TRUSTEE PLEDGES $1 MILLION TO FUND BRITE HOUSING

A challenge grant of $1 million has been pledged to the University by Brite Divinity School trustee Wayne Moore to help fund new housing for Brite students. The pledge was announced at a Feb. 9 luncheon sponsored by TCU as part of TCU Ministers Week.

A $200,000 pledge, also to fund Brite housing, also was recently made by another Brite trustee, Robert Leibrock. Both trustees live in Midland.

Because Brite's present housing units have deteriorated to the point where it is no longer economically prudent to renovate them, raising $4 million to fund attractive new campus housing for seminary students and their families has been identified as one of the top goals of the $13 million Brite fundraising campaign. The Brite goal is part of the University's overall $100 million Next Frontier Campaign.

A successful rancher and geologist-oilman, Mr. Moore has served as a Brite trustee since 1968 (under four deans), and has been chair of the board since 1975. Mr. Moore's wife, the late Jo Ann Moore, was a '38 TCU graduate and served on the TCU Board of Trustees from 1972 to 1988. She was an honorary trustee from 1988 until her death in 1991. In 1976, Mr. and Mrs. Moore established an endowment fund for Brite students in honor of their daughter, Pearl Moore.

Brite's first fully endowed professorship, the Harold Glen Brown Professorship of Pastoral Ministry (originally titled the Disciples Professorship of Pastoral Ministry), was created in 1978 by Robert M. and Prudie Leibrock. A petroleum engineer by trade, Mr. Leibrock directs his own oil and gas exploration firm. He has been a member of Brite's Board of Trustees since 1987, has served as a trustee of Midland College and is currently president of the Abell-Hanger Foundation.

What's in a name? 'NAME THE NEWSLETTER' CONTEST SEEKS YOUR IDEAS

The communications office is fashioning a new, updated internal publication to meet the needs of the TCU community and we need your help. On the back page of this issue of today's Weekly Bulletin, you'll find a form where you can jot down your ideas for a name for the new internal publication. The new newsletter, which will be designed to improve upon the Weekly Bulletin, will feature stories about TCU people, activities and events. The best entry will receive two $10 gift certificates for dinner or lunch at Romano's Macaroni Grill at 1501 South University.

The form is addressed to us, so simply tape or staple it and put it in interoffice mail no later than Feb. 21. The winner will be announced in a few weeks, so watch the Weekly Bulletin for results!

TRUSTEE DIES IN ABILENE

Trustee Ralph Hooks Sr. died last week in Abilene after a long illness. Mr. Hooks was named to the Board of Trustees in March 1975 and became an honorary trustee in March 1993. He also was a member of the Brite Divinity School's Board of Trustees since 1972 and became an honorary member of that board in 1993.

Mr. Hooks received numerous honors in his lifetime. In 1944, he was presented the Bronze Star from the U.S. Navy for his heroism in World War II and he was named Citizen of the Year by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce in 1967.

Funeral services for the former Abilene mayor and president of Lydick-Hooks Roofing Company were held Friday, Feb. 10, at First Christian Church in Abilene. Mr. Hooks was remembered as a caring and extremely generous man. He is survived by his wife Nelle; a daughter, Elizabeth Ann Hooks Adams, of Dallas; a son, Ralph Hooks Jr., of Lubbock; his two grandchildren; and a niece and nephew. Memorials may be made to the First Christian Church, Hendrick Medical Center Foundation or West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene.

CONVENTION ATTRACTS LANGUAGE EXPERT

Researcher best known for chimp research

Noted research scientist Dr. Duane Rumbaugh, known for his work in human language experiments with Lana the chimpanzee, will be the featured speaker for the 6th Annual Psi Chi Student Convention Friday and Saturday. Hosted by TCU's psychology department, the event is expected to attract more than 60 students from the southwest and south central United States who will present scholarly papers on psychological topics.

Dr. Rumbaugh, who is director of the Language Research Center of Georgia State University, will discuss "Language, Great Apes and Great Challenges" in the Student Center ballroom at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Dr. Rumbaugh broke ground on language research when he led a team of scientists that taught a chimpanzee to learn language-relevant skills. The Language ANAlogue Project, or LANA Project, was conducted in the early 1970s and used a computer-monitored keyboard to teach chimpanzees unique geometric symbols that functioned like words. Lana, the first subject used in the project, learned not only the function of individual symbols on her keyboard, but also how to combine those symbols to get what she wanted.

