Issued by the Division of University Relations

Volume 70, No. 37, June 28, 1994

UNIVERSITY RELATIONS WILL BECOME COMMUNICATIONS AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The University Relations division will become Communications and Public Affairs on July 1 as the result of a staff self-assessment.

"The staff has been meeting weekly since January to rethink our work and examine our effectiveness," said Associate Vice Chancellor Larry D. Lauer. "The changes we are making have three objectives.

"First, we are redefining staff working relationships in order to enable a 'creative team' approach to communication planning and problem-solving. We have the most talented group of communication planners, editors, writers and designers we have ever had at TCU, and we simply want to make the most of their potential.

"Second, we want to make it possible to help the schools, colleges and programs of the University develop and implement a more comprehensive and strategic approach to communicating their goals and achievements. This has required us to reshape some positions and give them more broadly defined responsibilities.

"Third, we hope to achieve a bit more clarity in the name change. We have found that most of our publics aren't sure what 'university relations' means, but at least they have an idea about the functions of 'communications and public affairs.'"

Specific changes will include:

— The current position of director of the News Service will become director of communications with the Aug. 1 retirement of Betty Donovan Knox. It will be given a broader job description to include the development and implementation of broad-based communication plans. A search is under way currently to fill this position.

— The vacant position of News Service assistant will become media relations director and will be given a more focused responsibility to find ways to meet the mutual interests of the news media and the University. The position will be filled in the near future.

— Andy Kesling, who is currently News Service associate, will become assistant director of communications and will have broader communications responsibilities and will function as acting director when the director is absent.

— Currently News Service associate, Ma'lisa Laidlaw will become internal communications editor and be charged with the responsibility to help develop an even stronger sense of total community among students, faculty and staff members.

— John Ohendalski, who is currently editorial services director, also will function as chairman of an Editorial Priorities Committee and will lead a team of editors and writers in the selection of those stories and achievements that deserve special promotion because of their potential to build TCU's overall stature and reputation.

The other positions within the division remain essentially unchanged, with the exception that defining the team concept has given all staff members -- from writers to designers -- complete creative access to each other in order to meet the University's communications goals.

LABOR DAY WEEKEND TRIP SET

The Horned Frogs will begin their 1994 season Sept. 3 against the Tar Heels of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. A pre-game party is planned for the occasion, and a Chapel Hill hotel is offering discounts on room reservations.

The Omni Europa Hotel in Chapel Hill will be the setting for the pre-game event. Food and refreshments will be included in the alumni association-sponsored affair. Reservations, due by Aug. 26, will be $15 per person for the dinner and can be made by check, payable to TCU, sent to the alumni office, Box 32921.

Room reservations, discounted to $69 per night, will be available at the Omni Europa Hotel. Aug. 2 is the deadline for making reservations at this rate. Interested people should contact the hotel at 1-800-THE-OMNI or 919-968-4900 and identify themselves as part of the TCU group.

Express shuttle service from the Omni Europa to the stadium, where parking is limited, will be available beginning 90 minutes before the 7 p.m. kickoff and immediately after the game.

Additional information about the Labor Day Weekend plans for alumni and friends as well as faculty and staff members is available from the alumni office, Ext.7803.

LAB UPGRADES AMONG PROJECTS

A number of projects through Information Services are on the agenda for summer. To be completed for the fall term's opening are upgrading of two journalism laboratories in the Moudy Building and one laboratory in the Sid Richardson Building. Equipment for 53 Macintosh stations have been ordered, according to Assistant Vice Chancellor Dave Edmondson.

Also to be ready by fall will be the addition of high-end work stations to the engineering laboratory in the Annie Richardson Bass Building.

Currently in progress is repair of the patio area between Winton-Scott Hall and Sid Richardson Building. The work will eliminate leaks into machinery in the building area beneath the patio surface.

RECEPTION WILL HONOR BANTA

Lois Banta, director of benefits and deputy Affirmative Action officer since 1993, will be honored Thursday with a retirement reception. The campus-wide event will be held from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the living room of the Annie Richardson Bass Building.

