GIOVANNI IS HONORS PROFESSOR

Nikki Giovanni, one of the preeminent figures in the 1960s African-American literary renaissance who has achieved international acclaim as a poet and essayist and lecturer, will be Visiting Green Professor in celebration of Honors Week through Friday. Giovanni, who published 17 books in 20 years, is professor of English at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Her public lectures will be at 3 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday), when she will discuss "The Poetic Tradition of Black America" in Student Center Woodson Room, and at 11 a.m. Thursday, when she will address the 29th annual TCU Honors Convocation in Ed Landreth Auditorium on "Accepting the Challenge: Books, Dreams, and Freedom."

Giovanni was born in Knoxville, TN, to Jones (a probation officer) and Yolande Cornelia (a social worker) Giovanni. The family, including an older daughter, moved to Cincinnati while Giovanni was still young, but she continued to spend much time with her grandmother in Knoxville. In her poetry, essays and speeches, Giovanni still celebrates the warmth of those formative years.

She earned her bachelor's degree from Fisk University in 1967 and also has attended the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia University. Giovanni took her first job in 1968 as assistant professor of black studies at Queens College, City University of New York. Her first volume of poetry, "Black Feeling, Black Talk," was published that same year, followed by "Black Judgement."

She quickly began to find a place in the movement to raise black consciousness through literature. In "Gemini: An Extended Autobiographical Statement on My First Twenty-five Years of Being a Black Poet," she says it was a roommate named Bertha who converted her to revolutionary ideals.

Giovanni was a true conservative, she writes, until Bertha kept asking her, "How could black people be conservative? What have they got to conserve? And after awhile (realizing that I had absolutely nothing, period) I came around."

In 1969 Giovanni joined the Rutgers University faculty as associate professor of English. Her son Thomas was born that year, an event that caused her to re-evaluate her priorities. Her work in the mid-1970s reflects that change of focus. In addition to "Gemini," the book of autobiographical essays, she published two books of poetry for children and two volumes of adult poetry, "My House" and "The Women and the Men."

As early as 1971, Giovanni began to experiment with sound recording as a medium for presenting her poetry. She chose gospel music as a background for her first recording, "Truth Is on Its Way," to be sure her grandmother would listen to it. The work was the best-selling spoken-word album of 1971 and contributed greatly to her fame.

"Those Who Ride the Night Winds," her 1983 collection of poems, is a meditative work with undertones of political activism. Giovanni told a 1985 interviewer from Contemporary Authors: "What's paramount about the black American experience that the world has not yet learned, but I hope will, is that we are a forgiving people. I think this is our strength. When we talk about Dr. King's movement, one of the things we talk about, of course, is that it was a nonviolent movement. There have been, and there probably will be, many, many nonviolent movements. Gandhi's was nonviolent, but there was no forgiveness in the Indian movement. Therefore there was the split between Pakistan and India. We had a movement that was nonviolent, but the basis of the nonviolence was forgiveness."

Activities Fill Today

Honors Week activities this afternoon (Tuesday) include Senior Honors Project presentations from 2 to 4 p.m. in Tandy Hall 320, a Golden Key reception honoring peer educators at 4 p.m. in the Reed Hall Faculty Center and an illustrated lecture on "Libraries of Oxford" at 7:30 p.m. in Moudy 141N by Visiting Green Professor D.G. Vaisey, Bodley's Librarian at Oxford.

Following Giovanni's address tomorrow afternoon, a 4 p.m. reception will honor Martin Luther King Jr. scholars Laetitia Coleman, senior political science major from Fort Worth; Regina Ramos, Santa Fe, NM, junior majoring in history; El Paso freshman Alfredo Meneses; sophomore business major Thomas Phu of Lafayette, LA; Preea Jernigan, junior from Longview majoring in mathematics; Chris Carroll, freshman from Dallas; and Fort Worth sophomore Ratrete Webb.

Honors Program director David Grant will preside at Thursday's convocation, for which 11 a.m. classes will be dismissed. The invocation will be given by Andrew Wright, Houston senior and past chairman of the Student Honors Cabinet. Herndon Professor of Music Emmet Smith will play the processional and postlude.