The LANA Project resulted in additional studies, including one at the Georgia Retardation Center involving severely and profoundly mentally retarded children and young adults. About half of the people in the study who had failed to learn any means of communication benefited from the principals derived from the LANA research as they learned how to communicate through symbols.

An added attraction of the Psi Chi event will be a planning session conducted by Dr. Stephen Davis, national president of Psi Chi, a 250,000-member organization dedicated to the scholarship and practice of psychology. Davis will work with convention-goers to develop policies that will influence psychological education and practice into the 21st century.

Dr. Rumbaugh will speak following a noon luncheon in the Student Center ballroom on Saturday. Tickets for the luncheon are $8, and reservations are required no later than noon tomorrow (Wednesday). Contact the psychology department at Ext. 7410 for details. Dr. Rumbaugh's 1 p.m. presentation is free and open to the public.

SERVICES HELD FOR RUTH WHITLOCK

Services were held Saturday at All Saint's Episcopal Church for Ruth Hendricks Whitlock, professor of music and director of music education studies at TCU. Ruth, 60, died Tuesday at Harris Methodist Hospital after a long illness.

Ruth joined the TCU music faculty in 1975 as an adjunct assistant professor of music, and became a full professor in 1993. Her outstanding accomplishments as an educator were recognized when she was honored as a Mu Phi Epsilon Outstanding Faculty Award winner in 1979 and as a Mortar Board Preferred Professor in 1987 and 1993. Her accomplishments were also recognized by the World Who's Who of Women and the World Who's Who of Musicians; the Who's Who in the South and Southwest; Who's Who in American Education; Who's Who in American Women and Foremost Women of the Twentieth Century. In 1988, a Texas Choral Directors Association scholarship, funded by her ex-students, was named in her honor.

Ruth was born in McAllen, Texas, and attended high school there. She earned her B.A. from Tulane University; her M.A. from Occidental College in Los Angeles and her Ph.D. from North Texas State University (now the University of North Texas). She taught public school music at all levels and was an active lecturer, clinician and consultant in the fields of choral music and music education. She contributed as an author, co-author, editor and/or consultant to numerous publications.

Ruth was a member of the American and Texas choral directors associations, the Texas Music Educators association and conference, Mu Phi Epsilon, Pi Kappa Lambda and Kappa Alpha Theta. She also was a member of All Saints Episcopal Church and its choir.

Ruth's survivors include her son, Hal Summers of Fort Worth; mother, Lucile Hendricks of McAllen, Texas; and sister, Judith Rodriguez of Washington, D.C.

Ruth's body was donated to the University of North Texas Health Science Center at Fort Worth/Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Memorials may be made to the Ruth Whitlock Scholarship Fund, Texas Choral Directors Association, P.O. Box 6472, Austin, Texas 78762-6472.

LEADERSHIP DAY IS FEB. 25

TCU's new Leadership Center, a central clearinghouse for student leadership education, development and research, will host its first annual TCU Leadership Day on Feb. 25.

The purpose of Leadership Day is to provide leadership development workshops for various campus groups, programs and individuals, said Barbara Brown Herman, director of Student Development Services.

"Since many campus organizations have officers who begin their terms in January, Leadership Day will provide an opportunity to meet the training needs of these persons," Barbara said. The workshop is also available to other students who may want to improve their leadership skills.

Faculty and staff members will provide instruction and training in subject areas including: assertiveness, communication skills, budgeting, conflict management, decision-making, delegation, negotiation, goal-setting and marketing.

The Leadership Center is currently housed in the offices of Student Development Services in the Student Center. For further information on the Leadership Center or Leadership Day, call the center at Ext. 7855.

AUDIENCES WILL GET DANGEREUSES PREVIEW

TCU theatre students will demonstrate stage combat from their upcoming production of Les Liaisons Dangereuses in the Student Center lounge at noon on Feb. 22. TCU theatre faculty member and Les Liaisons Dangereuses director George Brown will discuss the play and stage combat as part of a brown bag lunch presentation. The event is free and open to the public.

TCU Theatre's production of Les Liaisons Dangereuses, a French tale of sexual manners, manipulation and tragedy, runs Feb. 22-26 in the University Theatre. Performances are at 8 p.m. Feb. 22-25 and at 2 p.m. Feb. 26. Admission is free to TCU students and employees. Reservations may be made at Ext. 7626.

ONLINE BUSINESS INFO TOPIC OF LIBRARY WORKSHOP

Annual reports, investment analysis and full-text news are just a few of the billions and billions of bytes of business information items available online through the Mary Couts Burnett Library.

