

BULLETIN

Issued by the Division of University Relations

Vol. 66, No. 13, Nov. 14, 1989

CAPITAL INTERNSHIPS ARE ENVIABLE

TCU's 17 Washington interns have some plum assignments this fall — everything from handling public relations for McDonald's to working in the state department with top secret clearance. All seniors, they will return to campus classes next semester and will complete papers on their experiences for Gene Alpert, who directs the University's participation in the internship program through the Washington Center.

Suzanne Boland, political science/history major, has had the opportunity to escort foreign visitors to Washington through her work with Meridian House International Visitor Program Service. She also is involved in program planning. Working with the YMCA of America, political science major Jeff Bostic assists a public policy analyst in the area of child care and other family policy issues. Angela Cox, advertising/public relations major, helps with news conferences, press releases and other media contacts for the Gallagher-Widmeyer Group, which numbers among its clients the National Governors Conference.

Interning for the D.C. Corporation Counsel's juvenile division, Susan Elliott (political science) assists an attorney in child abuse and neglect cases. Jill Ferguson (social work) is with D & S Whyte and Associates consulting firm, helping to plan the National Perinatal Association convention and writing for its newsletter. Public relations/advertising major Ami Harry organizes client functions and develops proposals for potential clients of U.S.A. Hosts, Inc.

Stan Hubbard (political science) works for Institute for Foreign Policy Analysis, monitoring legislation on defense and foreign issues and researching ballistic and cruise missile proliferation. With The Ottinger Foundation, Carrie Laughlin (political science) researches grant proposals submitted to the foundation in the areas of government accountability, environment, women's rights, conservation and minority rights. The student with top secret clearance, Cheryl Mann (political science), is with the U.S. State Department's bureau of diplomatic security, where she has written a student handbook on how to detect passport fraud and is working in a new facility where foreign service officers are trained to respond to high threat situations.

Vincent Mathews works as an assistant to the press secretary for U.S. Sen. Dale Bumpers of his home state, Arkansas. He provides staff support to legislative assistants for environmental and foreign and defense issues.

Renee Robinson is a research assistant for a senior staff associate in the fields of international law and national security at Carnegie Endowments for International Peace. Shelby Robinson assists an attorney for the National Organization for Women. All three are political science majors.

Paul Schmidt (finance) assesses new developments on Japanese business and political relationships for the U.S.-Japan Business Council. Working with Susan Davis Companies on public relations for McDonald's and helping to plan programs for Ronald McDonald Children's Charities, School Partnerships and the All-American High School Band is Ellen Schrottke (advertising/public relations). Cathryn Smalley, political science, researches and disseminates information on labor law issues for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Labor Law Action Center.

Accounting/theatre major Doug Thompson works with the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, assisting in the operation of its five theatres. He is responsible for booking rehearsal room space and arranging housing and transportation for performers and also is involved in casting the new musical production "Annie 2." Interning with the American Forestry Association, Susan Young designs display ads and handles classified ads for American Forests Magazine and is involved in preparation of the global relief campaign.

STUDENTS FROM 58 NATIONS ADD INTERNATIONAL ACCENT

Calling nations as distant as Anguila and Zimbabwe home and representing 63 countries, 191 international students are enrolled at TCU this semester. Most are undergraduates and males, and nearly one-third are new to the campus.

One hundred forty-seven are undergraduates, while 37 are graduate students. One hundred five are male. West Germany and Panama with 12 students each have the largest representation on campus, followed by El Salvador, India and Indonesia with 10 each and Japan and Malaysia with nine each.

'SMOKEOUT' WILL BE THURSDAY

Super Frog and several TCU cheerleaders will take part in the 13th Great American Smokeout Thursday at Burnett Park in downtown Fort Worth. The 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. rally is sponsored by the American Cancer Society in an effort to encourage persons to refrain from smoking on that day as a first step toward giving up smoking.

Soft drinks, balloons and cancer society literature will be available.

STUDENTS WILL SPEAK TO RETIREES

How TCU students view the University will be explored by four currently-enrolled students at Thursday's meeting of the TCU Retirees Association. Moderated by Dean of Students Libby Proffer, the panel will respond to the audience's questions.

The meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m. in the Trinity Room of Jetton's Cafeteria at 1700 Rogers Road.

