WRITERS PRESENT 'OUR TOWNS'

Home towns will get a shot in the arm at TCU this week.

Award-winning Texas author Robert Flynn, who believes that growing up on a farm outside Chillicothe helped shape his writing career, will be 1991 Creative Writing speaker tomorrow (Wednesday) and Thursday.

"Our Towns" will be the topic at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in Student Center Woodson Room. There Flynn, the writer-in-residence at Trinity University, will be joined by English instructor and writer Joyce Gibson Roach, a native of Jacksboro, in reminiscing about their home towns.

Flynn and Roach were widely acclaimed for their earlier presentation on Chillicothe and Jacksboro at a meeting of the Texas Folklore Society. Their remembrance, wrote one of their audience members, "was not a reverent memory but an exaggerated verbal romp, a raucous, irreverent, tale-tale approach to their roots ending in a celebration of hallowed ground which sustains them both and which often is the source of their inspiration."

The Thursday Creative Writing session in Student Center ballroom, also at 3:30 p.m., will feature Flynn reading from his fiction, including "Wanderer Springs," published by TCU Press in 1987 and winner of a Spur Award from Western Writers of America as the best novel of that year, and four other novels that have been reprinted by TCU Press — "North to Yesterday," "The Sounds of Rescue," "The Signs of Hope" and "In the House of the Lord."

The Thursday program also will include presentation of TCU Writing Awards to alumni, graduate students and undergraduates as well as to Tarrant County high school students. Along with the Bryson Club Contest in Prose Writing and the Sonya Boyt Memorial Poetry Contest, both conducted by the English department for high school students since 1976, an ACLU Essay Contest has been added this year under the sponsorship of the Greater Fort Worth Civil Liberties Union. The new contest celebrates the bicentennial of the Bill of Rights.

Also new this year are the Graduate Fiction Award, offered by Harry Opperman for a short story by a graduate student; the Kurt Lee Hornbeck Poetry Award, honoring the memory of Hornbeck and given through an endowment established in his name; and the Satire Award, given by Heather White.

During Flynn's visit to TCU, he also will autograph copies of his books from noon to 1:30 p.m. Thursday at Connections Bookstore, 2416 Forest Park, and will be speaker for the annual dinner meeting of Friends of the TCU Library at 6:30 p.m. that day at Colonial Country Club.

STUDENT AWARDS NOMINATIONS DUE

Information sheets from students nominated for leadership awards are due by March 25 to insure their eligibility for award consideration.

Nominations will be submitted to a selection committee of faculty and Student Affairs staff members, according to Carol Ann Lane of Student Activities. The top three sophomores and top 15 juniors and seniors will be chosen for special recognition during the annual leadership reception.

This year's event is planned for 3:30 p.m. May 1 on the lawn in front of Sadler Hall. A number of awards in addition to those mentioned above will be presented.

MINIMUM WAGE RATE TO INCREASE

On April 1 the Federal Minimum Wage rate will increase to $4.25 per hour. This increase will affect all departments currently working students below this minimum, according to payroll supervisor Pat Henry. It will be effective automatically with the student payroll period beginning March 24.

Employing departments and offices need to be aware that, effective this summer, the FICA and Medicare taxes will be charged to the non-enrolled student who is working and to the department or office, respectively.

FORMER U.S. BUDGET DIRECTOR TO SPEAK

Reagan administration budget director James C. Miller III will discuss "Economic Outlook and the Budget" tomorrow (Wednesday) at noon at the 1991 Forum Luncheon in the Worthington Hotel Ballroom. The $25-per-person tickets are available from the Tandy American Enterprise Center, Ext. 7115.

Former director of the Office of Management and Budget, Miller currently is chairman of the board of Citizens for a Sound Economy. He also served as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission from 1981 to 1985. Author of more than 100 professional journal articles, Miller has worked on seven books. His current book project is tentatively entitled "Can the U.S. Budget be Saved?: Reflections of an 'Abominable No-Man.'"

Miller also will discuss the U.S. economy and federal budget during a 3:30 p.m. session in Dan Rogers 134. This presentation is open to students, faculty and staff members.

RECYCLING PROJECT BEGAN MARCH 1

A recycling project for office paper in Sadler, Reed, Tandy and Dan Rogers halls began March 1. Coordinated by Facility Services, this pilot program will allow time to establish pickup schedules and to determine both the volume and type of paper to be recycled, according to Director Joe Lasiter of Facility Services.