The Indiana native and honor graduate of Purdue University came to campus in 1968 as a graduate student and was a teaching assistant before completing the master's degree in 1972. An administrative secretary in planning for two years before being appointed personnel specialist in 1979, she was named associate director of personnel in 1985.

Retiring as of June 30, Lois was named to membership in the honor societies of Kappa Delta Pi and Sigma Delta Pi. She has traveled extensively throughout the world and finds free-time pleasure in raising Arabian horses.

PITTS TO HEAD INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

Delia C. Pitts, who for 15 years has held positions in international educational and cultural programs with a strong focus on Latin America and Mexico, has accepted appointment as director of international education. She will assume her position as the first person to hold the newly created role on Aug. 1.

"International education at TCU has grown to such an extent that it needs coordination," said Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Adams. "Dr. Pitts is well-qualified to provide leadership and oversight through this University-wide appointment."

In the new position, Dr. Pitts will work with such programs as study abroad, all summer study/travel and intensive English study. She also will work with directors of faculty and student exchanges, particularly with Mexico, and other programs. Holder of master's and Ph.D. degrees in history from The University of Chicago, she will teach in the history department as time allows, Dr. Adams added.

Since 1983 Pitts has been on the staff of the United States Information Agency (USIA). In its African Regional Bureau, she is country affairs officer for Francophone West Africa with responsibility for programs and personnel of USIA offices in eight West African nations. In 1991-93 she was an assistant cultural attache in the U.S. Embassy in Mexico, where she managed international exchange programs that included Fulbright, Humphrey and Eisenhower fellowships as well as university linkages and professor exchange programs.

Pitts, founding treasurer of the new U.S.-Mexico Fulbright Commission that disburses more than $5 million annually to scholars from both nations, spent 1984-87 as assistant cultural attache of the U. S. Embassy in Nigeria. In that role she designed a variety of cultural programs to present the American culture's diversity and richness to Nigerian audiences.

The 1972 graduate of Oberlin College currently serves on that institution's board of trustees. She is the only person in the governing body's history to have become one of its members by all three available routes -- class election, alumni election and selection by the committee of sitting trustees.

Pitts began her government-related career in 1978 with the U.S. Department of State. In the office of historian, she edited several volumes illustrating the 20th Century history of U.S. diplomatic relations with South and Central America. After two years with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, she joined the U.S Agency for International Development (AID) in 1987 as an economist in Mauritania.

CABLE TV TO CARRY ENTERPRISE FORUM

Fort Worth subscribers to Sammons Cable Television service can tune into a recent Executive Forum speech by Dr. Michael Walker, executive director of the Fraser Institute in Canada. The event was co-sponsored by the Neeley School's Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center and Harris Methodist Health System. Walker, an economist, journalist, broadcaster and consultant, discussed "The Canadian Health Care System: What Works and What Doesn't."

The taped presentation of Walker's May 31 speech will air 14 times in late June and early July. The City Video 45 production can be viewed on Sammons Channel 7. The dates and times include: today at 10:30 p.m.; Wednesday, 3 p.m.; Thursday, 12:30 p.m.; Friday, 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.; July 3, 10:30 p.m.; July 4, 8 p.m.; July 5, 10:30 p.m.; July 6, 3 p.m.; July 7, 12:30 p.m.; and July 8, 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

SERVICE HELD FOR SHELTON

Funeral services were held June 21 for Gentry Shelton, emeritus professor of Brite Divinity School, at University Christian Church. He served that congregation as an elder and was its director of music in 1958-62. The Kentucky native, a resident of Fort Worth since 1955, died June 18 in a Fort Worth nursing home.

A member of the Brite faculty from 1955 until his retirement in 1978, Gentry also had used his love and talents for music as minister of music for Central Christian Church in Lexington, Ky., in 1935-55 and at Arlington Heights Christian Church for some 20 years.

