EXTRAVAGANZA WILL FEATURE 40 AUTHORS

Elmer Kelton, John Graves, A.C. Greene, Carole Nelson Douglas, Joyce Roach, Cissy Stewart Lale — these are just a few of the 40 authors participating Friday in the annual TCU Press Autograph Extravaganza.

To be held from 4 to 7 p.m. in the new Botanic Garden Conservatory on University Drive South, the public event is co-sponsored by TCU Press and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as an opportunity to browse through books and visit with well-known authors.

Book sales will be handled by Connections Bookstore, and light refreshments will be served.

A complete set of the Texas Tradition Series — 15 classic novels reprinted by TCU Press — will be raffled, with proceeds of that sale going to the Fort Worth ISD Visiting Author Program which brings published authors into the classroom to discuss their work with students. The Texas Tradition Series includes six novels by Kelton as well as works by Robert Flynn, Benjamin Capps, Bryan Woolley, C.W. Smith and others. The $1 tickets will be available at the door or may be purchased in advance at Connections Bookstore.

First held in 1981, the extravaganza formerly was held on the TCU campus but was moved to the new Botanic Garden building in 1989 to provide easier parking and larger quarters. Following last year's success, when a crowd of more than 300 bought several hundred books, planners enlarged the event by inviting more local authors.

KELTON TO BE HONORED SATURDAY

"Louis L'Amour's heroes are six-foot-six and invincible; mine are five-foot-eight and nervous."

That's Elmer Kelton's own assessment of the leading characters in his 30 Western novels and 50-plus short stories. The noted Texas novelist will be reading about his realistic heroes and autographing the books they appear in during an event sponsored by Friends of the TCU Library and TCU Press from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Saturday at Mary Coats Burnett Library. Everyone is invited.

KELTON (continued)

The reality of the West comes naturally to Kelton, a native of Crane and the son and grandson of working cowboys. A journalism graduate of the University of Texas, he was associate editor of Livestock Weekly for more than 20 years before his retirement.

The recent winner of Western Literature Association's Distinguished Achievement Award, Kelton also received the Levi Strauss Golden Saddlemans Award from Western Writers of America for his contributions to the general body of Western literature and the Texas Institute of Letters Barbara McCombs/Lon Tinkle award for continuing literary excellence.

TCU Press Editor Judy Alter has said that Kelton is often seen as a regional rather than a mainstream author, so many of the New York editions of his novels have gone out of print. In 1984 TCU Press began reprinting Kelton's books in a quality paperback series, The Texas Tradition. The first of those novels, "The Time It Never Rained," has won both the Western Writers of America Spur Award and the National Cowboy Hall of Fame Western Heritage Award.

Other reprints include "The Good Old Boys" and "The Man Who Rode Midnight," both Western Heritage winners; and "Stand Proud," "The Wolf and the Buffalo" and "The Day the Cowboys Quit," the latter also a Spur Award winner.

Kelton also will be among 40 regional authors at the TCU Press Autograph Extravaganza from 4 to 7 p.m. Friday at the Botanic Garden Center.

SUNDAY EVENT SET FOR ALUMNI DONORS

A luncheon at the Dallas Museum of Art, complemented by a theatrical program, will precede the tour of "The Wanderers: Master of the 19th Century Russian Painting" planned Dec. 2 for alumni donors.

For the first time, the exhibition presents nearly 10 works by a group of artists who sought to advance the cause of social reform. The theatrical work entitled "Rappin with Repin" is a grant-supported play by theatre chairman Andy Harris. Combining drama, slides and music, it provides a short introduction to the exhibition to enhance an understanding of the art works.

The by-invitation event, sponsored by the TCU Dallas Association, is limited to 100 persons on a first-come, first-served basis. A $25 fee includes the 12:30 p.m. luncheon, the 1:30 p.m. program and the docent-guided tour of The Wanderers exhibit. Round-trip bus transportation, leaving from Amon Carter Stadium at 11:30 a.m., will be available for an additional $5 per person. Reservations, due today (Tuesday), are being made through the alumni office.

FEGHALI PLANS FIRST SOLO RECITAL

Jose Feghali, in his first solo piano recital as TCU artist-in-residence, will open his Monday performance with Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" — with good reason. The first half of his TCU Music Series recital, beginning at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium, will focus on dances, many of them from his native Brazil.

Jose, who won the Van Cliburn Competition's coveted Gold Medal in 1985, will play "Valsa da Dor" by the noted Brazilian composer Heitor Villa-Lobos as well as four works by Ernesto Nazareth, whose tangos established him as the most influential Brazilian popular composer of the 20th Century. Villa-Lobos praised Nazareth as "the true incarnation of the Brazilian soul."