With Southwest Paper as recycling vendor during the pilot program, recycling boxes have been provided at individual desks for employees to separate paper into two types -- white or mixed/colored. When filled, boxes will be emptied into blue marked containers on each floor. Facility Services is coordinating removal of materials to the recycling point.

Before putting paper in the boxes, all paper clips and staples must be removed. Items not being recycled at this time are carbon paper, newspapers, magazines, glossy paper, food wrappers, FAX paper, window and routing envelopes. If this project proves successful, the recycling project will be expanded.

JACKSON SPEECH IS RESCHEDULED

A lecture on the "The Politics of the Disenfranchised" by Jesse Jackson Jr. has been rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in the Student Center ballroom. A human rights and political activist, Jackson is president of the "Keep Hope Alive" political action committee, vice president of Operation PUSH and the youngest member of the Democratic National Committee. He took part in the delegation to South Africa for the release of Nelson Mandela. Jackson was voted one of the "Outstanding Young Men in America" and one of the "30 Leaders of the Future" by Ebony Magazine. Tickets are $2 with TCU ID, $5 for others.

NCCJ WILL HONOR JUSTINS

Trustee John Justin and his wife Jane will be presented the Brotherhood Citation Award April 16 by the Tarrant County chapter, National Conference of Christians and Jews. The event at the Worthington Hotel, chaired by Star-Telegram president and publisher Richard Conner, will mark the 40th anniversary of the award.

"Years of dedication to this community and its people make John and Jane Justin ideal recipients of this award," Conner said of the TCU alumni couple. "This honor is meant to recognize those of generous spirit who through daily example show their concern and compassion for their fellow man."

Justin, former Fort Worth mayor who is president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Justin Industries, received the Citizen of the West Award from the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame in Colorado Springs last year. His numerous honors include being inducted into the Texas Business Hall of Fame and receiving the Man of Vision Award from the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness.

Honored in 1969 as the First Lady of Fort Worth by the Altrusa Club, Mrs. Justin serves on the board of the Child Study Center, Lecture Foundation, Jewel Charity Ball and Van Cliburn Foundation. TCU's Alumni Association presented the couple with the Royal Purple award in 1987, and he was named distinguished alumnus in 1978.

BOOK DEDICATED TO CLEGG

Luther Clegg of education tells his students that the blessings of teaching are more than monetary. He should know.

When TCU art graduate Jane Anne Volkmer of Dallas came back to campus three years ago to study graduate education, she enrolled in Luther's children's literature course.

Her class project -- a vibrantly illustrated Guatemalan folk tale of a Mayan princess and the young man whose love for her sends him in search of the purest song in the woods -- so impressed the professor that he urged her to have it published.

Last week he received a copy of "Song of the Chirimia," retold and illustrated by Jane Anne and dedicated to him with this inscription: "Without your encouragement, insight and wisdom, this book would not exist. May your life continue to be filled with songs from the woods and may all the blessings you have given your students return tenfold."

The legend of the chirimia, a recorder-like Guatemalan musical instrument, was published by Carolrhoda Books Inc., of Minneapolis. The bilingual book, written in both English and Spanish, is ideal for cross-cultural teaching, and the illustrations, which Jane Anne based on ancient stone carvings, introduce young readers to Mayan art.

VOCAL JAZZ PREMIERES TOMORROW

"Purple, White and Blues," TCU's new vocal jazz ensemble, will present its first public performance at 8 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The 14 singers plus a three-member rhythm section are a part of TCU's growing jazz program, along with a new 14-member show choir, which performs popular and Broadway show tunes with choreography.

Director of both groups is Janet Herrick, a graduate student who taught choral music for 20 years, most recently in Williamsport, PA, High School. There she directed a choral program which included 350 singers in seven concert choirs plus two vocal jazz ensembles, a show choir and a complete opera and theatre music program. Her choirs have performed by invitation for a number of American Choral Directors conventions, and every Pennsylvania all-state jazz vocalist, selected annually for the last five years, has come from her choirs.

The "Purple, White and Blues" concert will open with music by TCU's award-winning Jazz Ensemble, conducted by Curt Wilson, and the new show choir also will perform. Vocal jazz numbers will include "Round Midnight," "When I Fall in Love," "Roger's Idea" (a takeoff on "Pennies from Heaven") and "Do Nothin'," featuring junior Krista Lang of Baton Rouge as soloist. Also soloing will be junior Rob Laney of Farmers Branch, a member of "Purple, White and Blues" and vocalist for the Jazz Ensemble.

