HONORS TOPIC IS 'END OF THE WORLD'

"It's the End of the World as We Know It . . . and I Feel Fine!" will be the topic for the Fall Honors Retreat Sept. 7-8 at YMCA Camp Carter. Deadline for making reservations at the Honors office (Ext. 7125) is next Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Cost of meals and cabin accommodations for the retreat, which will continue through noon Saturday, Sept. 8, is $10.

Opening softball game between the "yuppies" (students) and the "hippies" (faculty) will begin at 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 7, followed by "Cold (War) Leftovers" (barbecue picnic) at 6 o'clock. Historian John Bohon will deliver the keynote presentation, "Something Happened," at 7:15 p.m.

Leading the 8 p.m. discussion groups will be Anantha Babbili (journalism), "Apocalypse Now: Via the Fourth Estate"; Chuck Becker (economics), "The Role of Debt and Its Implications for Change"; John Breyer (geology), "One Extra Large World with Fries—and Make That to Go: Media Misuse of Science for Political Ends"; Mike Dodson (political science), "Democracy for the Benighted: Operation 'Just Cause' and Other Ironies."

Others are Bob Donahoo (English), "Bang or Whimper—Just Let It End"; Dale Huckaby (chemistry), "The Enemy -- Through the Iron Curtain or Through the Looking Glass?"; Glenn Kroh (biology), "And Where Have All the Biomes Gone?"; Keith Odom (English), "Hobbits, Unicorns, and Arnold Schwarzenegger: Fantasy in Our World"; and Frank Reuter (history), "Is History Really Dead?"

At 9:15 p.m., Andy Fort of religion-studies will make the wrap-up presentation, "No End of the World as We Know It," to be followed by group skits around the camp fire at 10 p.m.

Stephen Benoit, junior psychology major, is retreat chairman, and Mimi Hester, sophomore majoring in political science, will be in charge of Saturday morning games.

After breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday, games will begin at 9 a.m. Teams are Fluorocarbon Corps, captained by senior elementary education major Melanie Barnett; Greenhouse Gang, led by Darren Carlton, senior English major; Eschatological Evangelists, sophomore Jason Bronner; The Un-Common Markets, Cheryl Gaston, senior political science major; Staypuff Marshmallow Men, Greg Morningstar, senior political science major; and The Berlin Wallfallers, Jackie Brewer, junior majoring in English.

ENTERING M.B.A. CLASS BIGGER, BETTER

"Bigger and better" describes the 1990 fall class of M.J. Neeley School of Business graduate students with its larger size and higher test scores.

This fall's 102-student M.B.A. class, nine students larger than last year's, has an average GMAT score 15 points higher than the previous entering class, according to Academic Program Director Rob Rhodes.

"Students in this class are slightly older," Rob also noted. The average age is about 25 year old, and one out of three students is female.

"We are seeing an increase in the number of students with undergraduate degrees from schools outside the state of Texas," said Admissions Director Leslie Neugent. "We seem to be broadening our range," she added.

One-third of the full-time M.B.A. students hold degrees from schools outside the state, including institutions such as Purdue, Wheaton College and Tulane. Nearly three out of four part-time students earned degrees from schools outside Texas. This year's class also includes international students from West Germany, Poland, India, China and Indonesia.

TWO TRIPS PLANNED FOR ALUMNI

For those eager to go south, the TCU Alumni Association has two early 1991 trips headed in that direction.

An 18-day deluxe air/sea cruise to the South Pacific will include travel aboard the Royal Viking Sea for 12 nights with visits to the Australian and New Zealand ports of Melbourne, Christchurch, Wellington, and Auckland and to Hobart, Tasmania. The round-trip flight goes from Dallas/Fort Worth Airport to Sydney on Feb. 22 and returns March 11 from Auckland. Bookings before Sept. 28 include a $400- per-couple savings.

The March 7-21 cruise around South America goes from Buenos Aires through the Strait of Magellan and Cape Horn to Valparaiso aboard Sun Line's Stella Solaris. Optional is a cruise extension to Santiago, Chile. Nov. 30 is the deadline for a $400-per-couple saver on reservations. Additional information is available from the alumni office, Ext. 7803.