Figuring out how to navigate online business services will be the topic of the "Electronic Business Resources" workshop scheduled tomorrow (Wednesday) from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. in the library.

The workshop, led by Jo Klemm and June Koelker, will focus on using Dow Jones News Retrieval, Business NewsBank, Business InfoTrac, Disclosure and the CARL Uncover Table of Contents Service.

Jo, a reference desk librarian, is a veteran of the online world, having spent more than six years combing data bases for business-related information. June is associate director of the library and is responsible for purchasing business-related references.

Two future workshop dates include April 8 from 10 a.m. to noon, and 2-4 p.m. April 13.

The workshops are free, but registration is requested. Contact the library reference desk at Ext. 7117 or send Jo or June an e-mail message to sign up. Jo is available at j.Klemm@TCU.edu, and June can reached at j.Koelker@TCU.edu.

CAREER NIGHT IS THURSDAY

Students looking for internships or employment after graduation will have a chance to meet with dozens of human resource professionals during TCU Career Night from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday. Representatives from 34 organizations with products ranging from financial services and retail to healthcare and education will gather in the Student Center ballroom for the event.

Ginger Nichols, Career Center assistant director, urges faculty members and sponsors of student organizations to tell students about this event, sponsored by the Career Center, the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity and the Public Relations Student Society of America.

Interested students are encouraged to pick up a list of participating organizations and available positions from the Career Center, located in the Student Center annex. Additional information is available at Ext. 7860.

BRITE GRADUATES HONORED AT FEB. 7 LUNCH

At a Feb. 7 Ministers Week luncheon sponsored by the Brite Alumni/Alumnae Association, three Brite graduates were honored with the school's first Distinguished Minister Awards.

Among those honored were Dr. Kenneth L. Teegarden, who received the award for distinguished ministry for regional and national service; the Rev. Ron Somers-Clark, who is also a TCU graduate, for distinguished ministry in specialized ministries; and the Rev. Martin E. Pike Jr., also a TCU graduate, for distinguished ministry at the congregational level.

GENERAL MOTORS AWARDS TCU 1ST PRIZE

Fourteen TCU marketing students took a challenge from General Motors to change campus opinions of the automaker's Oldsmobile products. And the students won a first-place prize for their efforts.

The TCU students' promotion for the General Motors Internship program was judged best of the seven staged by Texas colleges and universities during the fall 1994 semester. The award carries a $2,000 cash prize. This is the second year for TCU to participate in GMI and the University's second year to win. Last year, TCU students earned a second-place prize for their promotion.

Marketing majors apply for the privilege of being in the project, for which they receive three hours of credit, says Bill Moncrief, marketing department chair. He notes that GMI gives students an opportunity to gain experience working with a real client, and the experience makes their degrees more valuable.

The competition is designed to give students a chance to be involved in the numerous aspects of a marketing and promotional campaign. Under the direction of faculty advisor John Thompson, the TCU team sought to change the existing perception of the Oldsmobile product line as "boring" and "family-oriented," increase the awareness of the various Oldsmobile services and draw attention to the local Oldsmobile dealership, Meador Oldsmobile.

ROTC FACULTY MEMBER GOES ON AIR

Air Force Capt. Dondi Coston, assistant professor of aerospace science, will be joining two Army representatives on Martin Birnbach's "Jobs and Careers" call-in program from 10 a.m. to noon, Sunday, Feb. 19, on KLIF Radio (AM 570).

Dondi and Capt. Jacqueline Amaya, a representative of the Army Medical Department Procurement Office in Dallas, will be joined by Maj. David Hoffman from the Army ROTC program at the University of Texas at Arlington. The military panel will discuss merit scholarships for college and medical training, military job opportunities and leadership and management training during military service.

STUDENTS, EMPLOYEES 'ADD UP' ADDY AWARDS

The design and writing skills of TCU students and faculty and staff members were recognized at the Advertising Club of Fort Worth's 1995 Addy Awards competition Feb. 4 at the Radisson Plaza Fort Worth.

In the professional area of the awards show, awards went to two art and art history faculty members: a bronze to Margie Adkins and a silver to Lewis Glaser. Lewis also received a bronze award for an Art Camp poster illustrated by Gorland Mar of University advancement.

TCU staff members also were recognized. University advancement's John Maddox and Dee Dodson received a silver award for their work on The Next Frontier Campaign case statement. John also received silver awards for his design of the Office of Admissions' "Music at TCU" brochure and the TCU/Chisolm Trail Western Seminar brochure, which was written by Judy Alter (TCU Press) and coordinated by Diane Lovin (extended education).