Progress of advertising photography from a product-documenting device to its status as a powerful art will be traced Thursday during "Visions in View," a live satellite teleconference to be seen at the TAGER-TV studio. The Kodak program is scheduled for downlink to the Center for Instructional Services studio from 6 to 8 p.m.

Works of master photographers Robert Sobieszek, Jim Marvy and Aaron Jones will be featured, and viewers will have opportunity to phone in questions. The teleconference is billed as "an exciting opportunity to speak with some of today's most outstanding photographers and compelling commentators in the realm of advertising." The free broadcast is open to students as well as faculty and staff members. Additional information is available from Deana Myrheid at Ext. 7632.

MARCH 22 IS GOLF CLASSIC DEADLINE

March 22 is the deadline for entries for the Good Friday Golf Classic planned March 29 at Lost Creek Golf Club. The tourney, sponsored by the recreational sports department for faculty and staff members, will have a four-person scramble format. The $40 entry fee, also due March 22, includes driving range, green fees, carts, prizes and refreshments. More information is available at Ext. 7945.

SERVICES HELD FOR LOUIS RAMSEY

Private services were held in Granbury for Louis Ramsey of Tolar, who died March 4 at a Granbury nursing home. A member of the mathematics faculty from 1927 until 1948, he was director of buildings and grounds for 17 years before retiring in 1970.

Holder of a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering and a master's in math from Texas A&M, he was on the faculty of Arkansas State College in 1940-41 and was in business for himself in 1932-38. He was active in the Herpetologist's League and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice, who retired in 1972 from the University's staff; and a brother, Charles Ramsey, also of Tolar.

The family suggests that memorials be made to the Charles and Mirth Sherer Scholarship Fund or the American Heart Association.

TCU HOSTS STUDENT CONFERENCE

TCU's Student Foundation was host to more than 100 student alumni and student foundation members from 22 institutions during the district conference March 1-2 on campus. Chairwoman for the event was Julie Buell, senior music education major from Houston.

Sessions during the two-day meeting were held in Tandy Hall, and Vice Chancellor Peggy Barr was speaker for the opening night's dinner. That evening's session on "Wellness Programming on Your Campus" was presented by the University's R.O.A.D. Workers. Other TCU-related programs highlighted March 2 were "Socializing: The Foundation of Foundation," "Last Lecture Series," "Reaching Children of Alumni" and "Students: A Key Link in the Process." Also featured were the new Senior Appreciation Program and "Rainy Day Tours." The University's Mortar Board members joined Tulane students for a session on "Profitable Publications."

Planning committee members were Jon Buell, Virginia Ridgley, Jeri Sias, Michael Carey, Sara Taha and Jill Kovarik. Advisers were Melissa Allen and DeVonna Tinney of the alumni office.

STARPOINT PARENTS PLAN SPRING PLANT SALE

Once again, lovely plants and hanging baskets will be available for order from the Starpoint parents' auxiliary. Last year's sale was a tremendous success and many on campus said they would like to know about it this spring. Flats of marigolds, begonias, impatiens, caladiums and geraniums as well as hanging baskets may be ordered. Order forms are available at Starpoint School. All orders and checks must be in by March 22. Additional information is available from Jo at Ext. 7141.

RUSO RECITAL IS MARCH 25

Baritone Vince Russo will sing a TCU Music Series recital March 25 highlighting songs by Robert Schumann, Gabriel Faure and Ned Rorem. The recital, with piano accompaniment by Janet Pummill, will begin at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Vince will open his program with "Vergin, tutto amor" by F. Durante, "Gia il sole dal Gange" by A. Scarlatti, "O del mio dolce ardor" by C. Gluck, "Che fiero costume" by C. Legrenzi and Schumann's Liederkreis, Op. 24.

After intermission, he will sing Faure's Poeme d'un Jour, Op. 21, "Claire de Lune" and "Fleur jetee" along with five songs by Rorem, "Upon Julia's Clothes," "Look Down, Fair Moon," "Memory," "Spring and Fall" and "The Nightingale."

THREE ACCEPT NEW POSITIONS

Three persons -- Emma Baker, Mary Anne Gorman and Ed McNertney -- have accepted new administrative positions.

