BLOCKBUSTER BASEBALL CARD EXHIBIT TO BRING ORIGINAL DEPICTIONS OF THE GREATS OF THE GAME TO TCU

Baseball fans mourning the loss of the 1994 World Series and the end of Ken Burns' Baseball television documentary series may find solace in an artistic tribute to the all-American pop icon: the baseball card. "The Artist and The Baseball Card," an exhibition of 151 original interpretations of baseball cards from more than 140 artists and illustrators, will be on view in the Moudy Building Oct. 3-28.

The popular traveling exhibition, which will be making its first-ever Texas stop, has broken attendance records at such diverse venues as the Delaware Museum of Art, the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., and the Society of Illustrators Gallery in Manhattan. A portion of the proceeds from the exhibit's rental fees are given to local Special Olympics chapters.

The exhibition began with a kid's natural fascination with larger-than-life athletic heroes and the neighborhood shrine — Ebbets Field. The "kid," world-class illustrator, collector and baseball fan Murray Tinkelman, persuaded well-known illustrators and artists to create original interpretations of baseball cards, sized 8 1/2" X 11 3/4" in any durable medium. Those artists, including longtime TCU adjunct faculty member Don Punchatz, donated their works to Tinkelman's still growing collection. Most of the works are signed by the players portrayed. TCU restricted earnings coach Nolan Ryan is featured in two.

The works vary widely and include the names and faces of baseball greats of yesterday and today, including Tinkelman's own pen-and-ink drawing of Darryl Strawberry. Some are faithful copies of old cards. Some are affectionate parodies. Others use multiple imagery to copy the speed and motion of a sports video. The artists used a variety of media, including oil, watercolor, pen-and-ink, airbrush, acrylic, charcoal and even needlepoint.

Lewis Glaser, the TCU art faculty member who helped organize the TCU showing of "The Artist and The Baseball Card," earned his master's degree from Syracuse University, where Tinkelman teaches illustration. "It has a universal appeal," Lewis said of the exhibit. "If you're an artist and an illustrator and know who the contributing artists are, you'll get excited from that aspect. If you love baseball, you'll love it because of that."

Baseball fans/art lovers also can enjoy free hotdogs and other ballpark foods as well as a special showing of the exhibit at a reception on Oct. 6 from 6 to 8 p.m. The reception, which will be located in the foyer outside the Moudy Building exhibit space, will feature baseball-themed musical favorites performed by the TCU Music Preparatory Keyboard Orchestra. At 7 p.m., Tinkelman will lecture in Moudy 141N. The exhibit, lecture and reception are free and open to the public.

Rental fees from TCU's showing of "The Artist and The Baseball Card," will benefit the Texas Area Special Olympics.

SYMPOSIUM TO FEATURE HARVARD PROF

Sacvan Bercovitch, Harvard University's Caswell Professor of English and American Literature, will be the keynote speaker at TCU's second annual Lorraine Sherley Literature Symposium.

The symposium, titled "A Limitless Field: Interdisciplinary Approaches to Literature," will be held Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Moudy 141N. The program is sponsored by the TCU English department and is designed to examine the resources of interdisciplinary approaches for teaching literature.

Dr. Bercovitch will give a speech titled "A Cultural Model of Literary Studies." He is a prominent theorist in cultural studies, history and American literature. Some of his best known works include The Rites of Assent: Transformation in the Symbolic Construction of America (1993), The Office of the Scarlet Letter (1991) and The Puritan Origins of the American Self (1975).

Joining Dr. Bercovitch on the symposium panel are Don Graham of the University of Texas, Johanna Smith of the University of Texas at Arlington, Robin Reid of East Texas State University and TCU faculty members Stephen Infantino, Alan Shepard and David Vanderwerken.

The event is named for the late Professor Sherley, a TCU alumna who was a member of the University's English faculty from 1927 until her retirement in 1971. Dr. Sherley was one of 10 educators honored as Minnie Stevens Piper Professor in Texas in 1965. The Shakespearean scholar, who was widely recognized for her leadership in literary and artistic circles, died in 1984.

The registration fee for the symposium is $15, and includes a lunch. Seating is limited. To register, please contact the English department at Ext. 7240.

FACULTY PAIR TO PERFORM OCT. 3

Music faculty members Gary Whitman and Janet Pummill will deliver a TCU Music Series performance Oct. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The performance is free and open to the public.

Gary, a saxophonist and clarinetist, and Janet, a pianist, will play pieces by Jean-Michel Damase, André Jolivet, Jacques Ibert, Francis Poulenc and Johannes Brahms.

