THEATRE TCU HONORS MILLER

Theatre TCU will stage "Death of a Salesman" this week in honor of Arthur Miller's 75th birthday, but it will be different from the "Death of a Salesman" of the 1940s and '50s and all the years since then.

Its guest director, Kent Paul of New York, is taking a new tactic -- one he thinks may be closer to the way Miller himself perceives the archetypal family drama.

Performances in University Theatre will begin at 8 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) through Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free with TCU ID, but reservations may be made by calling Ext. 7626.

Despite the original 1949 production's phenomenal success, the author has expressed reservations about it. In his autobiography, Miller wrote: "I would stand at the back of the theatre watching sections of the performance, trying to understand what there was about it all that bothered me . . . I simply felt that there was too much identification with Willy . . . and that the play's ironies were being dimmed out by all this empathy."

Paul looks on "Death of a Salesman" as unique in exposing a central lie in American life -- the idea that "the man who makes an appearance in the business world is the man who gets ahead."

Driving through Queens, NY, the director saw what could be Willy Loman's house -- a small frame cottage surrounded by warehouses and tall apartments and enormous billboards. That's the image he is pursuing in this production -- "a collage of commercialism pressing in on the lives of our people!"

Willy Loman, described by Arthur Miller as a man who "gave his life, or sold it, in order to justify the waste of it," is played by theatre professor Henry Hammack, who has performed at Circle Theatre, Casa Manana, New Arts Theatre and Fort Worth Theatre and in TV and feature films.

Anne-Lynn Kettles, guest-starring as Linda Loman, has appeared in New York in "Six Characters in Search of an Author," "A Clearing in the Woods" and "Silent Night, Lonely Night" and was nominated for best actress (Carbonell Awards) in "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You." She premiered as Mary in Lanford Wilson's "Serenading Louie" and as Marianne in Richard Wilbur's "Tartuffe." Kettles has appeared in "Miami Vice" on television and in Edward Albee's "All Over" for the PBS Great Performance Series. Now a resident of Fort Worth, Kettles is a graduate of Rollins College and has studied acting with Uta Hagen in New York.

Paul, who also will direct a major revival of the Jerry Bock/Sheldon Harnick musical "She Loves Me" for the Berkshire Theater Festival this summer, is a graduate of Harvard College and the Neighborhood Playhouse of the Theater. His 25 years of directing has included G.B. Shaw's "The Philanderer" for the Pearl Theater in New York, Paul Osborn's "Tomorrow's Monday" for Circle Repertory Company there, Osborn's "The Vinegar Tree" at the York Theater and Patrick Suskind's one-character "The Double Bass" at both the Double Image in Manhattan and New Theater of Brooklyn.

He produced the award-winning documentary "Sanford Meisner -- The Theater's Best-Kept Secret," to be broadcast this summer on the PBS American Masters series. Paul has directed Kettles in New York and also has directed a play by theatre chairman Andrew Harris.

The roles of Biff and Happy Loman, the sons in conflict with Willy, will be played by seniors Jim Hopkins of Aurora, NE, and Rhett Pennell of Corpus Christi, respectively. Stage manager for the production is junior Lori Van Zandt of Kirkwood, MO.

WASH RACK OPEN FOR UNIVERSITY VEHICLES

The physical plant's new vehicle wash rack is now open and available for use by operators of all University vehicles. Not to be used for privately owned vehicles, according to physical plant director Willett Stallworth, the self-service facility is equipped with warm water and soap and is open from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Arrangements can be made with the Work Control Center, Ext. 7954, to use the facility after hours.

FAIRE TICKETS AVAILABLE

Adult tickets for the annual Scarborough Faire in Waxahachie are available at the Student Center information desk for $8.95 each. The festival is open on weekends from April 27 through June 16 and on the Memorial Day holiday May 27.

QUINO CLUB REUNION IS THIS WEEKEND

More than 100 members of the University's Quing Club, composed of persons who graduated 50 or more years ago, will gather in Fort Worth this weekend for their annual reunion.

Special honorees will be Class of 1931 members, according to club president Julius Truelson, whose invitation letter noted that "we have changed coaches, presidents and professors several times, but the love and appreciation for our years of association with TCU are still as strong as ever."

Early reservations included persons from as far as California to Georgia and Virginia to Florida for the activities that begin Friday with 6:30 p.m. registration and dinner at 7 p.m. at Colonial Country Club.

