Festival to celebrate its 18th year

JAZZ GREATS TO JOIN FORCES WITH TCU ENSEMBLES

Stethoscope and slide rule will meet slide trombone when a registered nurse and a mathematics professor join forces with renowned jazz trumpet artist Clark Terry and celebrated drummer Louie Bellson in concerts featuring the TCU Jazz Ensembles. The concerts, part of TCU's 18th Annual Jazz Festival, are set for March 31 and April 1 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Bellson and Terry will trade licks with the TCU Jazz Ensembles, which comprises the Tuesday-Thursday Band; the Purple White and Blues Vocal Jazz Ensemble; and the Monday-Wednesday-Friday Band. The last group includes TCU music student Louise Wilson, R.N., on lead trombone and TCU mathematics faculty member Ken Richardson on tenor saxophone.

For the first time, the Jazz Festival will be presented by the TCU Fine Arts Guild, which provides or supports nine student scholarships in TCU's College of Fine Arts and Communications. Other Jazz Festival events will include master classes presented by Terry and Bellson on March 31 and an all-day High School Jazz Band Festival on April 1.

Known as "America's #1 Jazz Educator," Terry is an author and sought-after clinician, an advisor to the International Association of Jazz Educators and director of the Clark Terry International Institute of Jazz Studies at Teikyo Westmar University. Bellson, a four-time Grammy Award nominee, has performed and/or recorded with Benny Goodman, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Tommy Dorsey and a host of other greats, and has made numerous appearances at the White House and the world's capitals.

Directed by Curt Wilson, the TCU Jazz Ensembles have appeared in concert with a variety of notable jazz artists and have performed in the Soviet Union, Poland, Austria, Germany and Hungary as well as at the Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland.

The Terry/Bellson/Jazz Ensemble concerts will begin at 7:30 p.m. General admission tickets are $5 for students, $6 for senior citizens and $10 for all others. Tickets are available at the door and at the University Theatre Box Office (Ext. 7626). The master classes and high school band competition are free and open to the public. Call Ext. 6625 for more information on all Jazz Festival events.

EVENT TO CELEBRATE THE LIFE OF RUTH WHITLOCK

Over the 60 years of her life (20 of them as a member of TCU's music faculty), Dr. Ruth Whitlock touched many lives as an educator, mentor, colleague and friend. Many of those who were part of her life will visit TCU March 20 to contribute to a memorial celebration in her honor. The celebration will begin at 2 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium and is open to all.

Ruth, a professor of music and director of music education studies, died Feb. 7 after a long battle with cancer. She joined TCU's music faculty in 1975 as an adjunct assistant professor and became a full professor in 1993. Among her many honors was being named Mu Phi Epsilon Outstanding Faculty Award winner in 1979 and a Mortar Board Preferred Professor in 1987 and 1993. In 1988, a Texas Choral Directors Association scholarship, funded by her ex-students, was named in her honor.

Ruth taught until the day before she lost her battle with cancer, said Ken Raessler, music department chair. "Certainly that is a credit to the high commitment to teaching which universities applaud. Both her students and her former students respected her highly and speak warmly, many times boastfully, of the hours spent in her classes."

Some of those students as well as colleagues from around campus and the state will participate in the memorial celebration, which will include music performed by TCU's Camerata, Symphony, Jazz Ensemble and Concert Chorale, and Emmet Smith, Herndon Professor of Organ. Several individuals will offer insights into Ruth's life and contributions, including student Jonathan Wallis, former student Brad White (Class of '79), religion faculty member Ken Lawrence, and music education colleagues Rosemary Heffley and Carol Smith. Chancellor Bill Tucker will conclude the celebration with his comments.

IT'S YOUR LAST CHANCE TO NAME THE NEW PUBLICATION

The response to the second round of the "Name the Newsletter" contest has been overwhelming: More than 130 ballots were received by March 3. If you haven't voted, there's still time to cast a ballot to select a name for an entirely new publication about TCU people and activities. The finalists are: Campus Connections, TCU Connections, Inside TCU and TCU Currents.

