Denver 1, Colorado.

Dear Mr. Huss:

I appreciate your offer to assist in retrieving pieces of the Sept. 9th fall here in Texas, and your very fair attitude, but I think Mr. Mininger misunderstood me.

I don't want to be a dog in the manger, but I am perfectly happy handling the matter as I am. I may not do as good a job as I could with your professional assistance, but so what?

I am an amateur. I do it for fun, and I don't want to reduce it to a business. Science is being overdone now, anyway; let's face it. And I don't like being taxed by the government for a lot of the foolishness that is going on.

With the assistance of friends, we have put in 12 man-days on this project. The fall is a very fragile carbonaceous chondrite, and is not likely to be found in any great quantity, tho we are vigorously tracing the usual terminal ball.

Yours most sincerely,

cc H. H. Mininger,