On March 1 Emma assumed her duties as director of scholarships and student financial aid. After completing the B.S. degree here in 1982, she was a residence hall director for three years before being named financial aid counselor. She became acting assistant director in the scholarships and financial aid office in 1986 and acting associate director a year later. She was appointed assistant director in 1988.

Holder of the M.Ed. degree from TCU, Emma is active in the National Association of Female Executives and the Texas Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Mary Ann, who will begin her three-year term as nutrition and dietetics department chairwoman in the fall, joined the faculty in 1983 after seven years at Texas Woman's University as graduate teaching/research assistant. The former public school teacher, who earned two degrees at North Texas State and the Ph.D. at TWU in Denton, is both a Licensed and Registered Dietitian.

Active in Sigma Xi and the Research Society, Mary Ann has served as a director of the Texas Dietetic Association. She is the author of studies published in the Journal of American Dietetic Association, Fashion Institute of Technology Review, Nutritionists Report International and School Food Service Research Review. In 1987 she received the outstanding technical paper award from the American Oil Chemists' Association.

Ed is acting chairman of the economics department for the current semester. A research associate and then a teaching associate at the University of Massachusetts while earning the Ph.D. degree there, he joined TCU's faculty in 1979.

MINISTER'S MISSION IS NEW BOOK'S THEME

This month's release of Robert Flynn's "In the House of the Lord" marks another step toward the TCU Press' goal of keeping in print Flynn's four novels — all published since 1967. Flynn's second book, "In the House of the Lord," was published initially in 1969 by Alfred A. Knopf Inc. The reprint is No. 16 in the TCU Press' Texas Tradition Series.

"In the House of the Lord" follows young Protestant minister Pat Shahan through a day in his mission to serve the Lord, a mission not without trials. Devoted and honest, Shahan struggles to find revelation while being offered a revolving neon cross for a church steeple. A "Great Crusade" that Shahan reluctantly participates in turns out to be a publicity stunt ending in tragedy. He is kept busy throughout the day counseling troubled parishioners, dealing with angry ones, ministering to the sick and dying and searching for inspiration for a sermon.

The events of Shahan's day challenge his faith and his confidence in himself and his church, proving that ministers are human. An ordained minister himself, Flynn is able to describe the realities of organized religion with affection and humor and without bias. An afterword by Associate Professor Bob Frye, who is particularly interested in Texas authors, points out connections between "In the House of the Lord" and Flynn's other novels.

Flynn's "North to Yesterday" won awards in 1968 from the Texas Institute of Letters and the National Cowboy Hall of Fame. "Wanderer Springs," first published by TCU in 1987, won a Spur Award from the Western Writers of America. His "Sounds of Rescue, Signs of Hope" (1970) and "North to Yesterday" are included in the TCU Press' Texas Tradition Series. Flynn is also the author of the first-hand, nonfiction account "A Personal War in Vietnam" and "Seasonal Rain," a collection of short stories.

The Chillicothe native lives in San Antonio and is Trinity University's novelist-in-residence. He is the current Texas Institute of Letters president. "In the House of the Lord" is available in paperback for $15.95 in the bookstore.

SMITH, THOMSEN CHOSEN ATHLETIC HONORS

Two Frog athletes — Reggie Smith and Chris Thomsen — have been chosen for athletic honors. Reggie, the 6-10 Frog center, was chosen for the second team in the 1991 All-Southwest Conference basketball listing. The two-year letterman from San Jose, CA, was the only TCU representative on this year's honor roll.

Chris, who plays tight end in football, has been honored for his accomplishments as first baseman on the baseball team. The junior from Vernon has been named co-national player of the week by Collegiate Baseball. Announced last week, the honor is for his five home runs, 11-runs-batted-in game in a doubleheader sweep over Northeast Louisiana.

HISTORIAN McDONALD TO SPEAK MARCH 26

University of Alabama historian Forrest McDonald, who claims the U.S. government was "designed to be incompetent because the founding fathers didn't trust power," will talk on "The Bill of Rights: Was It Necessary?" March 26 as part of his Visiting Green Professorship here March 24-27. His public lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Reed Hall 312.

McDonald, one of the subjects in Bill Moyers' "A World of Ideas," published in 1989, told Moyers: "The way they rigged the institutions to express this distrust of power is based upon the assumption that men in public life are ruled by their passions, their love of power and money. So what you do, in the words of James Madison, is to make ambition check ambition and interest check interest. You rig the government in such a way that all parts of it are working at cross-purposes. Hopefully, on the average, it won't be able to do very much, and therefore it won't cause much mischief."