Alpha Lambda Delta president Edward McClour Jr., freshman from Dallas, will announce that honor society's awards, and Vice Chancellor Peggy Barr will announce scholarship awards. The 1991 Phi Beta Kappa electees will be introduced by Chancellor Bill Tucker.

Giovanni will be introduced by Linda Hughes of English, and the 1991 Faculty Recognition Award will be presented by Student Honors Cabinet chairman Stephen Benoit, Fort Worth junior. At 2 p.m. in the living room of the Bass Building, Giovanni will continue her discussion with students and faculty on "Accepting the Challenge."

Thomas Will Speak at Banquet

The Honors Banquet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center ballroom will be entitled "Shrinks in Paradise," in honor of Roger Thomas of psychology, 1990-91 Honors professor. His banquet talk will be entitled "A History of the Hawaiian Shirt."

Chancellor Tucker will present as senior scholars Deena Brodsgaard, Waco, art history; Laura Bonds, Fort Worth, studio art; Sherry Jerome, Tempe, AZ, ballet and modern dance; Bryan Cannon, Lubbock, biology; Lisa Johns, Omaha, accounting; William Swoap, Conroe, finance; Melanie Hinten, Bartlesville, OK, management; Ward Ferguson, Thousand Oaks, CA, marketing; Stephanie Boade, Bartlesville, biochemistry; Mary Cloninger, Elkhorn, NE, chemistry; Carlajo Bonner, Tyler, computer science; Delores Key, Fort Worth, design; Jennifer Jesse, Princeton, IL, fashion; Debra Yaniko, Roanoke, economics.

Others are Amy Atwood, Omaha, elementary education; Keith Oglesby, Fort Smith, AR, secondary education; Larry Williams, Killeen, physical education; Darren Carlton, Wichita Falls, and Leigh Riley, Houston, English; Robert Glaze, Garland, and Chris Boggs, Shelbyville, TN, environmental science; Sarah Bigger, Mansfield, LA, geology; Steven Gandy, Murfreesboro, TN, history; Scott Hunt, Irving, and Jacquie Maupin, Oklahoma City, journalism; Christopher Oehrlein, New Orleans, mathematics; Michelle Satterelli, Houston, French; Laura Olson, Irving, Spanish; Julie Buell, Houston, music.

Also to be honored are Susan Foster, Fort Worth, nursing; Lora Cecil, Fort Worth, nutrition and dietetics; Matthew Vossler, Sugar Land, and Wright, philosophy; Douglas Strout, Houston, physics; Cheryl Gaston, Portland, political science; Laura Wolff, Niceville, FL, neuroscience; Jean Cody, Fort Worth, psychology; Christopher Martin, Spring, radio-TV-film; Kenneth McKenzie, Arlington, religion-studies; Laura Whitworth, Maumelle, AR, social work; Devera Bear, Dallas, sociology; Jacqueline Green, Mission Hills, KS, communication in human relations; Paula Price, Richardson, speech-language pathology; and Jennifer Jegers, Apple Valley, MN, theatre.

Ernest Couch, president of the TCU chapter of Sigma Xi, will present the Sigma Xi Award to the outstanding senior in science, and Bob Doran, who heads the Phi Beta Kappa chapter here, will present the Phi Beta Kappa Award to the outstanding senior in liberal studies. Final recognition of the evening will be the Boller Award for the outstanding senior honors project presentation, to be given by David.

BRITE STUDENTS HEAD NATIONAL GROUP

Lonnie Woods, who is scheduled to earn his Master of Divinity degree from Brite next month, has been elected president of the National Association of Black Seminarians, which will meet in the Metroplex for the first time next spring.

Woods, of Fort Worth, graduated from TCU in 1974 and earned a law degree from the University of Texas. Named to assist him as Southwest regional vice president of the association was Michael Evans, also a Brite M.Div. student. Evans is a University of Texas-Arlington graduate. The seminary's annual conference, usually held during spring break, will be co-sponsored in 1992 by Brite and SMU's Perkins School of Theology.

MORTAR BOARD HONOR SOCIETY INITIATES 35

Thirty-five students were initiated into Mortar Board Sunday. Members of the honor society were selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership and contribution to the campus community.