UNITED WAY EFFORT TOTALS $74,409.85

Contributions to the campus campaign for the United Way of Tarrant County totaled $74,409.85. According to a report by Associate Vice Chancellor Larry Lauer, who chaired the drive, this is the largest amount ever raised for the county effort. TCU's 1989 goal was $75,248.

"Although we were about $800 short of this year's goal, we are very pleased that so many in the University community participated in the effort," Larry said. "Our total was close enough to the goal for us to consider it a real success."

The breakdown in contributions included 100 percent participation from the chancellor's office, which includes athletics; 76 percent, student affairs; 89 percent, administrative services; 75 percent, academic affairs; 88 percent, finance and planning; and 82 percent, development and University relations. These figures represent increases over 1988 totals in three areas -- administrative services, academic affairs, finance and planning.

WIND GROUPS TO PLAY MONDAY

Music for small wind ensembles will be the focus of a TCU Music Series recital at 8 p.m. Monday in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Faculty members Harriet Risk Woldt and Robert McLain will be featured on Dvorak's Serenade in D minor for nine wind instruments, cello and string bass. Bob Blanton will conduct both the Dvorak Serenade and Persichetti's Serenade No. 1 for 10 wind instruments.

Steve Weger will conduct a woodwind and brass quintet, and Gary Whitman will direct a clarinet quintet. A selection of Ernst Krenek's marches for small wind groups will be conducted by graduate student Jennifer Brinson of San Angelo.

DAVIS, CURRY PARTICIPATE IN MEET

Gail Davis and Linda Curry of Harris College of Nursing are attending the 30th biennial convention of Sigma Theta Tau International in Indianapolis, where the nursing honor society was founded in 1922. More than 2,000 members have convened for keynote speeches on health care topics, a master lecture series, scientific sessions and awards presentations. Dedication of the society's International Center for Nursing Scholarship and Nursing Library will be part of the activities.

More than 275 research presentations will focus on topics such as image of nursing, high infant mortality rates, AIDS, addictions, professional practice issues and diabetes management. President of TCU's Beta Alpha chapter of the society, Gail will present outcomes of a project related to her study of chronic pain management. Linda is a member of Sigma Theta Tau's international bylaws committee.

COACH SAYS WIN IS CAREER'S BIGGEST

"The biggest win of my coaching career" was Richard Sybesma's description of the men's swimming and diving team defeat of Texas A&M Nov. 4. This marked the first time TCU had defeated the Aggies in a dual meet, which the Frogs took by four seconds in the last relay event.

The men's 56-55 win and the TCU women's team's narrow 54-57 loss were "total team efforts," Richard said. "I have been at TCU 11 years, and it was fun to see the program be able to compete with anyone in the nation."

According to the coach, Steve Reed, who had a first place in 1000 free and 500 free competition, was the "real key in the men's meet." Katie Tredennick, first in 50 free and 100 free, and Gretchen Brannon, first in both 200 IM and 200 butterfly, were outstanding, Sybesma said. "Gretchen's 200 fly time of 2:05.5 was a new TCU school record and should rank her very high nationally."

Other men's first-place winners were Mark Graves, 200 free; Matt Walters, 200 butterfly; Tony Ghanem, 1-meter and 3-meter diving. The 400 free relay team is composed of Reed, Graves, Keith Ludwick and Steve Kellam.

For the women, first-place winners were Kelly Crowell, 1-meter diving; Andrea Wilson, 3-meter diving; and the 400-relay team composed of Cindy McClure, Lynne Myers, Rachel Eason and Tredennick.

OPEN HOUSE WILL FOLLOW GAME

The Caswell House, at 1404 West Ave. in Austin will be the site of an open house for alumni and friends of TCU following Saturday's TCU vs. Texas game. The alumni association is sponsoring the informal gathering, which is coordinated by Austin alumni Roy and Joan Pratt Snodgrass.

HUNGER AUCTION IS TOMORROW

Major fund-raiser for TCU Hunger Week, the annual banquet/auction, begins at 6 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in Student Center ballroom. Billed as "Dining with a Difference," the dinner will cost $3.50. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Traditionally, diners don't know whether they are purchasing a meal fit for royalty or rice and beans served while they sit on the floor. This year's event, based on the theme "How the Rich and Poor Eat in America and India," may find diners feasting on authentic Indian gourmet dishes or steak. Depending on the luck of the draw, they still may get those rice and beans on the floor.