He also will perform three tangos by Nazareth and "Apanhei-te, Cavaquinho" (choro) and "Valsa Suburbana" by Oscar Lorenzo Fernandez, Brazilian conductor/teacher/composer known for works based on his country's folk songs. He will close the first half of the recital with Chopin's "Andante Spianato and Grand Polonaise." After intermission, he will play Robert Schumann's Symphonic Studies, Op. 13, a dozen symphonic etudes.

Born in Brazil in 1961, Jose gave his first public performance at age five and played with the Brazilian Symphony Orchestra three years later. A graduate of London's Royal Academy of Music in 1981, he was active as a professional teacher and coach until 1985.

Jose has concertized around the world since winning the Cliburn Gold Medal. He plays annually in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo and is a regular performer at Carnegie Hall, the Kennedy Center and in other major halls throughout the United States and Europe. He became TCU's artist-in-residence at the beginning of the fall semester, following Mme. Lili Kraus and Steven De Groote.

TRADITION OF CARD FUND CONTINUES

Among campus traditions is the "In-Lieu of Christmas Cards Scholarship Fund," which was established during the 1972 holiday season to encourage giving to a scholarship fund instead of sending holiday greetings to on-campus friends.

Initiated by Dean Libby Proffer and others, the practice has enabled both faculty and staff members to accomplish two goals — extend greetings to TCU friends and help deserving students through the scholarship program.

Last year's contribution totaled $645, bringing the fund's total to $8,602.50.

Contributions may be made in the Financial Aid Office, Sadler Hall Room 108 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. The donor should indicate his/her wishes as how the name should be listed. If the donor wishes the contribution to go to a specific scholarship fund, this should also be designated. Donors will be listed in the first bulletin issue in January.

PRESS REISSUES FORT WORTH HISTORY

Oliver Knight's classic history entitled "Fort Worth, Outpost on the Trinity" has been reissued by TCU Press with an essay on 20th-Century Fort Worth by Cissy Stewart Lale.

First written to celebrate the city's centennial, this robust and colorful history was part of the Star-Telegram's 480-page centennial edition in 1949. Using the newspaper's reference library and interviewing members of its staff who had participated in the history of the city, Knight wrote a book that began with Fort Worth's origins in the trail drive days of the cattle industry and traced its growth through meat-packing houses, the oil boom and the advent of aviation.

Included are colorful stories of an early Indian attack on the army camp, the gunfight of Luke Short and Jim "Longhair" Courtright, the flight of "Daredevil" Cal Rodgers and hundreds of others.

In her essay entitled "Corporations and Culture," Lale traces the development of the city since the 1950s, noting that the last four decades have seen the city go from a "home-owned hometown to an international hub of air transportation, defense industries, corporations and culture." She also cites the establishment of local philanthropic foundations as a major factor in the city's growth.

Knight left the Star-Telegram to pursue graduate studies in history at the University of Oklahoma and then the University of Wisconsin, where he earned the Ph.D. degree. Convinced of the need for a single-volume history of Fort Worth, he submitted his work to the University of Oklahoma Press, which published it in 1953. The book sold for $3.75 and was out of print by 1960. Second-hand editions today sell for upwards of $50.

Knight taught history at the University of Texas at El Paso from 1967 until his death in 1983.

Lale recently retired after a 38-year career at the Star-Telegram as woman's and art editor and as a daily columnist. For several years, she and Knight were co-workers on the newspaper staff. A native Texan, Lale holds a degree in journalism from the University of Texas at Austin.

Illustrated with 35 photos and several maps, the new paperbound edition of "Fort Worth, Outpost on the Trinity" has an index and an extensive bibliography. Priced at $16.95, it is available in the University Bookstore.

NEW STAFF APPOINTMENT

Named reference librarian effective Oct. 15, SANDRA SCHRAG was associated with the Kansas State University library for nine years, serving as documents librarian since 1982. She earned the B.A. and Master of Librarianship degrees at Kansas State and the M.S. with a major in English at East Texas State University.

BRITE TO HOST BIBLICAL SCHOLAR

Dr. Walter J. Harrelson, an international scholar in the fields of biblical studies, Jewish-Christian dialogue, social justice and ecumenism, will lecture Thursday at Brite Divinity School. His presentation is sponsored by the TCU Research Fund Lectureship Series Award and by First Christian Church in Port Arthur.