Those initiated from AddRan College included Steve Benoit, psychology; Matt Conrad, chemistry; Andrea Dennis, psychology; Sara Galloway, English; Marguerite Elaine Garrison, psychology; Dan Gurley, chemistry; and Mimi Hester, political science. Others from AddRan were Mike Howell, environmental science/political science; Edie Hutton, psychology/social work; Shannon Luttrell, biology; Beth Monach, psychology; Wendy Moore, psychology; and Julie Parker, English.

Also from AddRan were Jane Peters, biology; Virginia Ridgley, English and political science; Jonathan Sherman, economics/Spanish; Scott Siegwald, environmental science; Terri Stern, nutrition/dietetics; Gracie Westbrook, neuroscience; Sara Wilson, liberal studies; and Karen Yeh, chemistry. Initiates from the Neeley School of Business were Ronna Caruthers, accounting; Kyle Kight, finance; Robert Clancy, marketing; Ernie Ross, marketing; and Jeff Sherman, finance.

Those from the College of Fine Arts and Communication were Jon Buell, communication graphics; Rick Hogrefe, speech communication; Krista Lang, music education; Mendi Lautt, speech/language pathology; and Carrie Robinson, communication graphics. Others included Jenny Smith, radio/television/film; Wendi Taylor, advertising/public relations; Jennifer Burgess, communication in human relations; and Jerelyn Cunningham, interior design.

JUST A REMINDER...

...that reservations for this evening's live satellite broadcast, "Children in Poverty: What's To Be Done?," can be made by calling Ext. 7632. The 6:30-8 p.m. debate is open to faculty and staff members as well as students and will be presented by TAGER-TV/Telecommunications in Room 134 of Dan Rogers Hall.

28 SENIORS SHOWING INTERIOR DESIGNS

Works by eight interior design students are being shown throughout this week in the Student Center lounge. The volunteer senior showing includes efforts from their four- to five-year undergraduate careers.

The annual exhibition is intended to honor the seniors and to acquaint the campus community with their work, according to Assistant Professor Fred Oberkircher. Another purpose is to involve professional designers with TCU's program.

Displaying samples of their works will be Mary Allen, Melissa Andrain, Karen Berringer, Becky Boyle, Michele Brown, Linda Jenkins, Glenn Lacy and Delores Key, the department's senior scholar.

A by-invitation event at 6 p.m. today will be both a combination opening reception and meeting of the Fort Worth chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers. The professional design community and internship sponsors are among those invited.

EDUCATOR IS GREEN PROFESSOR

Dr. David L. Clark, nationally known specialist in the fields of educational administration and school reform, is Visiting Green Professor here through Friday. The professor of education at the University of North Carolina will present a free, public lecture at 6 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in the Sid Richardson board room on "Unrealistic Expectations in the Educational Reform Movement."

A graduate of State University of New York at Albany who earned the master's degree there and the doctorate in education from Teachers College at Columbia University, Clark began his career as a research assistant and a field representative for the New York State Teachers Association. After serving as assistant to the superintendent of the Garden City, NY, public schools in 1956-58, he became research coordinator for the U.S. Office of Education Cooperative Research Program. He directed that program from 1959 to 1962.

Clark has been professor and associate dean of education at Ohio State University, dean of the School of Education at Indiana University and William Clay Parrish Jr. Professor at University of Virginia Curry School of Education. He also has served as executive director of the National Policy Board on Educational Administration.

He has co-authored a number of books and research studies on educational administration, educational research, women in higher education, federal education policy and educational organizations.

A member of editorial boards of several education journals, Clark also has served as vice president of the American Educational Research Association and as chairman of the research advisory committee for Phi Delta Kappa. He formerly chaired the national advisory committee of Vanderbilt University's John F. Kennedy Center for Research on Education and Human Development and has been external evaluator for the Center for the Study of Writing at the University of California at Berkeley.

BRITE CHOOSES THREE FACULTY

Brite Divinity School has announced the hiring of three new faculty members -- a popular Fort Worth minister, a returning historian and the first Southern Baptist to hold a full-time professorship at the seminary. All appointments are effective with the beginning of the fall 1991 semester in August.