The auction begins at 6:45 p.m., and donations still are being accepted by University Ministries office. Items up for grabs may include anything from home-baked brownies to rare books or from baby-sitting services to original paintings. Faculty and staff members who cannot attend the event but would like to bid may do so at University Ministries until 6 p.m. tomorrow. Call Ext. 7830 for information.

Also on Wednesday's schedule is Hunger Week chapel at noon in Carr Chapel, where the sermon will be delivered by Howard Hartman, executive director of Texas C.R.O.P. A prayer vigil will begin immediately after the service, continuing to noon Thursday. The Hop will host an Ending Hunger Benefit at 9 p.m. tomorrow, featuring Trio of One, Over the Edge, Eddie and James, Alma Squilante and Mayesa Dasa. Cover charge is $3. Andy Fort, Hunger Week faculty chairperson, will present a briefing, "The Myths and Realities of Hunger," at 7 p.m. Thursday in Student Center 202.

A contemporary Christian concert by Billy Sprague, opening with Aaron Saffell, will begin at 7 p.m. Friday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Student admission is $2 or four cans of food, and tickets for the public cost $4. Saturday activities begin with volunteer outings to Loaves and Fishes between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to help in the soup kitchen.

Hunger Week displays are set up in University Theatre's lobby for all 8 p.m. performances of "Our Town" this week, and a box will be available for canned food donations. Monetary donations will be accepted Saturday night.

Again this year faculty and staff members are urged to join students in the Frog family fast, skipping one or more meals and donating the money to world hunger. Students donate to Hunger Week with their campus meal cards, and the first $1,000 of those donations will be matched by a gift from Marriott.

In seven years of TCU Hunger Weeks, more than $115,000 has been contributed to local, national and international relief agencies. The 1989 proceeds will be divided among UNICEF, Oxfam America, Catholic Relief Services, Church World Service and Emergency Assistance of Tarrant County. John Butler, administrative overseer for Hunger Week, stressed the activity isn't devoted simply to fund-raising. It is aimed equally at increasing knowledge about world hunger and at community service.

TCU SINGER TOPS REGION

TCU senior Jimmy Taylor of Kingwood has won over 700 vocalists from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico to be named outstanding singer in the Texoma region of National Association of Teachers of Singing. He was the second consecutive TCU student to win the Grady Harlan Award, which is presented annually to the singer with the most professional potential. Graduate student Ray Herman received the award in 1988. TCU is the first school in the 38-year history of the competition to have back-to-back winners of the award. "This achievement takes on added significance when the size of TCU's vocal program is compared to larger programs in the region," noted vocal coordinator Sheila Allen. A student of TCU Opera Workshop director Arden Hopkin, Taylor received cash awards and a partial scholarship to the American Institute of Vocal Studies in Graz, Austria, in the summer of 1990.

Of TCU's 25 entrants in the NATS student auditions, 12 were named semi-finalists. Danny Baker, junior from Mesquite and a student of Vince Russo, earned second place in the junior men's division, and Jeff McGrory, Greenville, SC, junior and a student of Sheila, won fifth. Taylor won first prize in the senior men's division before receiving the Harlan award.

All three winners are music education majors, which is rare. "Contest winners are usually vocal performance majors," explained music education coordinator Ruth Whitlock. "The fact that three music education majors ranked so highly speaks well of the calibre of students in the program here." She believes the high quality of students also accounts for the fact that more than 90 percent of TCU's music education graduates find jobs in their field each year.

Since 1977, TCU has had at least one NATS finalist each year and sometimes as many as five finalists, Arden said, but this is the best year to date in terms of number of participants and final results.

KENYA, MEXICAN REVIERA ON ITINERARY

Kenya and the Mexican Riviera are on the itinerary for alumni association-related travel early in 1990. Departure dates for the trips are Feb. 21 and Feb. 17, respectively.

