Mr. R. B. Evans,
Evans Candy Co.,
Ada, Oklahoma.

Dear Sir:

I have your name from my good friend and customer, Mr. Hal Stamps of Tishomingo, Okla. I was visiting him Monday, i vestigating the meteorites recently found just north of Tishomingo.

I collect meteorites, as you will see from the enclosed circular, and in talking about the subject, Mr. Stamps told me thought you had a small one used as a desk paper weight.

If so, I would appreciate hearing from you as to where this came from and about what it weighs (or its size). Is it iron or stone? If it is a previously unrecorded one I would especially like to get data. I am guessing it may be one of the smaller ones from the big crater in Arizona, as these have been widely circulated.

I will be grateful for a brief answer on the attached card.

Yours sincerely,