Bryan G. Feille, senior minister at South Hills Christian Church since 1980, has been named Harold Glen Brown Lecturer in Pastoral Ministry and director of the Doctor of Ministry Program. After serving on the faculties of Pacific School of Religion and Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, CA, for six years, Jim Duke is returning to the Brite faculty as professor of history of Christianity and Christian thought. Jim previously had taught here from 1976 to 1985. New professor of pastoral care and counseling is Andrew D. Lester, who has been professor of the psychology of religion at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, KY, since 1977.

Bryan, a TCU graduate in religion and philosophy, earned both Master of Divinity and Doctor of Ministry degrees from Brite. Prior to his South Hills ministry, he had been associate regional minister for the Christian Church in the Southwest from 1978 to 1980 and associate minister of First Christian Church at Wichita Falls in 1974-78. He was associate minister and interim executive director of Fort Worth Area Council of Churches from 1971 to 1973.

Jim earned his B.A. in history from the University of Maryland and three graduate degrees from Vanderbilt Divinity School, including the Ph.D. in the history of Christian thought. He taught at St. Luke's Episcopal Seminary of University of the South, at Vanderbilt and at the University of Montana before coming to Brite the first time. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he was an invited participant in the 1990 Scholars Press Workshop for Editors and in the Internationaler Schleiermacher Kongress in Berlin and has been a guest professor at the University of Munich. He frequently writes and edits articles for such journals as Encounter, Mid-Stream, Religious Studies Review, Impact, Journal of the American Academy of Religion, Church History, Interpretation and Modern Churchman.

Lester graduated from Mississippi College in Clinton, then earned B.D. and Ph.D. degrees from Southern Baptist. He also has taken clinical pastoral counseling training at a number of Louisville hospitals and at Personal Counseling Service in Clarksville, IN. Lester was pastor of Buena Vista Baptist Church in Bryantsville, KY, and youth minister at Baptist churches in Jackson and Washington, MS, and in Memphis before he began his teaching career. He has been a visiting professor at Wake Forest University and its Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is the author or editor of a number of books on pastoral care, children in crisis and aging parents. He currently is writing two books, "Pastoral Care of the Angry Person" and "Hope and Pastoral Care." Lester and his wife, Judy, frequently lead workshops and retreats focusing on family issues.

WALKER PROFESSORSHIP ANNOUNCED

Establishment of a Brite professorship in preaching to honor the late Dr. Granville T. Walker and his wife, Erline Walker, was announced by Gilbert Davis, TCU director of church relations, to the seminary's board of trustees at a recent meeting. The $400,000 professorship was established by the board of the Granville and Erline Walker Ministerial Scholarship Foundation.

A graduate of TCU and Brite who also held Bachelor of Divinity and Ph.D. degrees from Yale, Dr. Walker chaired the TCU religion department for a time before becoming pastor of University Christian Church in 1943. By the time of his retirement 30 years later, the church had more than quadrupled its membership and had enlarged its facilities three times. A former president of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ), he also directed its Commission on Brotherhood Restructure. He had been a member of both the Brite and TCU boards of trustees. Mrs. Walker also holds TCU bachelor's and master's degrees.

The Walker ministerial scholarship foundation was begun 35 years ago by Flem and Lucille Hall, members of University Christian, to assist in training superior preachers. The foundation was formed in his name, according to its brochure, "because he exemplifies preaching which appeals to the intellect as well as to the heart."

The Brite board approved a $3.2 million budget for 1991-92, up from the current year's budget of $2,978,000. Most of the increases will go to financial aid for an expected larger student body, Dean Leo Perdue said.

He also reported to the Brite board that, after six years of declining enrollments, the number of students has increased from 168 in the spring of 1990 to 185 this spring. Brite admitted a total of 101 new students this year, he said, and applications for 1991 are strong. Of the 101 new students, however, only 32 are Disciples. The dean said Brite admitted more United Methodists than Disciples. He reported that, while 538 Disciples were enrolled in U.S. seminaries in 1984, only 388 Disciples attended seminary last year.