Saturday's activities will begin with 9:30 a.m. registration and continental breakfast in Colby Hall. Residential living's associate director Kay Higgins will discuss the residence hall program during a "Highlights of TCU" session before a campus tour. The 11:45 a.m. luncheon will be held in the Student Center's Woodson Room with Chancellor Bill Tucker as speaker.

SESSIONS FOCUS ON MLK BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Three sessions have been scheduled as opportunities for the University community to present ideas about how TCU will celebrate Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. Planned by the committee recently appointed by Chancellor Bill Tucker to determine the appropriate observance, the sessions will be held Wednesday at 5:15 p.m., Thursday at 7 a.m. and Friday at noon.

As announced by Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler, who chairs the nine-member committee, all meetings will be in the House of Student Representatives chamber, Student Center 222.

Persons wishing to address the committee can do so by calling Dr. Koehler's office, Ext. 7101, to arrange a time. The question to be addressed, he noted, is, "What should the University do to celebrate the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr.?" Each presentation will be limited to five minutes; submitting it in writing is optional.

"The committee is extremely interested in having your input," Dr. Koehler said. "We sincerely hope you will take the time to join us at one of these sessions."

Serving with Vice Chancellor Koehler on the committee are Shari Barnes of personnel, Vice Chancellor Peggy Barr, John Butler of campus ministries, Logan Hampton of Student Activities, Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Lauer, Faculty Senate chairman Ted Klein, Student House president Ernie Ross and Ralph Belk, senior social work major from Washington, DC.

In naming the committee, Dr. Tucker said: "In my view, we really are of one mind in wanting to honor Dr. King and give thoughtful expression to the social values he spoke and lived and advanced. The issue is how."

JOURNALISM HOSTS REPORTERS' WORKSHOP

Approximately 50 professional writers from the North Texas area along with some 20 TCU journalism students participated in the Reporters' Workshop April 20 in the Student Center. Sponsored by the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Association, the day-long program was co-produced by the journalism department and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Environmental reporting was the theme of the morning session, which followed introductions by Star-Telegram managing editor Mary Jo Meisner. "Who Pays for Clean Air?" was addressed by a panel moderated by Randy Loftis of the Dallas Morning News. Panelists were Earl Turns, General Dynamics project engineer for environmental health and safety; Marti Van Ravenswaay, North Central Texas Council of Governments chairman for air quality advisory committee; Joe Wells, Dallas Regional Group of the Sierra Club; Lou Chapman and Mike Whiteley of the Star-Telegram.

"The Business of Baseball" was the topic for the afternoon's session on sports reporting moderated by Dale Hansen of WFAA-TV. Panelists were Richard Greene, Arlington mayor; Tom Schieffer, Texas Rangers president; Buck Woy, president of Woy, Weinberg & Woy Management Group; Cheryl Phillips, Star-Telegram; and Phil Rogers, Dallas Times-Herald.

MCLENNAN RECEIVES C-SPAN GRANT

David McLennan, assistant professor of speech communication since 1988, is recipient of a $500 faculty development grant from C-SPAN, the cable television network. One of only 31 college and university faculty members from across the nation to receive a C-SPAN faculty grant since the program's inception, he was chosen on the basis of his proposal for academic research applications of the nation's public affairs programming.

The faculty development grant program allows recipients to obtain videotapes and catalogs for their teaching or research project from the Public Affairs Video Archives at Purdue University. Tapes of all C-SPAN programs that have aired since 1987 have been recorded and indexed at the archives, which exists exclusively for the academic community. Grantees are entitled to acquire $500 worth of materials directly from the archives.

The faculty development grant program is one of the many projects of "C-SPAN in the Classroom," the network's free service that provides support services to more than 9,000 instructors using C-SPAN as a teaching tool. Other services include newsletters, access to Purdue's Public Affairs Video Archives, seminars and resource materials. C-SPAN, a non-profit cooperative of the cable television industry, is available in 53 million households nationwide and around the world via satellite.

David holds two degrees from the University of Virginia and the Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin. The Lynchburg, VA, native is active in the Speech Communication Association and Southern States Communication Association.

HARTMAN NAMED HONORS PROF

Phil Hartman of biology received the 1991 Faculty Recognition Award Thursday from students in the TCU Honors Program. The honor was announced at Honors Convocation by Stephen Benoit, junior psychology major and chairman of the Student Honors Cabinet.