Gentry earned a bachelor's degree at Transylvania University and a master's at Lexington Theological Seminary. He completed the Ed. D. degree in 1954 at the University of Kentucky. He did special music study at the Juilliard School of Music, Georgetown College and Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Ordained as a minister in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in 1935, he directed TCU's Chapel Choir in 1955-59 and the Singing Seminarians in 1955-78. He had been a director of music at the International Assembly of Christian Churches in Michigan. Gentry was a delegate to the World Convention of Churches of Christ in New York in 1947 and in Scotland in 1960 as well as to the Second World Theological Education Seminar in North Ireland in 1962. He was a consultant and delegate to the Third, Fourth and Fifth World Assemblies of the World Council of Christian Churches.

Gentry, an honorary Kentucky colonel and recipient of a 25-year award from the Boy Scouts of America, was author of studies published in leading religious journals. He was a contributor to the Dictionary of Christian Education, Music and Worship and the Church and Introduction to Christian Education. He was past chairman of the Association of Christian Church Educators and the Association of Professors and Researchers in Religious Education.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Ingle Shelton; a son, Dr. William Shelton; a daughter, Mary-Mac Elliott; and two grandchildren, all of Fort Worth.

The family suggested that memorials be made to the Shelton Music Endowment Fund at University Christian Church, the James L. West Special Care Center, The Child Study Center, Trinity Valley School or The Hill School.

LOCKWOOD TO BE WILLIAMS PROFESSOR

Larry J. Lockwood, whose studies have been published in leading financial and business journals, will become the C. R. Williams Professor of Financial Services in the Neeley School of Business at the opening of the 1994-95 academic year.

The professorship was established by Houston insurance executive C.R. "Dick" Williams and members of his family for the study of a broad range of financial services, including insurance. Williams, a TCU graduate, is owner and president of Service Agency Inc., an investment company. Formerly he was president and chief executive officer of Navajo Life Insurance Co., owner and chairman of American Credit Insurance Agency Inc. and senior vice president and director of Life of America Insurance Co. A member of the Neeley School's international board of visitors, he has served on boards of a number of financial institutions.

Lockwood has been a member of the University of Texas at Arlington faculty since 1982. Acting chairman and associate professor of finance in 1988-89 and 1991-93, he formerly coordinated that institution's doctoral program in finance.

The Massachusetts native completed the B.S. degree at David Lipscomb University in 1975. After earning a master's at Western Kentucky University, he received M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in 1980 and 1982, respectively, at Purdue University. He has been accorded four awards for outstanding graduate teaching at UTA and one earlier at Purdue. He also has received numerous awards for distinguished research publication. At Purdue he was selected for membership in Phi Kappa Phi and Beta Gamma Sigma honor societies.

Lockwood is author and co-author of studies that have appeared in Quarterly Journal of Business and Economics, Journal of Finance, Journal of Banking and Finance and Journal of Economics and Business. His working papers include several focusing on the Mexican stock market as well as pension funds, property values and mutual funds. He has presented papers at meetings of such organizations as the American Statistical Association, the Financial Management Association and the Southern and Southwest finance associations.

The second person to hold the Williams Professorship, Lockwood is active in the Financial Management Association and American Finance Association as well as these organizations' regional groups.

BABBILI RECEIVES LIFETIME AWARD

Anantha Babbili was presented the coveted lifetime achievement award for education by the Dallas/Fort Worth Association of Black Communicators at a May 11 event in Dallas. The award is presented annually to an individual who has made a significant impact on the growth and development of future minority journalists.

Speaker for the DFW/ABC's 13th annual future minority journalists scholarship event was Lerone Bennett Jr., executive editor of Ebony Magazine. A 1981 recipient of the national ABC lifetime achievement award, he is a noted historian and chronicler of African history. A trustee at Morehouse College, he is author of Pioneers in Protest, Challenge of Blackness and Wade in the Water.

Some $40,000 in scholarships were awarded during the event to 22 area students who are pursuing degrees in communication.

Anantha, who joined the journalism department in 1981 and has headed it since 1988, currently is in India visiting family members before going to London for the TCU-at-Oxford program. Accepting the award in his absence was Marty Haag, vice president for news at Channel 8 and a member of the journalism department's board of visitors.