The 21-day Wings over Kenya Air Safari includes visits to Kenya, Nairobi, Ambroseli Game Reserve, Aberdare/Treetops, Mount Kenya Safari Club, Samburu Game Reserve and Masai-Mara Game Reserve, including two nights at Kichwa Tembo tented camp. In Kenya, travelers will visit the Leakey Exhibition and tour the home of Karen Blixen, heroine of the movie "Out of Africa."

The Fair Princess will be "home" for an eight-day cruise on the air/sea adventure to the Mexican Riviera. Beginning in Los Angeles the trip will include a cruise down the coast of Baja California to port stops at Cabo San Lucas, Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta. Air fare round trip from most major American cities to Los Angeles is free. Details of both adventures are available from the alumni office, Ext. 7803.

RADIO SERIES EXAMINES JUSTICE SYSTEM

A 12-year-old is charged with the murder of a Fort Worth teacher. Marchers protest violence to women and children -- and one of the demonstrators is attacked upon her return home. A 14-year-old girl is kidnapped and murdered on her way to school by a parolee. Problems of violence and how to deal with it are hitting home.

A new KTCU monthly radio series developed by Criminal Justice Program director Alexis Durham will focus on issues challenging the criminal justice system. The series will debut tomorrow (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. with "Juvenile Delinquency and the Juvenile Justice System: Myth and Reality," with guest Preston Elrod, who before coming to TCU was chief probation officer of the Kalamazoo, MI, juvenile court. Subsequent programs will air at 7:30 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month, tackling topics such as drugs and overflowing prisons.

TCU TO CO-HOST GEOLOGY SYMPOSIUM

One hundred seventy-five geologists are expected on campus Saturday when TCU and the Fort Worth Geological Society co-host a symposium dealing with exploration for oil in Mississippian rocks of north central Texas. Nowell Donovan and Art Ehlmann are scheduled to speak along with geologists actively exploring in the area and faculty members from the University of Texas at Austin, the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology and Texas A&M.

TELECONFERENCE FOCUSES ON AIDS ON CAMPUS

Student affairs staff development will educate University staff members about AIDS on campus through a nationally broadcast teleconference Thursday. No longer immune to this health issue, colleges nationwide are seeing the incidence of cases increase at an alarming rate. "AIDS in the College Community from Crisis to Management" is designed to help institutions develop long-range plans for dealing with the disease. Since the program will encourage interprofessional problem solving and sharing, it will be of special interest to those in housing, student affairs, student health, legal services, academic affairs and administrators. For more information, call Ext. 7928.

JUST A REMINDER...

...of CD-ROM II teleconference tomorrow (Wednesday) from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in TAGER TV/Telecommunications Studio. Reservations should be made by calling Ext. 7632.

...of "Crisis in Atmosphere," a Discovery Lecture Series from the University of Colorado, from 2 to 4 p.m. tomorrow in TAGER-TV/Telecommunications Studio.

LAWRENCE, BORING TO LEAD TRIP

Ken Lawrence and Gene Boring of religion-studies will lead the June 7-July 5 travel study trip to Greece and Italy. Titled "Early Christian Literature and Art," the program will include visits to Athens, Patmos Island, Epidavros, Nauplion, Rome, Ravenna, Florence and Assisi.

Offering up to six hours' credit, the trip will feature study of the language and images early Christians developed to express their faith through on-site studies of their linguistic and artistic efforts. The interdisciplinary course will include aspects of the theory of language, art and communication, history and culture of the Hellenistic and Roman periods of Mediterranean civilizations as well as history, literature and thought of early Christianity and the interpretation of Biblical texts and art objects.

Reservations can be held with a nonrefundable $135 deposit, and Dec. 1 is deadline for a $500 payment. Remainder of the estimated $3,465 will be due April 1. Additional information is available from the religion-studies department.

NEW FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

Three officers began their TCU assignments with the aerospace studies department in June. They are Col. ANDY RIVERA, Capt. STEVE JOHNSON and Capt. BRAD KEANE. Commander of Carswell AFB before coming to campus, Andy formerly was deputy chief of staff for personnel of the Eighth Air Force stationed at Barksdale AFB, LA. Holder of two degrees from the University of Puerto Rico, where he had a basketball scholarship, the aerospace professor received the Legion of Merit earlier this year.

An Oklahoma native, Steve was audit team leader at Tinker AFB before coming to TCU. Earlier assignments were as senior missile combat crew commander at McConnell AFB in 1983-86 after three years in management analysis in England. Earlier he was assigned to the Air Force hospital in Little Rock, AR.

