
Fort Worth Man Hunting Details On Meteor Flight

An amateur astronomer, Oscar Monnig of Fort Worth, is searching for Sherman area residents who saw the meteor streaking across the sky Saturday night.

Monnig, who operates a dry goods store, said the meteor exploded over the Sherman area. He wants to determine exactly where here. Monnig thinks particles from the meteorite may be found in the Bells-Whitewright area.

He would like for residents in the Sherman area to be on the lookout for pieces of black solid rock (not porous) which appear heavy for their size. Anyone who saw the meteor or finds strange rocks has been asked to write Monnig at 29 Chelsea Dr., Fort Worth.

Monnig, who has been chasing meteors for the past 25 years, will be in the Sherman area later this week to talk with residents.