KIDS "TOY AROUND" WITH PHYSICS

Last week at St. Andrews Catholic School, students, parents and teachers explored the properties of physics by constructing and playing with animal puzzles, rubber band cannons and a variety of other playful devices. The weeklong "Toying Around with Physics" program, funded by the School of Education's $1.5 million, four-year National Science Foundation grant, was organized by NSF staff and TCU faculty to let teachers and parents see how children construct their own learning environments when they're given the freedom to do so.

"It allows us to see how kids learn naturally," said Lisa Spradley, the NSF-funded teacher who designed and organized the program. "We see what gets their attention and how long they stay in different areas. As the kids explore and come up with natural questions, the adults are there to help answer them."

Some 30 students entering grades 1-5 at St. Andrews participated as did their parents and 32 teachers from five area elementary schools: St. Andrews, Speer in Arlington, Hubbard Heights in Fort Worth and Grace Hardeman and Green Valley, both in the Birdville ISD. The Home Depot at Hulen and Southwest Boulevard provided tools, materials and technical expertise.

During breaks, students were free to check out the math puzzles room, play in an environmental "bubble," read or be read to or construct additional toys at tables that explored art, construction, magnetism and movement. The youngsters also could check out a historical toys cart provided by the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History. On Friday, parents and Home Depot employees constructed a Frisbee golf course. Throughout the program, teachers provided basic project instruction, answered questions and recorded observations.

According to Kathleen Martin, one of the principal investigators on the grant, the program helps students recapture some of the inventive playfulness that's been lost in curriculum standardization in schools. "The attention to the accidental: that's the stuff from which new discoveries can occur," she said.

This is the second year for the program. Last year, students, parents and teachers investigated the effects of wind currents upon flight and movement. This year, teachers spent the week prior to the program being prepared by TCU faculty and NSF staff. This week they're discussing what they learned and participating in a math teaching enrichment program on campus.

Marcia Baggs, a third-grade teacher at Green Valley, said she and other teachers from her school planned to take many of the things they had learned from the program back to the classroom. "We've already come up with a way to raise the funds to do this," she added.

First-grader Anna Steward learned to distinguish between different types of screwdrivers on her second day in the program as her mother assisted her in screwing a switchplate onto a block of wood. Anna said the lion-shaped wooden puzzle she made the first day was "pretty hard," but she was excited about showing it to her 11-year-old brother, Nathan.

Tim Morton said his 8-year-old daughter, Ashley, was so thrilled with the rubber band cannon and other toys she made the first day that "She couldn't wait to come back. She loves it."

CAMPUS PHONES WILL BE DOWN

For an hour tomorrow (Wednesday), the University telephone switch will be taken down in order to complete an upgrade. Beginning at 5:30 p.m., the lines will be down for approximately one hour, according to Darlene Housewright, communications system assistant.

EDUCATORS ENJOY TEXAS HOSPITALITY

Five musician/educators from Mexico City enjoyed a helping of Texas hospitality as they exchanged information and ideas with members of TCU's music faculty June 13-24.

The quintet is the first of several faculty members from five fine arts schools to be grouped in Mexico's new Instituto Nacional de Bellas Artes (INBA) who will visit the campus this summer as part of a new faculty exchange program. TCU fine arts faculty members visited Mexico earlier this summer. Other faculty members from Mexico will be on campus July 11-22.

Two visitors — flutists Claudio Bocanegra Agea and Antonio Gustavo Diaz Carrillo — worked with Karen Adrian. Oboist Manuel Juan Gastelum Ceja was paired with Gary Whitman, trumpeter Antonio Juarez Servin with Steve Weger and trombonist Clemente Sanabria with Dennis Bubert.

The group also observed the Band Directors Workshop and Middle School Band Camp, attended seminars in musical arrangement and composition, visited local music stores and enjoyed performances of the Fort Worth Chamber and Fort Worth Symphony orchestras.

Interpreter for the group was Elizabeth Gonzalez Leal, a Monterrey, Mexico, native and a May graduate of TCU's MFA program who will begin working on her doctorate in art education and museum studies at the University of North Texas in August.