"Our efforts at Brite are presently concentrating on the establishment of a network of 12 Brite graduates living in Disciples population areas throughout the country," the dean said. "These graduates will come to Brite this fall, undergo an orientation program, meet our students, faculty and staff and return home with videos and literature about our seminary. Their job will be to help us identify qualified people in their areas, especially Disciples, who are interested in full-time ministry."

Five members re-elected to the Brite board were Dr. Michael Saenz and Dr. Eugene Brice of Fort Worth, Dr. Mary Louise Rowand of Dallas, Dr. Arthur Digby of Arlington and Ralph Hooks of Abilene.

PROGRAM TO EXPLORE EATING DISORDERS

"Eating Disorders" will be the topic of a Campus Mentor event tomorrow (Wednesday). Linda Buchanon from Care Unit will speak at 4 p.m. in Student Center 204.

PRESS TO GIVE MANUSCRIPT PRIZE

An annual prize for an outstanding unpublished scholarly nonfiction manuscript dealing with the literature and history of the Southwest has been inaugurated by TCU Press. As yet unnamed, the prize carries with it a cash award of $1,000. The manuscript chosen by the committee also will be submitted to expert readers as part of the pre-publication process. Revisions and corrections may be suggested before the manuscript is accepted for publication, said Press director Judy Alter.

Submission of manuscripts of no less than 150 nor more than 300 double-spaced pages is requested by Jan. 1, 1992. Manuscripts should follow The Chicago Manual of Style. Authors submitting their manuscripts to the TCU Press competition are expected to refrain from submitting them elsewhere until the award is announced. The prize will be awarded April 1, 1992. Persons submitting manuscripts should mark them clearly for competition.

Members of the TCU Press Editorial Advisory Board will serve as judges, and the award may be withheld in any given year if no entry meets the standards of the committee. Manuscripts cannot be returned unless accompanied by postage.

PATTISON, LANE NAMED EDITORS

Senior Patricia Pattison of Fort Worth and junior Cason Lane of Metairie, LA, will edit the University's student newspaper and magazine, respectively, during the fall semester. They were chosen for the positions following interviews at the April 8 publications committee meeting. Also named to publications positions were Piper Edmondson, junior advertising /public relations major from Kingwood who will be advertising manager for the Daily Skiff.

Patti, currently assignments editor for the Daily Skiff, is the 1990 recipient of the Dan Jenkins Sportswriting Scholarship and received the mark of excellence regional award for opinion writing from the Society of Professional Journalists. Majoring in news editorial and religion-studies, she has been columnist and reporter for the campus paper. She also has been president and vice president of the Campus Christian Community and currently serves as a campus mentor, member of Intercom and on the student-trustee relations committee.

To be the fall editor of Image magazine, Cason is majoring in news editorial. He has been a reporter for both the student newspaper and magazine. He has been editor of the paper's Mosaic section.

HOUSTON ALUMNI HELP WITH OLYMPICS

Members of the Houston Young Alumni Association in conjunction with that city's alumni chapter will be buddy volunteers for the Texas Special Olympics spring games. The events will be held Saturday at Alief Stadium beginning at 8 a.m. Coordinating the effort are Carole Scharth Parker, Class of '86, and Brenda Beil Payne, Class of '83.

NOTED THEORIST TO BE VISITING PROFESSOR

Physicist Martin Gutzwiller, widely recognized as a theorist who has made significant contributions in solid state physics and dynamical theory, will present three public lectures on campus next week while he is a Visiting Green Professor hosted by the physics department.

On April 22 he will discuss "Is There Chaos on the Atomic Scale?" at a 7:30 p.m. event co-sponsored by Sigma Xi in Lecture Hall 4 of Sid Richardson Building. "What Is Quantum Chaos?" will be his topic for a 3:30 p.m. lecture April 23 in Lecture Hall 3. At 3 p.m. April 24 he will discuss "Multifractals and Hamiltonian Systems" in Sid Richardson, Room 360.

Formerly an adjunct professor at Columbia University's School of Engineering, Gutzwiller is a native of Switzerland and was educated there and in Germany. He completed the bachelor's degree at the Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich, where he has been a visiting professor. Also a visiting professor at the University of Paris, he completed his thesis under the direction of Wolfgang Pauli on "Quantum Theory of Fields in Curved Space."