Formerly dean of both University of Chicago and Vanderbilt divinity schools, Dr. Harrelson will present a public lecture on "Spirituality in the Hebrew Scriptures: Holiness, Justice and Community in Ancient Israel and Today," at 7 p.m. Thursday in Student Center ballroom. The lecture will be followed by a discussion session and a reception.

Also open to the public will be a community conversation, "Christian Misreadings of Basic Themes in the Hebrew Scriptures," at 11 a.m. that day in Weatherly Hall at Brite.

Dr. Harrelson, who is emeritus Distinguished Professor of Old Testament at Vanderbilt, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina who earned the Bachelor of Divinity and the doctorate from Union Theological Seminary. He also has taught at Andover Newton Theological School in Boston and at Union seminary and has been rector of the Ecumenical Institute for Theological Research in Jerusalem.

A prolific writer, Dr. Harrelson has most recently co-authored "Jews and Christians: A Troubled Family." His other books include "The Ten Commandments and Human Rights" (1980), "From Fertility Cult to Worship," (first published in 1969 and re-issued in 1970 and 1980) and "Interpreting the Old Testament." The professor was vice chairman of the revision committee for the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible and associate editor of the recent Mercer Dictionary of the Bible.

GRAPHICS MAJORS SHOW THEIR WARES

If your major is communication graphics, how do you get a job? By showing a good portfolio, of course.

Eight communication graphics majors who will be earning their degrees in December decided to display their portfolios all at once. They have invited all the prospective Metroplex employers they could think of to a 6-9 p.m. reception Monday in TCU's Moudy Building Exhibition Hall. There they will serve pizza and tout their wares.

The public also is invited to the reception and to the communication graphics show continuing through Dec. 7. Hours of the showing are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Seniors whose work will be on display are Steven Dowdy of Crowley, Holly Reynolds of Southwest Fort Worth, Julianna Hammond of Loveland, CO, Jason Reynolds of St. Louis Park, MN, Janet Schoenfeld of Harlingen, Jennifer Freese of Bloomington, MN, Alice Meadows of Austin and Margarita Tejada of Guatemala.

TCU IN THE NEWS

"A tribute to learning" was the Star-Telegram caption for the color photo of the Neeley sculpture in front of Starpoint School that appeared in the Oct. 29 issue. In the photo were 17-month-old Alden Neeley Williams and her aunt, Lane Williams, as they looked at the statue commissioned and dedicated by trustee M.J. NEELEY in honor of his wife, the late Alice Snead Neeley.

"Predicting what the undecideds will do is tricky business" was political scientist JIM RIDDLESPERGER's comment in a Star-Telegram story Nov. 4 about the recent election. He added that so many potential voters would be so alienated by election day that they wouldn't vote at all.

"It's pretty graphic" was the headline in the Nov. 5 issue of Tarrant Business that noted that TCU artists' brochure won the top award in the recent Fort Worth design show. The "best of show" winner was a brochure designed by the art department under the direction of MARGIE ADKINS for the campus-sponsored typographic symposium. Other winners from the University were announcements for the performing arts festival, TCU/Fort Worth Week and the 1989 faculty art show.

Senior SARAH NORMAND, who recently became the bride of Clark Hall director MICHAEL KERNER, was the subject of Sheila Taylor's Oct. 28 column entitled "Sarah grows into her dreams" in the Star-Telegram. A lifetime friend of the columnist's daughter, Sarah is a senior majoring in journalism. Michael earned his degree here in 1989.

Senior ROBIN DOUGLAS, public relations major from DeSoto who will graduate next month, was the subject of several photos in recent issues of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, including a color shot on the front page Nov. 9. The attention was the result of her winning a Pontiac Grand Am through the paper's Lucky Stars contest.

Among journalists taking part in KXAS-TV's recent Spectrum program on women in locker rooms were KIRK JOHNSON (sports information) and PHYLLIS MILLER (journalism).

"Keepers of the flame honor the soldiers who never came home" was the caption for the Star-Telegram's Nov. 9 photo of ROTC cadets SABRINA SKOPP and RACHEL SCIRE guarding the candle during TCU's annual 24-hour vigil memorializing prisoners of war, soldiers missing or those killed.

The use of videodiscs on a list of approved textbooks for school districts, as reported in the Nov. 13 Star-Telegram, will benefit richer children first, according to CATHY COLLINS (education), who was quoted in the story. "What I want to see happen is all children having access to the technology," she said.