Two other University advancement staff members, Judy Smith and Ma'lisa Laidlaw, received a bronze award for the 1995 Spring Fine Arts Calendar.

The student division was virtually swept by winning entries from TCU communication graphics students. Graduating senior Fletcher Martin was the big winner, collecting four gold ADDYs, three silver awards, best of show honors and a special Judges' Choice Award. Other TCU student winners include: Shawn Adams, Holly Aguilar, Kristin Braaten, Jeffrey Brezeale, Tammy Fantini, Marcie Fisher, Tina Fitzgerald, Christie Grotheim, David Jones, Susie Kang, Tanya Pereira and Heather Renders. Other competing schools included the University of North Texas and Tarrant County Junior College.

DALLAS BLACK DANCE THEATRE TO CELEBRATE BLACK HISTORY MONTH

In celebration of Black History Month, the Dallas Black Dance Theatre, the oldest continuously operating professional dance company in Dallas, will be performing in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The performance will be the showcase of the third annual observance of Black History Month at TCU and is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight (Tuesday).

Tickets for the performance are $5 and can be purchased at the Student Center information desk as well as at the door. Reserve seating is available. TCU students, faculty and staff will be admitted free of charge with a TCU I.D.

For more information or for ticket availability, call Ext. 7926.

WOMEN'S AIKIDO WORKSHOP OFFERED

The Office of Extended Education is offering a women's Aikido Workshop Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. Aikido, a non-violent form of self-defense, will be taught by Lynn Fabia, Yondan (4th degree black belt). Ms. Fabia has been practicing Aikido since 1982 with the founder and director of the international Aikido Association, Bill Sosa.

Deadline for registration is today (Tuesday). The registration fee is $20 for adults and $15 for students. The workshop is open to all women and involves hands-on participation, including demonstrations. No experience is necessary for the dance-like movements used in the martial arts. The motions are relaxed and no tension is used. Aikido has an internal, soft style combining physical action and mental exercise. For more information about the workshop, call extended education at Ext. 7130.

MBA OPEN HOUSE IS SATURDAY

Corbett Christie, president of Harris Methodist Health Foundation, will speak Saturday about the importance of a master of business administration degree in today's business environment at an MBA open house hosted by TCU's M.J. Neeley School of Business from 10 a.m. to noon.

The free, public event will be held in the Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center, Room 320 in Tandy Hall. The TCU graduate business program and admission process will be discussed, and a student panel will answer questions and offer students' perspectives regarding the program.

The Neeley School, identified by the Princeton Review as the leading business school in the United States for building communication skills, offers both full-time and evening graduate studies.

SYMPOSIUM TO FOCUS ON RHETORIC AND COMPOSITION

The fifth annual symposium on the teaching of composition, sponsored by the English department and graduate students in English, will be Feb. 25 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration will begin at 8:15 a.m. in the Student Center ballroom.

"What Comes after Rhetoric and Composition?: Issues Facing the Discipline" will feature Janice Lauer, a prominent scholar in rhetoric and composition from Purdue University, as the keynote speaker. Meta Charstarphen from the University of North Texas and Peter Vandenberg from DePaul University also will present their research. In addition to several visiting scholars, TCU English department chair Neil Daniel and TCU faculty members Joe Law and Brad Peters will be speaking.

TCU's visiting Radford Professor of Rhetoric, C. Jan Swearingen, also will present her work in composition and rhetoric. After each presentation, audience members will be encouraged to participate in small group discussions with the speakers.

Anyone interested in the field of composition and rhetoric is invited to participate. The registration fee is $15, or $25 with lunch provided. Registration forms are available in the English department, Reed Hall 314. For fmore information, please contact Rachelle Smith at TCU Box 32829 or Ext. 7240 or e-mail Smith at rsmith@gamma.is.tcu.edu.

TCU GUILD MEETS THURSDAY

A trio of music majors will perform for the TCU Guild at its luncheon Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Giordano.

Music will be presented by tenor Carr Hornbuckle and by two members of a musical Fort Worth family: soprano Amy Pummill and pianist Sallie Pummill, both TCU seniors.

Guests are welcome and reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Jack Estes at 738-0206.

FIRST WOMEN'S SYMPOSIUM TO BE HELD FEB. 15-16

The new Women's Resource Center, located in the Student Center, will host the first Women's Symposium, "A New Frontier for Women," tomorrow and Thursday. The symposium is designed to give women students an opportunity to hear from successful TCU alumnae about women's issues in the workplace and at home, said Kay Higgins, center director

The symposium will target particular issues that affect women on college campuses. Expert speakers will discuss topics ranging from rape to women's health to leadership styles to sexual harassment in the workplace.