The award was Phil's third teaching honor since he joined the faculty 10 years ago. He received a Student Foundation Outstanding Faculty Award in 1989 and a Student House of Representatives Teaching Excellence Award in 1986. He earned the University Graduate Student Teaching Award in 1979 at the University of Missouri, where he received the Ph.D. degree. He subsequently held two postdoctoral fellowships at the University of Minnesota, one from the National Science Foundation and one from the American Cancer Society. The Iowa State University graduate has received research grants from the National Institutes of Health, the National Science Foundation and the TCU Research Foundation, as well as the National Institute on Aging.

New Phi Beta Kappa members, announced at the Honors Convocation by Chancellor Bill Tucker, are juniors Jacqueline Brewer of Fort Worth; Michael Howell of Gilbert, AZ; Catherine Karpinski of Lenexa, KS; Shane Karr, Phoenix; and Karen Yeh, Eules.

Seniors are Julie Bettinger, Lakewood, CO; Laura Brennan, Overland Park, KS; Deena Brodsgaard, Waco; Bryan Cannon, Lubbock; Rachel Eason, San Antonio; James Edgar, Albuquerque; Amy Foster, Pleasanton; Steven Gandy, Murfreesboro, TN; Michael Leblanc, Houston; Keith Loudon, Carlsbad, CA; John Lucas, Fort Worth; Jacque Maupin, Oklahoma City; Kenneth McKenzie, Arlington; Gregory Morningstar, Cedar Rapids, IA; Mary Newman, Elk Grove, CA; Leigh Riley, Houston; Michele Satterelli, Houston; Amy Stevens, Overland Park; Kerry Thomas, Fort Worth; Kristin Van Heyningen, North Royalton, OH; Matthew Vossler, Sugar Land; Laura Whitworth, Maumelle, AR; Andrew Wright, Houston; and Debra Yaniko, Roanoke.

At the Honors banquet Thursday night, the Phi Beta Kappa Award was presented to the outstanding senior in liberal studies, Stephanie Boade of Bartlesville, OK, who is majoring in biochemistry and history, and the Sigma Xi Award to the top senior in science, Douglas Strout of Houston, a double major in physics and chemistry.

Doug also won the Boller Award for the best Senior Honors Project presentation. His project, "An Exactly Solvable Model Ternary Solution with Three-body Interactions," was supervised by Dale Huckaby. The TCU Honors Scholar Award for summer research went to David Douglass, senior neuroscience major from Overland Park, KS.

ON-LINE DATA BASE TO NOTE CLOSED CLASSES

Finding out which classes have closed and which ones are still open may be a little easier now with a new on-line service provided by the registrar's office. Several times daily throughout advance registration, the registrar's office will update information on class availability. The system will note whether a given class remains open or has been filled.

"We did this to better assist advisers trying to get an update on closed sections," explained Vanessa Lanzarotti, Information Service Manager in the registrar's office. "There was no facility for them to get this information."

The data base will supplement the current paper-based system. Reports detailing filled classes are printed at the end of day during advance registration and posted in Sadler Hall, according to Vanessa. Now advisers will be able to access more recent data through on-line access to the campus' mainframe computer system.

Class closing will be updated several times throughout the day during advance registration so advisers can provide better information to students on class availability. "Departmental chairs can monitor closely how courses are filling up to see if they need to add new sections," she said.

The registrar's office worked only a few weeks with Information Services to bring the system on line. Since its first day of service April 1, daily sessions have grown to 50. Usage is expected to rise as more people become aware of the service.

The data base is available to all MUSIC users through the public account TCUINFO, Vanessa said. Users of the library computer system will have the option of checking on classes in the future.

Instructions for using the on-line course data base is available from User Services, Ext. 6855.

RETIREEES TO HEAR 'IMAGE, REALITY IN TV'

"Image and Reality in Television" will be the topic when Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Lauer speaks Thursday to the TCU Retirees Association. The 11:30 a.m. event will be at Colonial Cafeteria on Trail Lake Drive.

Holder of two degrees from American University, Lauer was a member of the radio-TV-film faculty and then director of the continuing education division before being named head of University relations. He also is on the journalism department faculty with teaching specialties in corporate and international communication. In 1989 he taught "Cultural Value and the Mass Media" at TCU's summer program in England, and "International Communication" was his course last summer at Oxford.