In the Star-Telegram's Nov. 15 story entitled "Union negotiators may race uphill battle with GD," BOB GREER (management) noted that the right of arbitration is guaranteed for any worker fired during what GD believes is a non-contract period. A verbal agreement can serve as a contract, he said, and workers "may not be deprived of access to that in the grievance procedure."

MORE TCU IN THE NEWS

Students JUSTIN ELLIOTT and JEANNE SCHROEDER, representing the Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight, were shown in a Homecoming parade picture in the Nov. 11 Star-Telegram.

Three of 16 seniors on the football team — CEDRIC JACKSON, LAJUAN KYLES and CHUCK MOONEY — are currently working on master's degrees, and two recent graduates — DAVID RASCOE and CLINT HAILEY — received their master's degrees in five years, according to a Nov. 11 Star-Telegram story in which Athletic Director FRANK WINDEGGER supported five years of eligibility. It also noted that five current seniors will graduate next month, and seven of the remaining eight seniors are due to graduate in May.

HOLIDAY FESTIVITIES BEGIN THIS WEEK

Beloved carols, "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," sparkling Christmas lights and festive gifts will brighten the holiday season through a series of events on campus.

Celebrations will begin with caroling as the University Christmas tree is illuminated at 10 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) at the entrance of Sadler Hall. Under the tree will be gifts for needy children chosen to make their holiday wishes come true. Students, staff and faculty member provided the presents through Order of Omega's Spirit of Christmas program.

Providing an opportunity to purchase unique, handcrafted items by 30 local artisans for holiday giving, the Christmas Fair will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Student Center lounge. Sweat shirts, dolls, ceramics and Christmas decorations will be among the diverse items sold.

"The Best Little Christmas Pageant Ever," Readers Theater's traditional gift to the community, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 29 in Moudy Building 141. Cut from the full-length book, the presentation will tell the story of a family of mischievous children whose performances appear to spell disaster for their school's Christmas pageant but instead teaches them the meaning of the holiday.

'DESSERT THEATRE' BRINGS COMEDY

"Dessert theater" comes to campus Dec. 4 with a witty two-character comedy, "Same Time, Next Year." The play ran for well over three years in New York and has been performed throughout the world. Presented by the nationally acclaimed touring company, Repertory Theatre of America, Alpha-Omega Players, the play is sponsored by the Performing Arts Committee.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. The $3 tickets can be purchased at the information desk.

DEVOTO, LANE JOIN CATERING SERVICE

Two persons have assumed new assignments in Marriott's catering service. The announcement was made by Assistant Vice Chancellor Don Mills.

Larry DeVoto has assumed responsibilities as assistant director and will be aiding Clark Hampton with catering needs through the Christmas holidays. Since 1988 he has been manager of quality assurance and training. Both Clark and Larry can be reached at Ext. 5239.

Renee Lane has begun her role in the newly created position of administrative associate for catering. Her office is in Room 209A of the Student Center.

"Please stop by to welcome Renee to campus," Don said.

SERVICES HELD FOR TRUSTEE SHANK

A memorial service was held Nov. 20 at Central Christian Church in Dallas for honorary trustee Ralph B. Shank, who died Nov. 17 at his home. Burial was at Hillcrest Memorial Park.

The Hagerstown, MD, native was active on TCU's board in 1943-73 and served on the Board of Governors of the Southwestern Legal Foundation. An adjunct professor in oil and gas law at Southern Methodist University, he taught the Shank Class at Central Christian Church for more than 50 years.

A graduate of Lynchburg College and Columbia University's law school, he began his career with a Tyler firm that later moved to Dallas and became Shank, Irwin and Conant. At the time of his death, he was with Bell, Boyd and Lloyd.

Survivors include his wife, Blanche; a daughter; and three grandchildren.

MOORE, MAESTRI TO REPEAT ROLES

The spring semester will be the "second time around" for John Moore and Melissa Maestri of the TCU Daily Skiff. They were chosen to repeat their roles during a Nov. 19 meeting of the publications committee.

Majoring in news/editorial and English, John will be the newspaper's editor for the second semester. The Fort Worth native, who has been a freelance general assignments reporter for the Arlington Citizen Journal, will graduate in May.

Melissa, majoring in advertising/public relations and fashion promotion, will be the paper's advertising manager for the second term. From Metairie, LA, she also will graduate in May.

LATIN AMERICAN SCHOLAR TO TALK FRIDAY

Charles W. Bergquist, author and academician whose latest book deals with violence in Latin America, will be on campus Thursday and Friday under the auspices of the University's Latin American Studies Workshop and the Penrose Fund. The public is invited to his talk on "Social Origins: U.S. Policies in Latin America" at 4 p.m. Friday in Reed Hall 303.