Brad, who earned degrees at the University of California at Los Angeles and Golden Gate University, was chief of the staff training branch at the 868th Tactical Missile Training Group at Davis-Monthan AFB in Tucson for three years prior to his current assignment. Earlier he was combat crew commander instructor/evaluator in Belgium.

Formerly a consultant with Maintenance Automation Corporation, ROBERT FITZPATRICK joined the physical plant staff in late October as director of resources. He holds the B.B.A. degree with a major in accounting from the University of Oklahoma.

A member of the biology faculty since 1975, ANDY PAQUET has accepted re-appointment as chairperson of the biology department for a three-year term to begin with the 1990 fall semester. The former Ford Foundation Fellow and registered microbiologist holds degrees from the universities of New Mexico and Arizona.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Coach RICHARD SYBESMA (swimming) was one of the clinic speakers at the Texas Interscholastic Swimming Coaches Convention in Houston October 14-15. He spoke on workout organization, swimming stroke drills, games and gimmicks to make practices interesting. The clinic was attended by 120 swimming coaches from across Texas.

AFROTC's Master Sergeant ROBERT GIBSON recently earned his associate degree in personnel management from the Community College of the Air Force, but he's not finished yet. He is only a year away from completing a bachelor's in criminal justice at TCU.

CHRIS BARRY (finance/decision sciences) presented two papers at the Financial Management Association meeting Oct. 19-21 in Boston. The papers were "Venture Capital Reputation Effects in Initial Public Offerings," co-authored with former colleagues at SMU, and "Private Information, Public Information and Diversity of Analyst Opinion," co-authored with Robert Jennings of Indiana University.

Prolific can best describe the September publications of chemist BILL WATSON, who had five articles appearing in journals. "A Novel Conformational Energy Preference in the 7-Chloro-7-Carboxamido-6b,7,8,8a-tetrahydrocyclobut[A]acena-phthylene" appeared in the Tetrahedron 45, 4371 (1989) with a colleague from Trinity University as co-author. Reaction of Ph_2PH with tetracobalt cluster $\text{Co}_4(\text{CO})_{10}(\mu_4\text{-PPh})_2$. Kinetic studies of sequential CO replacement and X-ray crystal structure of $\text{Co}_4(\text{CO})_8(\mu_4\text{-PPh})_2(\text{Ph}_2\text{PH})_2$ was published in the Journal of Organometallic Chemistry, 372, 417 (1989).

A paper on Bill's continuing study of biologically active plant materials from the Southern Andes, "A New Indole Alkaloid from Aristotelia Chilensis," appeared in Acta Crystallographica, C45, 1322 (1989). The paper was co-authored with a colleague in the botany department in Concepcion, Chile.

"Structures of Two Diastereoisomeric Saturated Polycyclic $\text{C}_{22}\text{H}_{24}\text{O}$ Ketones" was included in Acta Crystallographica, C45, 1339 (1989), and "A Diels-Alder Cycloadduct of Methylcyclopentadiene with 2,6-Dimethylp-benzoquinone and the Intramolecular Photocyclization Product of this Cycloadduct" was in Acta Crystallographica, C45, 1342 (1989). Postdoctoral fellows ANTE NAGL and RAM KASHYAP were also participants in the projects.

JIM CHAMBERS (history) recently returned from Greece, where he took part in the Fifth International Symposium on Ancient Macedonia. Sponsored by the Institute for Balkan Studies in Thessaloniki, this meeting brought together scholars from all disciplines of classical studies. Jim presented a paper entitled "Macedonia's Impact on the Peloponnesian War After the Peace of Nicias," which will appear in Ancient Macedonia, to be published by the Institute. This was Jim's second trip to Greece this year. In July he attended the Twelfth Conference on Mediterranean Culture in Athens, where he presented a paper entitled "Regional and Status-based Variations in the Peloponnesian Response to Leuctra."

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

Sympathy is expressed to ERNEST COUCH (biology) on the death of his father, Ernest H. Couch, Nov. 1 in Dallas. Services were conducted Nov. 4 at Tyler Street United Methodist Church in Dallas.