NEW BOOK TO BE DISCUSSED

A new book by religion faculty member Ken Lawrence will be the topic of discussion at Borders Books & Music on Hulen Street on Saturday.

Judy Smith, TCU's associate director of publications, and painter Adrian Martinez will talk about the design and use of art in Imaging the Word, which is a verbal and visual exploration of art and the liturgical year. Ken edited, wrote and provided some photographs for the book, which was published by United Church /Pilgrim Press.

The event begins at 5 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

UNITED WAY MAKES A CRITICAL DIFFERENCE

By now, you've probably attended meetings or been personally approached about contributing to TCU's 1994 United Way campaign. If you're still thinking about whether or not to make a donation, here are a few facts about how your dollars might be used:

- $3 a week can provide hot lunches at a senior citizen center for 49 older adults.
- $4 a week can provide substance abuse education to 100 elementary school students.
- $5 a week will allow 40 individuals to receive drug abuse counseling, referral or education.
- $6 a week will give 17 hours of case management to people who are HIV positive or have AIDS.
- 86 cents of every donated dollar is used to provide critical human services in Tarrant County, including shelter and counseling for battered women and their children.

TCU's goal of $80,000 will meet the countywide 1994 campaign target of $21.62 million. Your gifts can be made through payroll deduction, cash or check, or request for billing by United Way through your pledge card. Please remember to return United Way cards and contributions to the appropriate vice chancellor's office by Sept. 29.

Questions about the campaign should be directed to Larry Lauer, campus campaign chair, or Linda Gilley, campus campaign coordinator, at Ext. 7808.

MAYOR TO SPEAK AT OSP LUNCH

Fort Worth Mayor Kay Granger will be the special guest speaker at an Office Staff Personnel Brown Bag Luncheon in the Student Center ballroom on Thursday. Mayor Granger will be introduced by TCU Executive-in-Residence and former Fort Worth Mayor Bob Bolen.

The event will begin at noon. Free coffee and iced tea will be provided. A lunch, which includes a turkey croissant, pasta and fruit salads, brownie and soda, is available for $6.95.

Reservations must be returned to Box 29458 by tomorrow (Wednesday). The event is being hosted by the OSP Programming Committee.

SIGNS SHOULD IMPROVE TRAFFIC FLOW

Interstate 35W motorists trying to find TCU now have some extra help. New road signs pointing the way to the campus were installed last week at the interstate's north- and south-bound Berry Street exits.

Signs directing motorists to TCU were not included as part of the I-35W reconstruction project, so Bob Bolen (senior advisor to the Chancellor) says TCU administrators met with city officials to discuss ways to improve access to the campus. Now, thanks to Walt Cooper of the city's transportation department and assistant city manager Mike Groomer, it'll be easier for those unfamiliar with the Fort Worth area to find TCU.

The meeting also resulted in the construction of a second left turn lane to east-bound Bellaire Drive at Hulen Street. The new lane will help improve traffic flow after TCU football games so people can get home a little faster, Bolen said.

VISITING RADFORD CHAIR NAMED

Jan Swearingen, former professor of English at the University of Texas at Arlington, has been named Visiting Radford Chair of Rhetoric and Composition at TCU.

The Radford Chair is designed to emphasize the importance of promoting the correct and effective use of English language in business, education and personal communication. It was endowed in 1985 by a $525,000 gift from the Rupert Radford State Trust of Houston and a $175,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. The permanent chair position was held by Susan Jarratt, a scholar in rhetoric and women's studies, during 1993-94. The original holder of the chair, Dr. Winn Horner, held the position from 1985 to 1993.

Jan received bachelor's, master's and the Ph.D. degree, all in English, from the University of Texas. She taught English at the University of Arizona, University of Michigan and Wayne State University before accepting a position at UTA in 1992.

In 1993, Jan was elected delegate for the Division on the History and Theory of Rhetoric and Composition at the Modern Language Association Delegate Assembly. She also was elected to the executive committee of the Rhetoric Society of America.

In 1991, Jan shared the W. Ross Winterowd award from the Journal of Advanced Composition for the most outstanding book in composition theory published in 1991. The book was Rhetoric and Irony: Western Literacy and Western Lies. Other books she has written are The Word: Studies in the Language of Religion and the Religious Meaning of Language and Old Wine in New Wineskins: Classical Rhetoric in the Multicultural Classroom.

FEMINIST THEOLOGIAN TO LECTURE

Feminist theologian Rita Nakashima Brock will provide a Brite Series lecture, "A New Thing in the Land," at 7 p.m. Oct. 4 in the Robert Carr Chapel. The event is free and open to the public.