Bergquist is professor of history at the University of Washington after teaching for a decade at Duke University. A graduate of the University of Chicago, he earned the Ph.D. from Stanford and has served in the Peace Corps in Colombia.

He is the author of "Coffee and Conflict in Colombia" and "Labor in Latin America" as well as the upcoming book on violence.

SEMINARS SET FOR OLDER STUDENTS

In its program entitled "Seminars for Mature Frogs," the extended education division will offer another seminar before the close of this semester. "Preparing for Finals" is the theme for the Dec. 7 session. Beginning at noon, the hour-long discussion will be moderated by Gail Zimmerman of the Academic Services Center.

A similar session on the same subject is scheduled for all classifications of students on Dec. 5, beginning at 5 p.m.

Both programs will be held in Room 218 of the Student Center, according to Robert Murray, M.L.A. student who coordinates the seminars. Cokes and coffee will be provided for the Dec. 7 program, and participants are encouraged to bring their lunches.

VIDEO CONFERENCE TO BE THURSDAY

Video technology and enhanced campus services are themes for the teleconference video seminar scheduled Thursday for faculty and University staff members. Presented jointly by Ford Audio-Video and Southwestern Bell Telephone, the hour-long session will be held in the Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center, Room 320 of Tandy Hall.

Two sessions are planned for Thursday, one beginning at 11 a.m. and the other at 1 p.m. Seating must be reserved through the Center for Instructional Services, Ext. 7121.

Technology to be discussed will include the video industry and telecommunications industry development, merging communications and video and electronic meetings in the year 2000. The second portion of the program will focus on developing a campus "nervous system for voice, data and video transmission, improved work environments via operational enhancements and development of off-site video conferencing services.

GEOLOGY DEPARTMENT ACTIVE AT MEETING

When approximately 6,000 geologists from all over the world attended the recent meeting of Geology Society of America in Dallas, it is likely that the University's geology department enhanced their experience.

Art Busbey demonstrated the department's state-of-the-art Macintosh computer system, and graduate students Bob McCall and Jeff Templeton assisted the GSA organizing committee. Department chairman, John Breyer, cites Art as one of the most knowledgeable experts on using this technology for geology in the United States.

Several faculty members presented papers, including: Richard Hanson: "Nature and Timing of Depositional and Orogenic Events in the Late Proterozoic Zambezi Belt, Zambia;" Breyer: "Shale Facies and Mine Roof Stability;" Nowell Donovan, Busbey, Ken Morgan and others, "Southern Midcontinent-Texas Transect: Overview;" and Donovan and others, "Scientific Drilling Along the Southern Midcontinent-Texas Transect."

Ken and Nowell led a field trip before the meeting entitled "Remote Sensing Techniques Applied to Structural Geology and Oil Exploration in South Central Oklahoma." John and Art led a field trip for eighth graders during the meeting, and Nowell and Tim Denison of Mobil Research and Development led a field trip after the conference entitled "Structure and Stratigraphy of the Arbuckle Mountains, Southern Oklahoma."

NOTES ON FOLKS

"Spirit of Woman," the Altrusa Club's new statue at the Botanic Garden Center, honors a number of women with TCU ties who have received the club's "First Ladies" Award. Included among the honorees are alumna DR. MAY OWEN, ex-student and active friend of Mary Coutts Burnett Library EDITH DEEN, honorary trustee ALANN P. BEDFORD, longtime English professors MARY LESLIE FISHER and LORRAINE SHERLEY, benefactresses MARY D. FLEMING WALSH and ALICE S. NEELEY, ex-student JANE JUSTIN, former trustee RUTH CARTER STEVENSON, CORNELIA FRIEDMAN, whose husband formerly chaired the board, and JOYCE PATE CAPPER, whose late husband, A.M. Pate Jr., was an alumnus and former board member.

An article by KEN STEVENS (history), "The Triumph of Old Tip: William Henry Harrison and the Election of 1840," has just been published in the fall 1990 issue of Traces, the magazine of the Indiana Historical Society.

GAIL DAVIS (nursing) participated in two professional meetings last month: the American Pain Society annual meeting in St. Louis Oct. 25-27 and the Arthritis Health Professionals/American College of Rheumatology annual scientific meeting in Seattle Oct. 28-31. A poster was presented at the first meeting and a paper at the second; both presentations were related to the development of a pain management inventory. Gail is also beginning a two-year appointment as a member of the education committee and chair of the publications subcommittee of the Arthritis Health Professionals Association.