UTAH RDT WILL PERFORM HERE

Utah Repertory Dance Company, established in 1966 to keep alive the unique artistry of American modern dance, will perform concerts in the Ballet Building Friday and Saturday as part of its silver anniversary tour. The programs will begin at 8 p.m. each evening.

Admission is $6 ($3 for students and senior citizens). Seating is limited, and dance fans are advised to arrive early. Information about the concert and about dance classes taught by the Utah company during its residency here with New Century Danscene may be obtained by calling Susan Douglas Roberts at Ext. 7615.

RDT was the first modern repertory dance company in the United States to be located outside of New York City. It was established by Salt Lake City and the University of Utah with a major grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

With a national reputation for professional excellence, the company performs a repertory of more than 200 master works that range from the early 20th-Century creations of Isadora Duncan to current contemporary dances. Included are works by Merce Cunningham, Jose Limon, Margaret Jenkins, Lar Lubovitch, Bill T. Jones and Arnie Zane, Peter Sparling and others.

In addition to providing a year-round training ground for serious dancers and choreographers, the company has developed residency programs to educate audiences of all ages. RDT will treat Fort Worth dance fans to a lecture-demonstration for which it is well known. "Pioneers of Modern Dance," with works by Isadora Duncan, Ted Shawn, Helen Tamiris and other early modern dance choreographers, will be presented at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the Kimbell Art Museum Auditorium. Admission is free.

New Century Danscene, which sponsors the visiting company, is funded by a grant from the Bass Foundation through the Arts Council of Fort Worth and Tarrant County to TCU with support from Contemporary Dance/Fort Worth.

This residency is a Mid-America Arts Alliance Program made possible by the Dance on Tour Program of the National Endowment for the Arts with the Texas Commission on the Arts.

SENIOR DANCE SHOW OPENS APRIL 30

Eight senior ballet and modern dance majors will stage their original works April 30-May 1 in Studio B of the Ballet Building. Both performances begin at 8 p.m.

Ballet majors are Anna Williams of Southlake, Stephanie Brooks of Abilene and Sherry Jerome of Tempe, AZ. Graduating in modern dance are Michelle Tyer of Tyler, Lisa Draskovic of Kansas City, Stefon George of Missouri City, Deborah Gustas of Houston and Andrea Harris of Billings, MT.

EVENTS RECOGNIZE HARRIS COLLEGE STUDENTS

Harris College of Nursing students along with faculty members will be involved in two events Saturday, and a group of sophomore nursing majors were honored during an April 13 event.

Seven nursing students and a Fort Worth nurse will be inducted into the honor society Sigma Theta Tau during ceremonies beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Annie Richardson Bass Building living room. Speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Billye J. Brown, president of Sigma Theta Tau International who is La Quinta Centennial Professor Emeritus in the School of Nursing at the University of Texas at Austin.

Inductees include Lisa Carollo, Lisa Logan Crawford, RN Susan Fife, Susan Foster, Monica Nelson, Janet Powers and Denise Webb along with Kimberly Litton, a RN from Fort Worth.

Earlier in the day, seniors shared their future plans and presented skits during the annual senior brunch, at Mira Vista Country Club.

The April 13 sophomore dedication, described by Dean Pat Scarse as "one of the most significant ceremonies in any nursing program," was held in Robert Carr Chapel. Sixty students celebrated their completion of the first third of the nursing program and the move into major clinical studies. Speaker was Donna Bertram, RN, MBA, CNA, who is vice president of nursing for Penrose-St. Francis Healthcare System in Colorado Springs, CO. She formerly was vice president of nursing for Fort Worth's Harris Methodist Hospital.

Several factors made the dedication particularly "exciting" to Dean Scarse. The 66 students eligible to participate represent the largest eligible total in many years; 17 percent of the students are male, making this the largest male enrollment in Harris College history; and 92 percent of the 66 eligible students actually took part in the program.

ALL-SPORTS AWARDS EVENT WILL BE MAY 1

Awards to all athletes in men's and women's sports and Frog Club awards will be presented during a public event in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum at 6:30 p.m. May 1. The Horned Frog All-Sports Banquet will feature Fort Worth businessman Lindy Berry, 1949 All-American quarterback whose name is repeated throughout Horned Frog athletic history books, as master of ceremonies.

Reservations, at $10 per person for the program and buffet dinner, can be made through the athletic ticket office in the coliseum, Ext. 7967.