Dr. Brock has held the endowed chair in the humanities at Hamline University in St. Paul, Minn., since 1990. She holds a Ph.D. in philosophy of religion and theology from Claremont Graduate School in Claremont, Ca., and has appeared on "Nightline With Ted Koppel." Her lecture will be based on Jeremiah Chapter 31.

FALL WRITING CENTER EVENTS SCHEDULED

The William L. Adams Writing Center will host several workshops this fall, including "Handling the Paper Load In W(riting) Courses," on Oct. 6; "The Writing Center as a Resource," on Oct. 31; and "Avoiding Sexist Language in Writing," on Nov. 30. All writing center events are free and open to the public. For more information, call Ext. 7221.

Mary Nell Kivikko (writing center) also would like to invite interested individuals to attend a regional meeting of the North Texas Writing Centers Association (NTWCA) Oct. 12 from noon to 4 p.m. at Weatherford College, and a NTWCA Peer Tutor Conference Oct. 22 at Collin County Community College. Membership in NTWCA is $5 per person or $25 per institution. For more information on these regional writing center events, call Mary Nell at Ext. 7221, or contact her through Email at kivikko@gamma.is.tcu.edu.

PARENTS, OTHERS TO ENJOY 'RHAPSODY IN BLUE'

"It's Rhapsody in Blue at TCU" is the theme for 1994 Parents Weekend Friday through Oct. 2. Sarah Forbes, 1994 Parents Weekend chair, has invited TCU parents to come relive the era of jazz and the big band sound and explore a world of fantasy and flamboyance.

Events on Friday will begin with a concert performed by the TCU Jazz Band from noon to 1 p.m. in the Student Center Lounge. At 6 p.m., dance students will perform in the Ballet and Modern Dance Building Studio Theatre. The night concludes with the annual talent show competition at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Parents can start Saturday off with fun and exercise during the 5K Fun Run/Walk around the TCU campus and surrounding neighborhood, beginning at 8 a.m. Parents and students are invited to the Chancellor's reception from 10 a.m.-11 a.m., where Chancellor Bill Tucker, Provost Bill Koehler, Parents Council members, and TCU faculty, staff and student leaders will extend a rip-roaring welcome to all. TCU faculty mini-lectures will begin at 11 a.m.

One of the big highlights of the weekend will be the football game against the Baylor Bears on Saturday at 12:07 p.m. To top off the day, there will be a picnic for everyone beginning at 4 p.m., with plenty of swanky music, dancing and good food. The International Students Association will end the festivities with a goodbye brunch on Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon.

The jazz and dance concerts are free and open to the public. The Chancellor's reception and the TCU faculty mini-lectures are free and open to TCU parents and students.

PHILOSOPHER SEARLE TO BE MOORE LECTURER

Noted philosopher Dr. John R. Searle, known for his work in artificial intelligence, will answer the question, "Can computers think?" Thursday and Friday during the third annual Moore Philosophy Lectures.

Searle will discuss "Minds, Brains and Computers" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and "Problems of Consciousness" Friday at 4:30 p.m. Both sessions will be held in Moudy Building 141N.

The Moore Lectures, hosted by TCU's Department of Philosophy, are made possible by a gift from the Ronald E. and Alexandra Moore Foundation, which has interests in the creative arts, intellectual pursuits, human rights organizations and programs dealing with child abuse.

Richard Galvin, chair of TCU's philosophy department, said Dr. Searle is recognized outside the circle of philosophy for his work in philosophy of language and mind as well as artificial intelligence.

Dr. Searle is The Mills Professor of Philosophy of Mind and Language at the University of California, Berkeley, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1959. The Rhodes Scholar received B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Oxford, where he later lectured. He was the Reith Lecturer on the BBC and is past president of the American Philosophical Association. Dr. Searle is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a board member of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

LIBRARY OFFERS WORKSHOPS

Two special resources workshops remain in a series offered this fall by the Mary Coutts Burnett Library. "The Internet as a Research Tool" will focus on how to access resources on the Internet from the library's database menus. The workshops will be Oct. 3 from 9 to 10:30 a.m.; Oct. 4 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; and Oct. 5 and 6 from 2 to 3:30 p.m.

Many U.S. government documents are not available online before they appear in print, while others are only available online. The "Government Online Resources" workshop will familiarize the researcher with available information and how to access it. Two sessions will be offered: Oct. 17 from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and Oct. 20 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Each workshop will be conducted in Room 219 of the library and is limited to 25 people on a first-come, first-served basis. To sign up for either workshop, contact Beverly Carver at Ext. 5338.