"Freud in the Writing Center: The Psychoanalytic of Tutoring Well," an article by CHRISTINA MURPHY (Writing Center), appears in the fall issue of The Writing Center Journal.

JOE LAW (English/Writing Center) presented the paper "'Harry Ploughman' and the Body of Christ: An Exercise in Christology" at the Gerard Manley Hopkins Centennial Symposium in Kansas City.

Joe and MARGARET-ROSE MAREK (English/Writing Center) recently attended a symposium on "Literacy Online: The Promise (and Peril) of Reading and Writing with Computers" sponsored by the University of Alabama.

An article by CYNTHIA FOLIO (music) "A Performance Analysis of Berio's 'Sequenza' for Flute" has been accepted for publication in the summer 1990 issue of The Flutist Quarterly, the official journal of the National Flute Association.

Cynthia, JUDITH SOLOMON AND SHEILA ALLEN (music) and music students MARK DUNN and EUNSUH OHM attended the national conference of the Society for Music Theory in Austin Oct. 27-28.

STEVE KINTIGH and TCU Recreational Sports Department hosted the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association Region IV conference Oct. 26-27 at the Worthington Hotel. Some 110 professionals and students participated in the conference, which was highlighted by keynote addresses by PEGGY BARR and DON MILLS, Dr. James Caswell of SMU and Michael Dunn of Southern Illinois University. Entitled "Painting the Future," the conference also featured 28 other speakers from the seven-state region.

Historian BEN PROCTER is author of a short article entitled "A Remembrance of A.M. (Aggie) Pate, Jr." that appeared in the October issue of the Southwestern Historical Quarterly.

Two former Washington interns from TCU who now work in the capital, CRAIG WINNEKER and KAREN HOEHN, shared their experiences with new interns in a career night session last spring. Karen, the legislative coordinator for Women Strike for Peace, and Craig, an assistant producer with The McLaughlin Group, were photographed for a Washington Center newsletter.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE SET FOR NOV. 19

"Our Heritage of Thanksgiving," sponsored by the Tarrant Area Community of Churches and the Fort Worth chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will be held at Ed Landreth Auditorium at 7 p.m. Nov. 19. The festive interfaith celebration of the Thanksgiving tradition in music, dance, poetry and song will be free and open to the public.

TCU IN THE NEWS

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT folks were among those shown handing out Halloween treats on Elizabeth Boulevard in a color photo that appeared in the Nov. 1 issue of the Star-Telegram.

"Global warming: It's more than Chicken Little threat" was the headline for the lead editorial in the Nov. 6 issue of the Star-Telegram. It took note of TCU's Global Warming Week which began that day. The editorial was complemented by an editorial cartoon.

Managerial status can be gauged by using a stapler or other common tool of office labor, according to findings of BILL JURMA (speech communication). His studies of corporate offices and what they "say" about their occupants was the subject of the lead feature, "You Are Where You Work," in the Focus section of the Business Press Nov. 3. Bill's study indicated that "tenets of office and desk design in many businesses are more significant in creating an impression than they are at fulfilling a function."

Political scientist DON JACKSON was interviewed Nov. 2 by WFAA-TV regarding the question of whether state or federal funds should be used in construction of the amphitheater near Glen Rose where a religious pageant is to be staged.

Students JACQUIE MAUPIN and GINA BARNES and Lt.Col. FRED TERASA were featured in the Channel 8 story on women on ROTC that aired at noon Nov. 7.

The day before, WFAA-TV carried stories on the chemical dependency conference, coordinated by REECE SMALL and Global Warming Week, coordinated by LEO NEWLAND.

Among those in the Star-Telegram's CLICK section Nov. 8 were JIM CLOUSER (ballet) and GUO PEI-HUI, guest ballerina of the Central Ballet of China who was featured in TCU's recent ballet.

In the same section were DALE YOUNG (education) and MARGARET McWHORTER (fashion design) at the Fashion Group International's best-dressed man event and JOHN GIORDANO (music) and MARY ADAIR JOHNSON (psychology) and her husband at the recent Fort Worth Symphony League encore party.

DON FRISCHMANN (modern languages) was the subject of an interview (in Spanish) aired Nov. 2 on Channel 23's news program. Theme of the interview was the Mexican Day of the Dead celebration Nov. 2.