The symposium is targeted toward TCU women students, but is open to all faculty and staff members, Kay said. There is no registration for the symposium. Participants can attend all or just a few of the lectures and discussions.

The symposium will kick off in the Student Center lounge tomorrow (Wednesday) at 11 a.m.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Christina Murphy and Steve Sherwood of the William L. Adams Writing Center have a new book out — The St. Martin's Sourcebook for Writing Tutors — published in January by St. Martin's Press. The book provides an introduction to the tutoring process and is designed for use in tutor training courses and programs.

Nancy McCauley, LaLonnie Lehman and Steven Breese (theatre) attended the Texas Educational Theatre association conference Jan. 26-28 in Austin. At the conference, LaLonnie served as judge and Nancy served as critic for the student theatre design competition. The competition included scenic, costume and lighting design for high school, undergraduate and graduate students. Steven judged student acting auditions by college-bound high school students.

Harold Glen Brown (retired, Brite) has learned that an article he wrote in 1982 for Leadership magazine is being included in an anthology of best articles in Leadership since its inception in 1980. The anthology, Empowering Your Church Through Creativity and Change, is being copublished by Moorings, a Ballantine imprint of Random House.

William H. Beezley (Penrose Chair of Latin American History) recently delivered presentations on Mexican cultural history to seminars at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois, Chicago.

Don Frischmann (modern languages) traveled nearly 1,000 miles around the Yucatán Península in January, continuing his research on contemporary Mayan ritual and drama. His essay, "New Mayan Theatre in Chiapas: Anthropology, Literacy, and Social Drama" appeared in Negotiating Performance: Gender, Sexuality, and Theatricality in Latin/o America, published by Duke University Press.

Shari Barnes (human resources) addressed the Ninth Annual Young Pharmacist Leadership Conference on "How to Cope with Job Itch and Burnout." The Jan. 21-22 meeting was sponsored by the University of Texas and was held in Austin.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Andy Miracle (sociology) was quoted in a recent article in The New Mexican on the purported increase of domestic violence on Super Bowl Sunday. While there is no data to support such a notion, the idea has been presented as fact for a couple of years. Andy suggests that this is an example of a popular myth.

W. Edward Reed, Jr. (criminal justice) has been a guest commentator on Texas News Channel 5/39 for the People vs. Orenthal James (O.J.) Simpson trial on two occasions. Mike Androvett, legal reporter, has engaged him regarding non-legal aspects of the trial, such as domestic violence, racial composition of the jury, portrayal of the defendant by the media and the courtroom work group maneuverings.

Four Horned Frog pitchers made headlines last week. Toby Dollar, Scott Atchison, Derek Lee and Flint Wallace combined for TCU's first no-hitter in 10 years and its first 9-inning no-hitter ever. The foursome compiled 13 strikeouts en route to a 10-1 victory over Abilene Christian. Abilene Christian's lone run came on an error in the third inning of the ball game.

Horned Frog senior sprinter Donovan Powell also was in the news. Donovan appeared in the Star-Telegram after qualifying for the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championship by posting a 6.19 second time in the 55 meters at the Rocky Mountain Cup in Colorado Springs, Colo. Junior Brashant Carter also qualified as a provisional qualifier as did the Frogs' mile-relay team of Dallas Cowan, Lloyd Edwards, Khadavis Robinson and Carter.

Not to be left out, women's tennis player Deirdre Walsh and men's team member Ashley Fisher were profiled in the TCU Extra page of the Star-Telegram. Walsh posted a 6-2 record in Southwest Conference play last year. Ashley, and teammate Jason Weir-Smith, are ranked 16th nationally in doubles play.

International ballet star Fernando Bujones caught the media's eye and the public's attention when he served as a visiting Green Honors Professor at TCU Feb. 2-4. His three master classes were packed with students from TCU and other area universities, as well as ballet professionals and other advanced dancers. The classes also attracted as many as 200 observers to one session. Ballet lovers also turned out for a forum with Bujones hosted by alumna Sharon Benge. Bujones' visit, which was hosted by the ballet and modern dance department, received coverage in the Star-Telegram and on WRR-FM.

TCU's Ranch Management Program is featured in this month's Purple Circle Magazine. The article, written by Victor Neil of the communications office, is part of the magazine's "College Opportunities" series. Purple Circle Magazine is a livestock magazine that targets America's youth.