Pick your favorite name and fill out the ballot attached to this edition of the Weekly Bulletin and return to the communications office no later than March 10. (Just one entry per person please.) We will announce the winner in the March 21 edition of the Bulletin.

RANGERS TICKETS NOW AVAILABLE

The Chancellor's Office is offering tickets for 1995 Texas Rangers home games. Tickets are given to faculty, university and general staff who did not receive tickets during the previous season and are offered on a first come/first served basis.

Two tickets may be reserved by calling Mary Nell Kirk at Ext. 7783 beginning today (Tuesday). "Individuals need to be flexible concerning dates, as tickets go quickly," Mary Nell said. "There also is a waiting list of those who did not receive tickets last year and they have first choice."

More than 160 employees will be able to attend a game with a guest. The Chancellor's Office asks that unused tickets be returned to them so they may be distributed to the waiting list.

The Next Frontier

CAMPUS CAMPAIGN GAINS MOMENTUM

Gifts to TCU's $1.5 million Next Frontier Campus Campaign have reached $759,401, according to campaign co-chairs Spencer Tucker and Sandy Ware. TCU faculty and staff kicked off the campaign in October. The campus campaign is part of the University's five-year, $100 million comprehensive fund-raising effort.

Many University departments have been meeting over the past several weeks to learn more about the campaign and how individuals may participate in The Next Frontier. Some departments have developed specific projects to be included in the campaign, such as scholarship funds, travel funds or equipment funds.

"These special projects enable departments to identify areas of need in their area or University-wide," said Roby Key, assistant vice chancellor for University advancement. "Individuals can determine exactly how their gifts are going to benefit TCU."

In other campaign news: Plans are underway to kick off The Next Frontier Campaigns in Dallas and the Permian Basin in April. Special events are planned for each area's kickoff. Nationally, The Next Frontier campaign is making significant progress toward its $100 million goal. Total campaign commitments now stand at more than $67 million.

NEW BOARD PUTS SPOTLIGHT ON TCU'S FINE ARTS IMAGE

Defining TCU's fine arts image and identifying and promoting TCU's outstanding fine arts programs and individual "stars" are primary goals of the 19 members of TCU's newly established Fine Arts Board of Visitors.

"The board is trying to pinpoint five fine arts 'areas of excellence' at TCU that they can promote over the next 12 to 18 months," explained Dean Bob Garwell of the College of Fine Arts and Communication. The group also plans on identifying individual faculty members and students to spotlight on a rotating basis, Dean Garwell added. "They want to focus on a few programs and individuals at a time and really get to know them. By focusing in that way, they can use their efforts to build interest in fine arts programs, faculty and students at TCU and make them real to the community."

Board members hope to increase public awareness on local and national levels, and promote and expand international initiatives. Board members also will serve as advisors to Dean Garwell on strategic planning, marketing and philanthropic matters.

The board identified areas of interest and received an overview and historical perspective of TCU's fine arts programs at its first meeting Feb. 10 and 11 at the home of board chair Ron Moore. Several task forces will be formed to begin addressing those areas before the board's next meeting in fall.

The board includes business and arts leaders, public relations and marketing experts and "patrons who are committed to the arts and arts at TCU," Dean Garwell said.

Members of the board include several alumni: Moore, Class of '65; Carol Alexander, '68; Ernest Allen, '48; Jerita Buschman, '46; Pat McCall, '57; Kendal Perryman, '78; Ann Rhodes, Ranch Management, '80; Dee Smith, '77; William Walker, '56; Jay Upchurch, '78; Jay Jacks, '62, and his wife, Marta Jacks, '62; and Kathy Stevens, '61. Other members include Fort Worth/Dallas Ballet Association board member Julie Otero, Kimbell Art Museum Director Ted Pillsbury, public relations firm president Jane Schlansker, performing artists' manager Susan Tilley, and arts patrons Anne Bussey and Rae Schollmaier.