HARRIS TO HOST TWO EVENTS

Harris College of Nursing will host two discussions on health care topics during October. Both events are open to the public.

On Oct. 6, Donna L. Bertram, R.N., will speak on health care reform at the 19th annual Lucy Harris Linn Institute honoring Harris College's first dean. Bertram is senior vice president and chief operating officer for the Penrose-St. Francis Healthcare System in Colorado Springs, Colo. The event is scheduled for 5:30 to 9:15 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. Registration is $35 before Saturday; $45 after Saturday and $10 for undergraduate students with a valid ID. Call Linda Curry or Danna Strength at Ext. 7650 for more information.

On Oct. 13, the college will host a free presentation and roundtable discussion led by Dr. Jeanie Kayser-Jones, an internationally acclaimed nurse, anthropologist and researcher whose numerous studies have advanced the knowledge and dynamics of institutional care. Dr. Kayser-Jones will discuss factors affecting nutrition and eating behaviors of the older adult beginning at 2 p.m. in the Bass Building Living Room.

CYF DAY SET FOR OCT. 1

As many as 2,000 high school students and adult sponsors are expected to visit the TCU campus Saturday for an annual event: Christian Youth Fellowship Day.

The visitors — all members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) — will come from Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, New Mexico and all parts of Texas. Besides "checking out the campus," they will enjoy the TCU/Baylor game as well a pre-game meal and a post-game dance at University Christian Church.

PENSION FUND REP TO VISIT CAMPUS

A representative of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church will be on campus for personal conferences with faculty and staff members and retirees on Oct. 4.

Individuals may arrange conferences from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to discuss the pension fund as well as options available for retirement income, taxes, Social Security and related concerns. Call Human Resources at Ext. 7792 to schedule an appointment.

JUST A REMINDER . . .

... That a collection of short stories titled Letters from the Horse Latitudes: Short Fiction by C.W. Smith, was recently published by TCU Press. Set in the Southwest and Mexico from about 1920 through 1990, the book is available at the University Store. (Beverly Lowry was incorrectly named as author of Smith's novel in last week's Bulletin.) The first trade edition of Elmer Kelton's novel, Manhunters, No. 22 in the Texas Tradition Series, also is available through University Publishing, Drawer C, College Station, Texas 77843-4354. (1-800-826-8911).

Please keep in mind that the deadline for receiving news items for the Bulletin is Tuesday at noon for publication in the following week's issue. The Communications Office is located in Room 321 of Sadler Hall. Information also may be mailed to Box 30776.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Research by new political science faculty member Joanne Green was included in a Sept. 8 Washington Post article. The study, which examined women's odds of winning political office, discussed a paper presented earlier by Joanne at the American Political Science Association convention in New York. Joanne examined primaries for open House seats between 1982 and 1990 and found success rates between the sexes were comparable. She also concluded that if more women ran, more would win.

The TCU/Kansas game proved to be more than just a contest between two football teams, but actually turned out to be a friendly "Battle of the Bands" between TCU band director Rob Foster and his father, KU band director Bob Foster. Rob, who played center for KU's football team before "marching on" to TCU two years ago, told a Lawrence (Kansas) Journal-World writer that there's "a little competition" between the two bands. The Star-Telegram also picked up on the story.

David Rotman (Class of '90) was featured in the Tarrant Business section of the Sept. 12 Fort Worth Star-Telegram. David, 26, opened Cafe Aspen, a successful contemporary American cuisine restaurant near Fort Worth's Cultural District, when he was 21.

The M.J. Neely School of Business was featured in the Tarrant Business section of the Sept. 12 Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an article concerning the recent release of the 1995 edition of the Princeton Review Student Access Guide to the Best Business Schools. In the article, Kirk Downey, dean of the business school, says that despite minor word changes, he is pleased with the book.

TCU football was once again featured in a special section of the Sept. 15 Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The TCU Extra section featured offensive lineman Barret Robbins, quarterback Max Knake and linebaker Marcus Allen. Question-and-answer articles featured head Coach Pat Sullivan and defensive tackle Royal West.

The TCU Purple-Powered Pep Rally on Sept. 16 was featured in several articles in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and received live and taped coverage on several local television stations. Channel 4 and Channel 8 interviewed TCU board of trustees chairman John Roach. Channels 5 and 11 also did stories on the pep rally. In the newspaper's Sept. 17 issue, a picture of purple-spirited students took up most of the page, along with a picture of the new Frog Horn. A picture in the Sports section featured head Coach Pat Sullivan making the Horned Frogs' sign. In the accompanying article, Pat and defensive coordinator Pat Henderson discussed the Frogs' playing strategy.