The five visitors were enthusiastic about the reception they received from faculty and staff members and the new ideas with which they were presented. Sanabria said he was "overwhelmed with all the attention," but added that he was excited to be able to share ideas with TCU professors directly.

The INBA project has been described as one of the most ambitious cultural and artistic endeavors to be carried out by the Mexican government in recent decades. The vast multimillion-dollar arts complex, scheduled to open in fall in Mexico City, will house the country's most important professional schools of music, visual arts, dance, theater and cinematography along with the research institutes in those disciplines and the National Library of the Arts.

BOOK WILL RECEIVE HONOR

TCU Press has been notified that a 1993 title, Decorating Texas: Decorative Painting in the Lone Star State, 1850-1950 by Buie Harwood, has won a prestigious certificate of commendation from the Association for State and Local History. The certificate will be presented at the association's annual meeting in September in Omaha, Neb.

Decorating Texas is a study of decorative painting from stenciling and in-fill painting to freehand murals and landscapes in residential, religious and commercial structures scattered across the state. Many of these are still standing.

OFFICE HELP AVAILABLE

Upward Bound students will be available July 18 to Aug. 5 to perform office work at no cost.

Students can type, run errands, answer the phone, file, assist with long-term projects, complete mass mailings and conduct library research. Additional information is available from Renee Gordon at Ext. 7946.

FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

Ed Hearne is the new HVAC control operator in the Physical Plant. Before employment with TCU, he worked for the Whirlpool Corp.

On June 1 Jennifer Sweeney assumed the position of interim coordinator for the Center for Academic Services. Currently working toward a Ph.D. at Texas Woman's University, she joined the staff last summer as TCU's first coordinator of academic services for students with disabilities.

Johnny Yale is the new police officer with Campus Police. He was a longtime officer for the Fort Worth Police Department and has been associated for several years with the TCU Athletic department.

After 14 years in the alumni office and 10 of those as its director, DeVonna Tinney has assumed the new position as director of the Parents Fund on June 1. In developing the advancement division's new program, she will focus attention on parents as prospective donors. DeVonna will attend a parents conference at Princeton University later this summer.

Two advancement staff members, both TCU graduates, will assume new positions July 1. Kristi Hoban, director of donor relations, has accepted the additional appointment as acting director of alumni relations. Bettye Boisselier, currently development associate for scholarships, will become assistant director of donor relations.

Joan Edling has been hired as the new Administrative Assistant I in Miller Speech and Hearing/Communication Disorders. She previously was employed by the Texas Rehabilitation Commission.

TCU PRESS HAS NEW PUBLICATION

Was the West really hell on horses and women? Not always, according to the stories in Unbridled Spirits, an anthology of short fiction about women of the Old West. Edited by Judy Alter and A. T. Row, the book is a new publication of TCU Press.

The stories in Unbridled Spirits refute the traditional stereotypes of women in western fiction — the pure school marm, the soiled dove with a heart of gold, the worn and weary settler's wife — to show that both male and female authors created strong and interesting women in western fiction, both past and present.

Four major woman authors — Mary Hallock Foote, Willa Cather, Mari Sandoz and Dorothy Johnson — are represented by several selections each. Individual stories follow by Gertrude Atherton, Mary Austin, Jeanne Williams, Carla Kelly, Marcia Muller, Alter, Bret Harte, O. Henry, Owen Wister, Charles Eastman, Jack London, Jack Schaefer, Elmer Kelton, Robert Flynn and Elmore Leonard.

In his introduction, Fred Erisman wrote: "Women were in the West, they were of the West, they helped shape the West, and they wrote about the West. It is time for them to share the stage with their mythic counterparts." Erisman is TCU's Lorraine Sherley Professor of English; Judy and Tracy are director and editor, respectively, of the TCU Press.

Unbridled Spirits, a 392-page trade paperback, sells for $17.95 in the University bookstore.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Ronald Shearer (history) will participate in two sessions at the annual meeting of the German Studies Association in Dallas in early October. He will moderate one session on German business and the state and will comment on papers in a second session on the history of German attitudes toward the environment.