Gutzwiller, holder of the Ph.D. degree from the University of Kansas, worked in microwave engineering in Switzerland before joining Shell Oil Company's geophysics research laboratory in Houston in 1953. Formerly with Brown Boveri in Baden, Germany, and IBM in Zurich, he was director of the general sciences department at the IBM Research Center in Yorktown Heights, where he currently is a research staff member. Gutzwiller is well known for his publications on quantum mechanics and solid state physics as well as his recent book entitled "Chaos."

SYMPHONY TO PLAY APRIL 22

The TCU Symphony, conducted by Kurt Sprenger, will range from spring to winter in musical subjects for its closing spring concert at 8 p.m. April 22 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The program will open with "Appalachian Spring," composed by Aaron Copland for the late Martha Graham in the mid-1940s. The orchestra also will play Beethoven's "Prometheus" Overture and Pavane by Gabriel Faure. On the final number, The Winter from Antonio Vivaldi's "Four Seasons," the symphony will play sans conductor as Kurt performs the violin solo.

STUDIO ART SHOW OPENS APRIL 22

Three photographers and four painters will exhibit their favorite works April 22-26 in the Bachelor of Fine Arts senior studio art show. Opening reception will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. April 22 in Moudy Building Exhibition Hall. Subsequent hours are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The artists include four from Fort Worth -- Mark Cude and Laura Bonds, both painters; and photographers Sandra Lord and Mike Rayburne II. Also showing photographs will be Julie Lane of Weatherford. Other painters are Marilee Heckerman of Piqua, OH, and Ashley Garretson of New Orleans.

FORMER TRUSTEE DIES

JoAnn Moore of Midland, former trustee and now honorary trustee and the wife of Brite board chairman Wayne Moore, died April 8 in Dallas. Chancellor Bill Tucker conducted funeral services April 11 in Midland's First Christian Church, where the Moores have been leaders.

Mrs. Moore, a TCU alumna, and her husband established an endowment fund at Brite in 1976. A major interest of Mrs. Moore's was in helping promising young ministers to serve in small West Texas churches. The Pearl and Joe Montgomery Ministerial Subsidy Fund, named for her parents, provides the opportunity for ministers who exhibit potential to develop their preaching skills as well as pastoral responsibilities in a small church without the financial sacrifice that is often entailed.

CRAIN NAMED TRUMAN SCHOLAR

Cindy Crain of Burleson, a junior majoring in finance, is TCU's newest Harry S. Truman Scholar, one of 70 in the nation announced recently. The scholarship is worth up to $30,000 for her last semesters in college and for graduate school.

Crain, mother of two pre-schoolers, transferred to TCU from Tarrant County Junior College. She is on the board of directors of the League of Women Voters of Tarrant County and is a member of Texas Democratic Women and Texans for Recycling. As a work/study employee here, she coordinates newsprint recycling for the ECO hut.

Truman applicants must be undergraduates with demonstrated leadership potential, high academic achievement and a desire to pursue a career in public service. All applicants had to write essays based on ideas for the future.

Not surprisingly, Crain addressed the issue of child care. Her suggestion was that single mothers without money to go to school could work at the day care center where their children attended and be paid through work/study. Even though the children would receive free day care, she pointed out, the center would benefit by having to pay only 20 percent of the mother's salary, with the federal government paying the rest.

SEWELL IS WOMAN'S CLUB HEAD

Deanie Sewell of the Controller's Office was installed last week as president of TCU Woman's Club. She succeeds Helen Goldbeck, who was selected as parliamentarian of the group.

Other new officers are Judy Alter, first vice president; Mary Alice Oatman, second vice president; Lois Banta, third vice president; Joyce Raessler, secretary; Alice Gibson, corresponding secretary; Helen Martin, treasurer; and Mary Beth Wortham, historian.

BOLEN ACCEPTS THREE-YEAR APPOINTMENT

Fort Worth Mayor Bob Bolen will begin his three-year appointment as senior adviser to the chancellor with the opening of the 1991 fall semester. The half-time position was announced by Dr. Bill Tucker at an April 8 news conference in the mayor's office.