The resurgence of Frog Fever was the topic of a Texas News 5 report on Sept. 22. Reporter Terry Briggs interviewed Coach Pat Sullivan, quarterback Max Knake and other students and discussed the TCU vs. Texas game and outstanding attendance at the TCU vs. Kansas game.

Doug Newsom (journalism) had a busy media week recently. On Sept. 14, she appeared on Channel 5 to discuss what elements make a company a good working environment for women. On Sept. 17, she was quoted in the Star-Telegram regarding the removal of a piece of art from the Moudy Building. A recent issue of Cosmopolitan magazine also lists her public relations principles text as one of the best places to find out about the field.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Harriet Harral (Center for Productive Communication) recently led a working session on team-building for the national staff of the Woman's Missionary Union in Birmingham, Ala. She spoke at a kickoff to a weeklong strategic planning retreat for the staff, which is in transition to self-managed teams.

Dale Huckaby (chemistry) presented a lecture and chaired a session at the Max Born Symposium held in Kudowa Zdrój, Poland, this summer. Dale also spoke at a workshop on "Applications of the Pirogov-Sinai Theory of Phase Transitions" at Charles University in Prague. Dale later presented a seminar at the Institute of Theoretical Physics in Lausanne, Switzerland, and spoke at a workshop in Lyon, France.

Don Dansereau (psychology) presented a review of cooperative learning at a conference on the practical aspects of memory in College Park, Md. He also has contributed a chapter on cooperative learning for an upcoming book, Learning, Remembering, Believing: Enhancing Human Performance, to be published by the National Academy Press in Washington, D.C.

Troy Schmanke (graduate student, psychology) and Tim Barth (psychology) presented a paper at the Southwestern and Rocky Mountain Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Durango, Colo.

Sally Fortenberry (design and fashion) and Nell Robinson (emeritus, nutrition and dietetics) attended the 1994 National Biennial Conclave of Phi Upsilon Omicron National Honor Society this summer at the University of Wisconsin-Stout. Nell is currently serving as the society's National Alumni Chairperson. Sally is Phi Upsilon Omicron's local chapter advisor, its District Councilor for Texas and was recently elected to its National Education Foundation Board of Directors. She also attended the American Home Economics Association's 85th Annual Meeting and Exposition this summer in San Diego as an official committee delegate.

An article by Sally and Lark Caldwell (fashion and design) was published in the summer issue of the Texas Home Economist Research Issue.

Babette Bohn (art and art history) wrote a review of Angela Ghirardi's Bartolomeo Passerotti Pittore (1529-1592) that appeared in a recent issue of Master Drawings.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Fans of David Mamet who don't want to wait until his volatile play Oleanna comes to the big screen on Oct. 21 may want to catch the live version beginning tomorrow at Stage West. In an interesting twist, TCU theatre faculty member Steven Breese will play a professor brought up on charges by his student, who is played by Steven's former student, Jennifer Bradshaw (Class of '94). Tickets for the limited engagement, which runs through Saturday, are available at 784-9378.

Lee Daniel (modern languages and literatures) has received an advance copy of his second book to be published this semester — Cuentos de Beyhualé — published by York Press of Canada. The book is a critical edition of stories by award-winning Mexican writer Joaquín Bestard.

Stan Trachtenberg (English) has been awarded a grant by the National Endowment for the Humanities to direct a summer seminar for school teachers. The seminar will focus on coming of age in contemporary fiction and will examine the novels of Thomas Pynchon, Toni Morrison and Philip Roth.

Harriet Risk Woldt (emeritus, music) participated in the Baroque Performance Institute at Oberlin College in June. She also taught at the annual Conclave of the Viola de Gamba Society of America in Raleigh, N.C., in July, and at a workshop for viola players at the University of New Mexico and Camp Hummingbird in Jimenez Springs, N.M., in September. Harriet remains active in Fort Worth Early Music.

Brig. Gen. Susan Lewellyn Pamerleau, commandant of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., visited the TCU campus on Sept. 22 to meet with Lt. Col. John Householder, detachment personnel, members of the Air Force ROTC cadet corps and Chancellor Bill Tucker. Brig. Gen. Pamerleau is responsible for recruiting and overseeing the preparation of more than 11,000 officer candidates through a comprehensive college program at 147 host universities.