Initial concepts of the University's master plan were reviewed Aug. 21 during Design Week Workshops coordinated by the master plan committee and the architectural firm of Lockwood, Andrews & Newman Inc. The project, inaugurated in the spring to compare program needs to space and building needs, included departmental visits and interviews over several months.

Exploring preliminary ideas is the purpose of the workshops. During last week's sessions in Tandy Hall, the consultant team displayed a number of graphics depicting components of the campus ranging from electrical systems to parking areas in addition to discussing the current phase of the plan's development. For the on-going process, a second Design Week is set for mid-September.

Representing all phases of the University community, a master plan committee was appointed early this year, according to Vice Chancellor Edd Bivin. The LAN firm of Dallas was selected on the basis of the committee's report and review of prospective contractors.

The master plan consists of two segments: assessment and inventory of present facilities, which began in late May, and development of a plan. Following an early June kickoff meeting, interviews were conducted with executive, key academic and support staff members. Preliminary results of the interview process were heard by the committee in mid-July.

Master plan alternatives are due to be completed by the planning team for presentation Oct. 1. Shortly thereafter LAN proposes the presentation of alternatives to the board of trustees' building and grounds committee and to the executive staff. In November the architects intend to present the audit and completed project proposal to that committee and possibly to the trustees for their approval, Bivin said.

BAND OFFERS PREVIEW THURSDAY

There'll be music in the air Thursday evening...thanks to the Horned Frog Band. The musicians will give a preview of the halftime show planned for this season's Sept. 1 football game with Washington State. Sponsored by the TCU Ex-Bandsmen's Association, Thursday's event will begin at 8:15 p.m. at Amon Carter Stadium.

1990 IMAGE RECEIVES ALL-AMERICAN HONOR

With five marks of distinction, the 1990 IMAGE has received the honor rating of All American in the national critical service of the National Scholastic Press Association.

The Associated Collegiate Press award, the highest given by ACP/NSPA, is based on the number of marks of distinction. TCU's student feature magazine, edited last year by Regina Anderson, had the top number of five marks in the categories of content, writing and editing, layout, concept and photography, art, graphics and typography. It also received the highest total of points possible in the competition.

The judges' summary described IMAGE as "very professional magazine...variety, content and appearance is just as good as a magazine one would buy at a newsstand. Fine work throughout." Among its strengths, the judges noted that it "demonstrates quality writing and quality thinking."

POLI SCI MAJORS ARE GRAD SCHOOL-BOUND

The political science department deals with an increasingly large number of students who go on to graduate school. Each semester Charles Lockhart conducts a seminar for students (regardless of major) on the process of applying for and gaining acceptance to graduate schools.

Of the department's 54 spring graduates, nine who have gained admission to distinguished graduate programs are Jeff Bostic, University of Minnesota Humphrey School of Public Policy; Tracy Brown, University of Missouri-Columbia; Stan Hubbard, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University; Carrie Laughlin, University of Maryland; Katherine Milikin, University of South Carolina; Jody Neathery, Rice; Renee Robinson, University of Minnesota; Eleanor Sanborn, School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University; and George Tahu, George Washington University. These lists do not include pre-law graduates.

DAVIS TO BE UCC INTERIM MINISTER

Just as President Bush worked during much of his Kennebunkport vacation, so did Gilbert Davis of development fit some sermon-writing into his New Mexico sojourn last week.

Gilbert, director of church relations and development since 1971, will serve as interim senior minister at University Christian Church from Sept. 1 through Dec. 31. He will be in his Sadler Hall office on a limited basis.

The ministerial role is a familiar one for Gilbert. The Brite graduate pastored churches in Camden, AR; Ayden, NC; Galena Park and Hereford, TX; and Shreveport, LA, before returning to campus in his present position.

HORNER RECEIVES NCTE GRANT

English professor Winifred Horner is one of 23 scholars/researchers from across the nation who received 1990 grants-in-aid from the research foundation of the National Council of Teachers of English. The awards are designated for studies of aspects of teaching of English in a program designed to help educators learn more about the teaching and learning of reading, writing and other facets of the English language arts as well as current concerns of English teachers.