"Mayor Bolen has been and is a very strong leader in our community. His work here has earned him national prominence," said Chancellor Tucker. "He will make a powerful and absolutely unique contribution to the life of the University."

Serving as executive-in-residence in the M.J. Neeley School of Business will be Mayor Bolen's first assignment. His duties will include both teaching and counseling with students who are aiming toward careers in business and industry as well as assisting the Tandy American Enterprise Center in building and marketing an executive education consortium.

EARLY MUSIC CONCERT IS APRIL 21

Harriet Risk Woldt of music, who was instrumental in founding Fort Worth Early Music, invites her TCU friends to "Hidden Treasures of the Baroque," an early music concert to be presented at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Great Hall of the Texas Boys Choir, located near the Hulen Street post office. Admission will be $5 ($3 for students and senior citizens). The concert will include works by Gibbons, Locke, LeClair and Telemann, and guest soprano will be Lynda Poston-Smith, faculty member at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

ENSEMBLE FEATURES 'RHAPSODY IN BLUE'

When George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" premiered Feb. 12, 1924, in New York's Aeolian Hall, it was the centerpiece of a band program. The same thing will happen Friday in Ed Landreth Auditorium in an 8 p.m. performance by the TCU Wind Ensemble. Through the intervening 67 years, "Rhapsody in Blue" has been performed by countless symphony orchestras all over the world, but rarely has it been heard in the form in which it was composed for Paul Whiteman and his jazz-style band.

Bob Blanton, director of bands, spent anxious hours tracking down Gershwin's first arrangement of the rhapsody. The original is now in the Library of Congress, but Bob finally located an agent who rented TCU a facsimile.

Gershwin, who always claimed the complete construction of the rhapsody came to him as he was riding on a train to Boston, wrote it down in only three weeks, leaving out some of the solo piano figurations that he improvised at the opening concert. The facsimile is still sketchy, Bob said, and TCU pianist Tamas Ungar also will be called on for some improvisation as he performs the piano solo.

The concert also will include the Overture to "Candide" by Leonard Bernstein, two Chorale Preludes by Brahms and "La Procession du Rocio" by Joaquin Turina.

NOTES ON FOLKS

An article entitled "The Extraordinary Educational Attainment of Asian-Americans: A Search for Historical Evidence and Explanations" by Charles Hirschman (University of Washington) and MORRISON WONG (sociology) appears in the fifth edition (1991) of "Majority and Minority: The Dynamics of Race and Ethnicity in American Life," edited by Norman R. Yetman. This article is a reprint of one which appeared in Social Forces in 1986.

The geology department was well represented at a symposium on "Petroleum Reservoir Geology in the Southern Midcontinent" recently in Norman, OK. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy and the Oklahoma Geological Survey, the program examined ways of enhancing domestic oil production in this region. NOWELL DONOVAN, KEN MORGAN and graduate students SCOTT WHITE and MIKE STEPHENSON presented a paper "Distribution and Orientation of Arbuckle Group Fracture Patterns in the Slick Hills and Arbuckle Mountains, Southern Oklahoma: An Analogue for Fractured Arbuckle Reservoirs."

In addition, Nowell and graduate student TODD BUTAUD discussed "The Influence of Provenance on the Diagenetic History of Pennsylvanian and Permian Detrital Reservoirs in the Southern Oklahoma Aulacogen."

Over spring break, JOHN BREYER (geology) spent five days on the Kaiparowits Plateau in southern Utah climbing over coal-bearing strata as a participant in a field workshop sponsored by the United States Geological Survey. He is working with geologists in the survey's Branch of Coal Geology on research projects probing the geologic controls on the distribution of coal.

John also attended a two-day conference sponsored by the Sloan Foundation on teaching quantitative reasoning and concepts underlying modern technology to undergraduates.

ART BERLINER (emeritus, social work) provided the keynote address and moderated panel discussions at an all-day workshop on social work ethics at Baylor University March 22.