Congratulations to Lisa Rollins-Garcia (counseling center) and her husband Manny on the birth of their daughter, Alexandra Nicole Garcia.

"An Interview with Ruth Whitlock" (music) by Brad White (BME '79) appeared in the spring issue of Texas Sings, the publication of the Texas Choral Directors Association. A gift in Ruth's honor was given to the Mu Phi Epsilon Memorial Foundation by the TCU chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon. She was guest lecturer for faculty and students of the music department at Ashland University and Ohio public school music teachers in April. Alison Reynolds (BME '85) is assistant professor of music at Ashland. Ruth also judged choirs at the Festival in the Park music contest in Arlington in May.

Mary Cloninger, a graduate of TCU in 1991 with a B.S. degree with departmental honors in chemistry, recently was named one of five graduate students to receive a "Teaching Assistant Mentor Award" from the chemistry department at the University of Wisconsin where she is studying for the Ph.D. degree. The awards, which have been newly instituted by the University of Wisconsin, are designated specifically to honor outstanding teaching assistants.

Sympathy is extended to Ted Klein (philosophy) on the death of his father, Ted Klein Sr., on June 13 after a brief illness. Funeral services for the elder Klein, retired owner of National Feed Co., were held June 15 at Central Christian Church. The family suggested memorials be made to The WARM Place or a charity of choice

Director of the News Service since 1964, Betty Donovan Knox is retiring Aug. 1. A two-time graduate of TCU, she also edited THIS IS TCU, the University's quarterly magazine, in 1964-78.

Susan Douglas Roberts (dance) is spending June at the Universidad de las Americas-Puebla studying Spanish, teaching a dance workshop and enjoying a personal choreography retreat. Terrie Poore ('93, MFA, dance) will move to Puebla later this summer with her husband, who recently graduated from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. She will be starting a dance program at the university.

A monograph, Laura Ingalls Wilder, by Fred Erisman (English) has been published as Volume 112 in the Boise Western Writers Series. Fred's study focuses on Wilder's "Little House" series of novels for children, demonstrating how the series goes beyond the immediate story of the fictional Laura and her family to present to young readers the entire national enterprise that made up the settling of the American West.

Juliet George, News Service assistant since 1991, assumed a position as project editor with Harcourt Brace College Publishers on June 1. She completed a master's degree in history here in 1991.

Robert Seal (University librarian) recently was elected chair of the board of trustees of the AMIGOS Bibliographic Council, a consortium of more than 350 libraries in the southwestern United States. Robert, who also served as chair in 1993-94, presided at the spring meeting of the library network in Dallas in early May. His board term runs through 1997.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Music faculty members Lorin Larson (horn) and Frank Almond (violin) performed solos with the Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra June 23 as part of the fourth annual "Concerts in the Garden" series at the Fort Worth Botanic Garden. They were directed by TCU conductor-in-residence John Giordano. The performance of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Haydn and Handel was followed by fireworks. Frank also performed as a soloist at the Chamber Orchestra's premier performance in the Meyerson Symphony Center in Dallas on June 18.

Margaret-Rose Marek (William L. Adams Writing Center) was elected president of the North Texas Writing Centers Association for the 1994-96 term. She was vice president of the association in 1992-94 and was its secretary and newsletter editor in 1990-92. The association was founded in 1990.

Ginger Clark (radio-TV-film) is co-author of an article, "The Impact of Computers on Learning: Research on In-School and Out-of-School Settings," that appears in the spring 1994 issue of the Journal of Computing in Higher Education. Ginger also has been named to the nominating committee for the Radio Hall of Fame.

Carolyn Ulrickson, Jennifer Clough and Ginger Nicholas, all of the Career Planning and Placement Center, and Linda Roy Smith (Neeley School) attended the annual conference of the Southwest Placement Association in Overland Park, Kan., May 31-June 3. Carolyn was recognized for her eight years of service on the board of directors of the association. She has served as director, regional governor to the College Placement Council and was president of the association in 1992-93. Jennifer served as editor of the SWPA Newsletter in 1993-94 and led a conference session. Ginger and Linda are current co-chairs of the Texas M.B.A. Consortium and led a planning session for the job fair, which will be held in Dallas in January.