*Students prepare for Sister Cities tourDANCERS TO PERFORM MODERN, CLASSICAL WORKS

New and reworked pieces ranging from classical ballet to dramatic modern dances will be the bill of fare when TCU student dancers present their spring concert today (Tuesday) through Thursday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The concerts are free and open to the public. Performances will begin at 8 p.m.

Four of the pieces presented at the concerts will be taken "on the road" when 17 student dancers as well as TCU faculty and staff members travel to Trier, Germany, and Reggio Emilia, Italy, in late March. While there, students will take classes and present concerts with local dancers.

Dances that will be performed at TCU and in Europe will include:

- "Four Parts Mozart," a piece choreographed by faculty member Stephanie Rand. This expanded version of a piece presented at TCU's dance concert last fall "pokes fun at classical ballet and its dancers in a loving way," said Ellen Page Garrison, TCU ballet and modern dance department chair.
- "What Goes Around Comes Around," a three-part modern piece by faculty member Susan Douglas Roberts. TCU dancers also will present this work at the American College Dance Festival in San Marcos, Texas, on March 10.
- "Lilith Begot Eve . . . and Hunting Season Began," a modern dance staged by faculty member Susan Haigler-Robles that centers around a Jewish mythical character in the Garden of Eden. An earlier version of this piece was presented at TCU's 1994 spring dance concert.
- "Youth," an award-winning, abstract classical ballet work by ballet master-in-residence Li-Chou Cheng set to music by Antonin Dvorak.

TCU alumnae choreographed two new works that will be performed solely at the spring concert on campus. "And Not to Yield," a modern work inspired by rock climbing and its parallels to human life, was created by Andrea Harris. "Spanish Moods/Siluetas," a two-part work choreographed by Christine Marie Hay of Ballet Concerto, will blend Spanish dance and ballet.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Harriet Harral (Center for Productive Communication) and four Neeley School MBA students were featured Feb. 28 in a Channel 5 news report on gender communications. The students included Chris Westfall, Jeanette Neller, Paul Morgan and Jennifer Crosby.

John Schuster (counseling center) recently appeared on Texas News Channel 5/39 to discuss the effects a lengthy trial could have on the attorneys and jury members participating the O.J. Simpson case.

Curt Wilson (music) and other members of the Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show Rodeo Band were featured in a lengthy article in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Ralph Guenther (emeritus, music) was featured in the January issue of Pan Pipes, the publication of the national music sorority, Sigma Alpha Iota. The publication included an account of Ralph's compositions, publications and performances during the past year. This publication has included Ralph's contributions each year since 1955. Two of Ralph's former TCU students, Glenn Spring and Andy Patterson, also were featured.

A letter by Aubrey Taylor (Class of '60) appeared in a recent issue of Smithsonian magazine. Aubrey was writing in response to a lengthy article on the endangered horned frog. Aubrey pointed out that the article failed to mention notable Horned Frogs legends — like Sammy Baugh or Bob Lilly — who attended TCU.

With the basketball regular season winding down, the Associated Press has named it's 1994-95 All-SWC Team. TCU center Kurt Thomas was selected for first team honors while shooting guard Juan Bragg was named to the second team. Kurt also was named Player of the Year as well as Defensive Player of the Year. Juan, who is still a freshman, walked away as Newcomer of the Year.

VISITING PROFESSOR TO GIVE CHEMISTRY LECTURES

As one of this year's visiting Green Honors Professors, Dr. Ronald Breslow will present two public lectures tomorrow (Wednesday). Dr. Breslow will present "Mechanistic Studies Relevant to Enzymes and Enzyme Mimics" to the chemistry department at 4 p.m. in Sid Richardson Lecture Hall 4, and "The Chelate Effect in Binding, Catalysis and Chemotherapy" at a Sigma Xi lecture at 8 p.m. in Sid Richardson Lecture Hall 3.