Named initial holder of the Lillian Radford Chair of Rhetoric and Composition in 1985, Win is the only representative of a Texas institution. Other universities with awardees include Harvard, Stanford, Purdue, Wisconsin, Arizona, California at Berkeley, Rutgers, Nebraska, Illinois and New Mexico.

"Three Scottish Rhetoricians: Bain, Aytoun, and Jardine" is the title of Win's project.

DANCE HOSTS THREE ARTISTS

Even though school just started yesterday, the dance department is already in its second week of intensive work with three artists-in-residence, Lily Weiss, John Mead and TCU alumna Kerry Kreiman.

The residencies are part of the New Century Danscene. That project, now in its third year, focuses on developing and expanding the Fort Worth modern dance audience through elementary and middle school performances as well as teaching residencies and concerts by area, state and national choreographers.

Weiss, a teacher at Dallas Arts Magnet High School and a guest artist at SMU this year, also has worked with Dancers Unlimited and Dallas Black Dance Theatre and is artistic coordinator for Dallas Dance Gathering. Mead, an internationally known choreographer, recently returned from a stint in Hong Kong and also has worked with Bejarta Ballet Lausanne in Switzerland. A 1984 graduate, Kreiman earned her M.F.A. degree from the University of Illinois and has taught at Culver Academy in Indiana.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Chemists DALE HUCKABY and JIM KELLY and former graduate students RICARDO RODRIGUEZ and FANNY WOO are co-authors of a paper entitled "Iron-Porphyrin Models of Hemoprotein Enzymes: Mechanism of Decomposition of the Deutero-ferriheme Analogues of Peroxidase Enzyme Intermediates," which appeared in a recent volume of the journal Inorganic Chemistry. The study focused on the activity of a particular iron-complex which serves as an effective model for the study of the chemistry of selected enzymes. Fanny received her Ph.D. degree from TCU in May. Ricardo, whose degree was conferred in 1987, recently completed a three-year appointment at the National Cancer Institute (a branch of NIH) in Frederick, MD, and this month returned to Texas to accept a position on the faculty of Texas Wesleyan University.

An article entitled "Chile: memoria de una provincia subvertida" by ARTURO FLORES (modern languages) was published in Mundo Año 4 Número 20 (abril, 1990).

JUNE CLEMENTS (retired, English) expresses gratitude for the response of the TCU family to the death of her husband, Jack Clements, on July 21. "Your thoughtful gestures of sympathy, calls, cards, letters, flowers and memorial gifts have been comforting."

DARYL SCHMIDT (religion-studies) recently attended the 1990 general meeting in Milan of Studiorum Novi Testamenti Societas, the international society for New Testament scholars. A week later he participated in the international meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature in Vienna, where he presented a report on his preparations for writing a new Greek grammar.

LEANNE HEDGES (music) judged the Jeanne Axtell Walker Piano scholarship auditions for the Fort Worth Independent School District Aug. 20.

The mathematics department was represented at the Joint Mathematics Meetings at Ohio State University Aug. 8 to Aug. 11 by faculty members CHARLES DEETER, GEORGE GILBERT and RHONDA HATCHER. The meeting celebrated the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Mathematical Association of America on the Ohio State campus and also included meetings of the American Mathematical Society, the Association for Women in Mathematics and Pi Mu Epsilon (honorary mathematics fraternity).

George was appointed associate editor of Mathematics Magazine. Rhonda presented her paper "Can Students in Core Requirement Courses Do Mathematics on a Creative Level?" during the MAA session on liberal arts mathematics courses. Prominent among the invited speakers for the meeting were several former Visiting Green Professors for the mathematics department, including Saunders MacLane (University of Chicago), Phillip J. Davis (Brown University) and Judith V. Grabiner (Pitzer College).

An article by JUDITH SOLOMON (music) entitled "The Pianist as Vocal Accompanist: Servant or Partner?" was reprinted in the June issue of the Journal of Research in Singing and Applied Vocal Pedagogy. VINCENT RUSSO serves as editor of this official publication of the International Association for Research in Singing.
