuquerque, N.M. with Metropolitan Opera soprano, Yoko Watanabe. The Albuquerque Journal reported of Richard's performance, "Richard Estes as Pinkerton was an excellent choice for the role. He not only is a strong tenor but looked and acted like a young naval officer."

Kenneth Raessler (music) served on the reaffirmation committee for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools for the evaluation of the University of New Orleans. He was charged with the evaluation of "The Role of the Faculty and Its Committees" and "Faculty Loads," as well as an indepth analysis of the departments of fine arts, music and drama/communications.

Jack Barrett (Tandy American Enterprise Center) has been selected to lead the continuing education committee of the Economic Board of Greater Fort Worth. The 60-member board will help develop economic strategies to assist Fort Worth in shifting its traditionally heavy reliance on the defense industry.

NOTES ON FOLKS

TCU's English department was well-represented at the March 3-5 meeting of the Conference of College Teachers of English at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville. Karen Hodges spoke on "Potencies and Powers: Myth in Contemporary Classrooms," Margaret-Rose Marek chaired the session of the Texas Association of Writing Centers, and Bradley Peters presented a short story, "Recalling Richard," in one of the creative writing sessions. Joe Law received the British Literature Award for "Thackeray and the Sirens: Autobiographical Fiction and the Talking Cure." Joe also was elected to a three-year term on the executive council of the organization.

Ph.D. students in English reading papers at the conference included Brad Herzog, who discussed "Applying an Ethics of 'Caring' in Teaching Composition." Douglas Hollinger presented "'Against a Pale and Empty Background': Memory as Narrative in Ishiguro's The Remains of the Day." Bing Shao spoke about "Time, Death, and Gender: The Quentin Section in The Sound and the Fury," and Rachelle Smith's paper dealt with "The Relationship between Episteme and Form in William Carlos Williams' Pictures from Breughel."

Gregory Clemons (music) is author of "Some Thoughts on Musicianship in the Marching Band" published in the spring issue of the National Federation of State High School Associations Journal. Gregory also served as a judge for the Sam Houston State University Marching Festival in Huntsville.

Art Berlinger (emeritus, social work) is contributing to a forthcoming source book on social work ethics to be published by the National Association of Social Workers. He also is serving as a nursing home ombudsman for the Texas Department of Aging and the Mental Health Association.

Don Frischmann's (modern languages and literatures) essay, "La Asociación Nacional de Teatro Comunidad, A.C.: II Encuentro Interamericano de Teatro Comunitario," has appeared in trilingual format (Spanish/English/French) in the winter 1994 issue of Teatro, published in Mexico City by UNESCO's International Theatre Institute and the Centro Mexicano de Teatro.

At the March 10-12 Latin American Studies Association International Congress, in Atlanta, Don chaired a panel on "Ethnic Identities" and presented a paper, "Ethnic Confrontation as Reflected in Mayan Dramatic Performance: Chiapas." In the presentation, he examined the latest theatre work penned by members of the Writers' House of San Cristóbal de las Casas who performed at TCU in 1989 and 1992. The play, "De todos para todos," explores the causes behind the Zapatista revolt. The playwrights transmitted their newest work to Don via fax on Feb. 24, he noted, "just two days before it was premiered in the highlands Tzotzil Mayan community of San Juan Chamula."

Students Jennifer Schooley, Ann Marie Pinkenburg and Tom Graca accompanied Larry Markley (Student Center) to the National Association for Campus Activities convention in Boston during late February. The contingent attended various educational programming sessions, visited with agency representatives, viewed exhibits of college products and watched the showcase-format performances of more than 50 bands, soloist musicians, comedians and speakers. They also worked with students and staff members from other area colleges and universities in cooperative bookings of performers and services.

Anthropologist Andy Miracle, now on sabbatical, was a guest at Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff recently. There he visited with Al and Pearl Remley, Class of '89, who discovered anthropology here and went to NAU for master's degrees. Al, son of psychologist Ray Remley, supervises digging in Canyon de Chelly and has become an authority on the archaeology of the Defiance drainage in northern Arizona.

4TH-GRADERS TO VIDEOTAPE IN CPC

Fourth-grade students will "roll tape" in the Neeley School's Center for Productive Communication tomorrow (Wednesday) as they shoot television commercials to complete a Junior Achievement project. The 21 students from the Fort Worth Independent School District's Greenbriar Elementary will work with Neeley School students in the videotaping sessions.

"Our objective in bringing them to the Neeley School is to increase their self esteem and begin to plant the notion that they can go to college," explained Jan Titsworth, Neeley School associate dean. Following the taping, the Greenbriar students will tour a dormitory and visit the Rickel Building.

PowerPC DEMO SET FOR APRIL 4

"The future is here, and it's better than you imagined," claimed Apple Computer as it recently introduced new computers powered by the PowerPC microchip.

Faculty and staff members are welcome to attend a demonstration of the PowerPC technology April 4 in Student Center 207. Sessions will begin at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Since 1991, co-developers IBM and Motorola have dedicated tremendous resources to create the PowerPC chip, explained Karen Moncrief of TCU's Information Services. "Come see what the next generation of personal computers can do for you," she urged.

HEWERDINE, STEVEN PLACE

In recent NCAA swimming competition, Sheila Hewerdine placed in two events and Deirdre Steven in one. In the 400 intermediate, Sheila's time of 4:27.47 ranked 34th, and her 2:03.31 in the 200 butterfly was 25th. Deirdre placed 29th in the 200 butterfly with a time of 2:04.43.

"What a difference of emotion this week was," Coach Richard Sybesma said. "We went from a high of being selected to represent our university at the national championships to the low of not scoring in the top 16 for team points.

"We gained a lot of valuable experience for next year since both Sheila and Deirdre are freshmen. We went into the meet expecting to do better, and it just didn't happen," he added. "Both have had an outstanding year, and I am very proud of their accomplishments."