Peggy Conway (Neeley School) visited Hong Kong June 5-11 to participate in an M.B.A. forum sponsored by the Graduate Management Admissions Council. The forum, with representatives from 79 M.B.A. programs, attracted about 1,200 prospective graduate students. During the session Peggy was interviewed by a writer for the widely-distributed magazine Recruit. The story is expected to highlight TCU's M.B.A. program.

Spencer Wertz (philosophy) has learned that his paper titled "Collingwood's Understanding of Hume" has been accepted for publication in Hume Studies. The paper was originally read at one of the thematic sessions on late 19th/early 20th Century interpretations of Hume during the summer of 1992 at the Hume Conference, held at the University of Nantes in France.

TCU IN THE NEWS

In the May issue of SWC Images, the official publication of the conference, Billy Tubbs' appointment as basketball coach was the subject of a story as was Tracy Simien, Class of '88. The latter, according to the story "stars on and off field" as a member of the Kansas City Chiefs and also in the community service project for Kansas City-area senior citizens that he began during the 1993 season.

Jim Atwood (admissions) was the subject of an interview about prospects for events during the Southern Baptist Convention in Florida. It aired June 13 on Channel 4 at both 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

"No bones about it, geologist loves to chip off the old rock" was the Star-Telegram headline for the June 11 story about geologist Richard Hanson and his research that has taken him to southern Africa, Antarctica and Chile. Later this summer he will go to Namibia on the the western coast of southern Africa to study "a continuing outcrop of the same volcanic rocks found in Zambia."

Five psychology students were featured in a color photo in the June 16 Star-Telegram as they picnicked before the opening performance of Shakespeare in the Park. They were Tiffany Sia, Brian Lashley, Marilyn Pugh, Laura Schneider and Mike Czuchry.

In its focus on "differently abled" students, the spring issue of The ICUT Report noted TCU's work in an effort to address needs of all students. Attention is called to the University's ad hoc committee to study needs and last year's appointment of a coordinator of academic services for students with disabilities.

The TCU/Cliburn Piano Institute, held May 29-June 11 on campus, received significant attention from local media. Wayne Gay of the Star-Telegram and John Ardoin of the Dallas Morning News reviewed performances by Cliburn recitalists/instructors, and Gay reviewed student performances with the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra on June 2 and 9 as well. A lengthy Star-Telegram interview with recitalist Frederic Chiu and numerous calendar listings, photos and preview stories about the institute and its performers also appeared.

The founder and director of the TCU/Cliburn Institute, Tamás Ungár (music), was the subject of a lengthy "Sheila Taylor Wells Meets" interview in the Star-Telegram on June 9. Tamás is shown instructing student Yumiko Takashima in a color photo accompanying the story on the cover of the "Life" section, and alone in a black-and-white "art" shot inside the section. Tamás tells Wells, "Music is all around us, it's an essence of life, just like a beautiful painting. If you don't have that, there's a tremendous amount of culture and humanity that's completely lost to you, and that's a very sad thing."

The viewpoints of Mark Toulouse (Brite) were featured on CNN broadcasts on June 11. Mark gave background and context on denominational switching in America and what it might mean for American religion. Mark also discussed the new "consumer mentality" Americans are using to choose a church.

Don Jackson (political science) told a Channel 8 reporter that it was unlikely that Kristi Koslow will receive the death penalty if found guilty in the highly publicized 1992 slaying of her stepmother, Caren Koslow. Don said juries typically refrain from giving the death sentence to a woman, particularly a young woman. The report aired on June 19-20.

Larry R. Horwood ('79 Ranch Management graduate) appeared on the cover of the April edition of Hoofprints, the official publication of the American Cutting Horse Association.

In its story titled "The Best Drive in Fort Worth," the July issue of Southern Living lists the TCU campus as one of the stops to make and notes that "there's no better place for a walk on a sunny afternoon." It even mentions "a 6-foot monster with horns on its ears and spikes on its back ... that's just a monument to the horned frog, TCU's mascot."