RALPH CARTER (political science) presented a paper on "Economic Representation and Defense Spending, 1981-1986" at the annual meeting of the International Studies Association in Vancouver. Ralph, who also chaired one panel and served as a discussant on another, was elected vice chair of ISA's Foreign Policy Analysis Section. He will serve as program director for the section's panels at next year's annual meeting in Washington, DC, and will serve on the program committee for the overall conference. Ralph automatically will become section chair for the 1992-93 academic year.

A review by LINDA HUGHES (English) of the book "The Victorian Poet: Poetics and Persona" appears in the spring 1991 issue of Victorian Periodicals Review.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

DANNY BAKER, senior music education major and a voice student of VINCE RUSSO, has landed the role of Rolf in "The Sound of Music" at Struthers Library Theatre in Warren, PA, this summer. Stephen Pickover, assistant stage manager of the Metropolitan Opera who taught musical theatre at here last fall, is artistic director of the Warren theatre and encouraged Danny to apply there.

RHONDA KEEN-PAYNE (nursing) was presented the Harold Evans Memorial Teacher of the Year honors during the recent biennial conference of the Texas League for Nursing. In her acceptance comments, she shared the honor with several of her Harris College colleagues and TCU for the supporting environment and scholarly encouragement she received.

WILLIE MARTINEZ, a graduate organ student of EMMET SMITH, won the Fort Worth American Guild of Organists' recent playing competition and will perform in four-state regional competition in Austin in June. Willie, who earned his undergraduate degree here in 1988, was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to study organ at the Robert Schumann Conservatory in Dusseldorf, Germany, the following year, then returned here for graduate work with Emmet. He will receive his master's in May.

RUTH WHITLOCK (music) was a member of a Southern Association team which convened in Fort Worth March 12-13 to evaluate accreditation status of O.D. Wyatt High School. She served on committees assigned to assess the quality of the music department and the organizational administration of the school.

Dean PAT SCEARSE (nursing) recently was elected president of the Texas Council of Deans and Directors of Schools of Nursing. The group, composed of 70 nurse educators, meets semiannually in Austin to discuss mutual concerns and challenges facing nursing programs in Texas and to receive reports from directors of the Texas State Board of Nurse Examiners and the Texas Nurse Association.

BONNIE MELHART (computer science) was a panelist at the ACM's 19th annual Computer Conference March 5-7 in San Antonio. The panel, "Involving Minorities and Women in the Computer Science Profession," focused on the absence of minorities and women in computer science and emphasized ways to encourage participation in graduate programs in particular. Bonnie specifically addressed the role of the ACM in developing mentoring projects, providing role models, improving teacher training and combating discrimination.

Computer scientists JAMES COMER (contest finals director), TOM NUTE (judge) and DICK RINEWALT (assistant chief judge) participated in the 15th annual ACM Scholastic Programming Contest Finals sponsored by AT&T Computer Systems March 6 in San Antonio. Teams from 25 universities in the United States, Canada, Europe, Far East and South Pacific participated in the contest. The contest control software (NRCEP) was written by STEVE DEVOLL, an undergraduate student in the computer science department, under the supervision of CRAIG MORGENSTERN.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

MAURICIO PAPINI (psychology) was invited to give a talk at the Department of Psychology at the University of Texas at Austin March 27 on the topic "Comparative Research on the Paradoxical Effects of Reward."

RALPH GUENTHER (emeritus, music) lectured recently before the Seattle Flute Society on the general subjects of flute teaching, technique and performance. On the program also was a recital of some of Ralph's published compositions for flute, both solos and ensembles, performed by students of various Seattle area teachers. Ralph also performed two of his solo compositions.

Sympathy is expressed to C.A. QUARLES (physics), whose mother, Marguerite V. Quarles, died April 7. Services were conducted April 10 at St. Andrew Catholic Church.

PUNCH SHAW (radio-TV-film) presented a paper, "MTV and Post-modernism: What's in a Name," at the Popular Culture Association annual conference in San Antonio March 27-30. His paper was an examination of a particular MTV program, "Postmodern MTV," to understand better how MTV defines postmodernism and how the network's views may be influencing its audience's understanding of postmodernism.

April 8 may have been just another Monday for some faculty members, but for LAURA TALBOT (nursing) it was a great day! It was her first day back in classes after being called up in the reserves for Operation Desert Storm. She had been gone since Jan. 23.