A Texas native who earned B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from UT-Austin, McDonald is Distinguished Research Professor at Alabama, where he has been a faculty member since 1976. He is the author of 15 books, including "We the People: The Economic Origins of the Constitution," "E Pluribus Unum: The Formation of the American Republic" and "Novus Ordo Seclorum: The Intellectual Origins of the Constitution," the latter a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize in 1986.

He also has written books on the presidencies of both George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. McDonald believes in pomp and circumstance and says the ceremonial function of the presidency has become as important as the practical aspect of governing the nation. He told Moyers that, despite John Kennedy's ability to handle the ceremony, "he didn't get diddley done in Washington in the two and a half years he was there. Johnson was more able at running the government of the United States probably than anybody who ever held the office. But he was a turkey when it came to the monarchical aspect of the presidency."

McDonald is a former Guggenheim Fellow and has won a number of awards, including the George Washington Medal from the Freedom's Foundation, the Fraunces Tavern Book Award for "Alexander Hamilton" in 1980, the American Revolution Round Table and Benchmark book awards in 1986 and the 1990 Ingersoll Prize for authors "of abiding importance whose works affirm the moral principles of Western civilization."

He earned the National Endowment for the Humanities Award in 1987 and held a presidential appointment to the Board of Foreign Scholarships in 1985-87. He is a member of the editorial board for the Encyclopedia of the American Constitution, the advisory board of Constitution magazine and the board of editors of Intercollegiate Review.

In addition to his concerns with constitutional history and with the presidency, McDonald is a former colleague of LBJ Professor Grady McWhiney at Alabama, where they shared their theory of the Celtic influence on the South. Their contention is that the North and South were radically different because of the opposing backgrounds of the Englishmen who settled the North and the Celts from Scotland, Ireland and Wales who came South. Together they published a number of papers in academic journals.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Ranch management director JOHN MERRILL was among persons featured in Who's Who in Livestock/Agri-Business in the Feb. 22 issue of Business Press.

Historian SPENCER TUCKER was interviewed Feb. 21 by KDFW-TV in its coverage of the Gulf crisis. He also discussed the ground war events in Kuwait in a Feb. 24 interview on Radio KYOT, Granbury.

The ARMY ROTC was in the spotlight Feb. 21 for KXAS-TV's report about growing enrollments in collegiate programs. The cadets were shown on Worth Hills mock maneuvers, and JACQUE MAUPIN, senior journalism major from Kansas City, was among those interviewed.

RALPH CARTER (political science) was interviewed live on KRLD radio Feb. 22 concerning the Soviet peace plan.

LEE CASEY, LEE UNCAPHER and three friends were saluted in the March 2 Star-Telegram's Cheers section. "These five thoughtful TCU students found my husband, who was ill and lost, and took him to All Saints Hospital at 2 a.m. In addition to this, they stayed with him until I arrived. Thank you from all his family," wrote Vera Ann Anderson.

In the Star-Telegram's March 3 story on winners and losers in the Persian Gulf war, political scientist JIM RIDDLESPERGER said of "winner" George Bush: "The guy's got the highest support of any president in American history right now, certainly in the postwar era."

NOTES ON FOLKS

Last week's bulletin was provided a wrong name for a nursing student deployed to Carswell Air Force Base during Operation Desert Storm. She is KATHY KIRKLAND, a Fort Worth senior.

BETTE DYER and KURT SPRENGER (music) were judges in the final seating of violins in the All-State Orchestra at TMEA in February. Last week Bette judged the competition of the Seth Wissman Memorial Symphonic Festival Auditions sponsored by the Dallas Music Teachers Association and the SMU Symphony Orchestra and held at Mountain View College.

JULIET GEORGE DEES, graduate student in history, presented a paper, "Shearith Jaacov: Remnants of Israel in the Life of Jacob De Cordova, 1808-1868," at the annual gathering of the Texas Jewish Historical Society March 1-3 at the Greene Family Camp for Living Judaism near Temple.

RALPH GUENTHER (music, emeritus) was represented on a recent concert of the Dallas Wind Symphony. Ralph's transcription for band of the "Two Choral Preludes" by Brahms was played on the Jan. 8 concert guest-conducted by Frederick Fennell. One of Ralph's former TCU students, MELINDA WILSON, is principal flutist in the organization.