HAGADONE TO SPEAK AT TRANSPLANT FORUM

Stanley Hagadone of Brite Divinity School will join noted psychologist-columnist-educator Joyce Brothers and Dr. John Burnside, associate dean of clinical affairs at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, for a May 1 public seminar on tissue and organ donation. Open to the public as well as professionals in such fields as nursing, ministry, medicine and social work, the forum is sponsored by the Lions Sight & Tissue Foundation and the UT Southwestern's Transplant Services Center.

"Tissue and Organ Donation: An Opportunity for Comfort in a Time of Sorrow" is the theme for the morning program, which will be held from 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Dallas school's Gooch Auditorium. Registration, a reception and continental breakfast are scheduled for 8 a.m. Registration is $18 in advance or $23 at the door, including the breakfast and valet parking. A program for professionals only will follow in the afternoon; its registration fee is $43.

Stan, who joined the TCU faculty last fall as Brite's director of admissions after serving as minister of Midway Hills Christian Church in Dallas, will discuss "The Whole Person in a Fragmented World." Brothers, also well known as a radio and TV personality, will speak on "Helping Others While Helping Yourself." She is the author of "Widowed," a book about the death of her husband and what she learned from her own experience handling grief. An ethicist, physician, educator and administrator, Burnside will discuss "Ethics in Transplantation."

Additional information is available and reservations can be made by calling (214) 688-2609.

MUSIC SERIES CLOSES APRIL 29

The TCU Symphonic Winds, conducted by associate band director Dave Henning, will close the 1990-91 TCU Music Series with an April 29 performance at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Opening with Aaron Copeland's "Fanfare for the Common Man," the program will include Incidental Suite by Claude Thomas Smith, "Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night" by Elliott Del Borgo and Armed Forces Salute, arranged by Bob Lowden. Warren Barker's "A Gallop to End All Gallops" will be conducted by graduate assistant Steve Andre, a music education major from Cache, UT.

SCULPTURE ON VIEW AT LIBRARY

Mary Couts Burnett Library takes on the aspects of an art museum for the remainder of the school year, housing an exhibit of recent works by five advanced sculpture students. Located in the library's lobby, the showing will be open during library hours.

The stone, steel, wood and bronze sculptures were created by seniors Jill Adams of Athens and Bob Burnett of Albuquerque, juniors Michel Cox of Weatherford and Shin Kitahara of Soka City, Japan, and sophomore Susan Marshall of Fort Worth.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Nursing's CAROLYN CAGLE and journalism's MERCEDES OLIVERA are among participants for the 7th Women & Work Conference April 25-26 in Arlington. Sponsored by the University of Texas at Arlington and funded by Southwestern Bell Foundation, the meeting will focus on "Diversity at Work: A Forum for Exchange of Information, Knowledge, and Research on Women and Work." Carolyn will discuss "Career Impact and Late-Timing First Parenthood," and Mercedes will moderate a panel on "Leadership Diversity Among Women of Color."

Associate Vice Chancellor LARRY LAUER has accepted the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's invitation to serve on its newly formed 25-member community advisory board.

At the late March convention of the International Association of the Fantastic in the Arts in Fort Lauderdale, KEITH ODOM (English) read a paper on "Fantasy: The Sisters Bronte and the Brothers Grimm" for the session on The Fantastic Landscape in European Literature. He also chaired a session on myth and fantasy, where participants learned that one of the scheduled readers has not been heard from since late last July. The missing member is Professor Hani Al-Rahib of Kuwait University.

JEFF TEMPLETON (geology graduate student) and geologist RICHARD HANSON presented a paper entitled "Volcanology and Stratigraphic Evolution of a Jurassic Island-Arc Sequence, Northern Sierra Nevada, California" at the annual meeting of the Cordilleran Section of the Geological Society of America March 27 in San Francisco. Richard gave a talk April 4 on his experiences in Antarctica during the past Antarctic "summer" to the geology department and other interested persons.

CHRIS BARRY (finance and decision sciences) presented two papers and met with faculty at the University of Texas at Austin in their Ph.D. workshop in finance. The papers, "The Opening Price Performance of Initial Public Offerings of Common Stock" and "Information and Diversity of Analyst Opinion," were coauthored with Robert Jennings from Indiana University.

Sympathy is extended to economist FLOYD DURHAM, whose father died April 12 in a Fort Worth hospital. Services were held April 15 for the Weatherford native, who had worked on the Manhattan Project in Los Alamos during World War II.