The president-elect of the American Chemical Society, Dr. Breslow is one of America's preeminent chemists. A native of New Jersey, Dr. Breslow earned both his undergraduate and graduate degrees at Harvard University and spent a year in Cambridge prior to joining the faculty at Columbia University. He recently became one of seven University Professors at Columbia.

Dr. Breslow has been involved in a variety of research areas, including studies of aromatic and antiaromatic systems, investigations of enzyme mechanisms and construction of enzyme mimics.

In recognition of his outstanding contributions to science and teaching, Dr. Breslow has accumulated a host of awards, including the American Chemical Society Award in Pure Chemistry, the Arthur C. Cope Award of the American Chemical Society and the Award in Chemical Sciences by the National Academy of Sciences. Dr. Breslow has also been honored by Columbia University as a recipient of the University's Mark Van Doren Medal and the Great Teacher Award by the Columbia Alumni Association.

Green Professors are distinguished individuals who visit the campus as a result of a gift from Dr. Cecil H. Green of Dallas and his wife, the late Dr. Ida Green. This year's professors have included CBS Evening News co-anchor Dan Rather, who was a guest of the radio-TV-film department, and international ballet star Fernando Bujones, who was a guest of the ballet and modern dance department.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Gene A. Smith (history) has been notified that his article, "Floating a Republican Idea: Jefferson's Gunboats at New Orleans" will be awarded the General Jay A. Matthews Jr. prize for the best article in Volume 24 of Military History of the West. The prize carries with it a cash award and a plaque. The award will be presented on April 1 at the annual conference of the National Guard Association of Texas in Houston.

Congratulations are in store for the men's and women's swimming and diving teams. Both squads received the College Swim Coaches Association's Academic Swimming Team Award for the fall semester of 1994. To qualify for this award, the entire team must have had an overall GPA of 2.8 or better. This marks the ninth semester in a row for the women to achieve this honor and it is the second time for the men. Only 27 men's and 38 women's division I teams reached this level of excellence last semester.

William Watson (chemistry) was profiled in The Welch Foundation's 1994 annual report. Dr. Watson, who first learned about The Welch Foundation as a graduate student, has received continuous funding from the foundation over the past 35 years. The Welch Foundation provides research grant funds throughout Texas.

Paul F. Boller Jr. (emeritus, history) recently wrote the essay, "Humor and Satire about Congress" for the Encyclopedia of the United States Congress.

David Grebel (Print Services) was recently elected to a three-year term on the board of directors for the First Texas Council of Camp Fire. He is also serving as co-chair of the 1995 Financial Development Campaign for Camp Fire.

Wilma Jean Tade (emeritus, communication science and disorders) recently published a new book, Children's Early Intervention in Speech, Language, Reading. The publication includes a text and supporting instructional materials. The book is based on Wilma's 24 years of instructional experience at TCU's Miller Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Winifred Bryan Horner (Ida and Cecil Green Distinguished Emerita Tutor and Radford Chair Emerita) recently published an article, "George Campbell (1719-1796)," in Eighteenth-Century British and American Rhetorics and Rhetoricians. The Hodges Harbrace Handbook, which she co-authored, also was recently published.

Fred Erisman (English) has been recognized as an Alumnus of Notable Achievement by the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Minnesota. Fred was recognized for his work as a scholar and teacher.

Greg Marshall and David Finn (marketing) have been informed that a special session they proposed for the upcoming 1995 American Marketing Association Summer Educators' Conference has been accepted. The session is titled, "Linking Internal Customer Service Quality to External Service and Customer Satisfaction." In addition to Greg and David, presenters from four other universities will participate in the session.

Al Mladenka (Director of International Student Services) has been appointed to fill the vacated position of the Texas Private School Representative on the board of the Texas Association of International Education Administrators. His term will run until November 1995.

Harriet Harral (Center for Productive Communication) chaired a session on "Gender and Mentoring Issues" at the Association for Business Communication, Southwest Regional Conference in Houston March 3. The program was a part of the larger Southwest Federation of Administrative Disciplines meeting.
