WRITING WEEK HOSTS HARINGTON

Donald Harington, Arkansas writer/art historian who has held Carnegie, Rockefeller and National Endowment for the Arts grants, will be Creative Writing Week speaker tomorrow (Wednesday) and Thursday.

Harington, assistant professor of art at the University of Arkansas, will deliver the Cecil B. and Mary Beth Williams Lecture on "The Guestroom Novelist in America" at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Center Woodson Room. At Thursday's session, to begin at 3:30 p.m. in the ballroom, Harington will read from his latest novel, "The Cockroaches of Stay More," published last year by Harcourt Brace Jovanich.

Both sessions will be followed by receptions. The Thursday meeting will include the presentation of awards to winners of 23 writing contests.

A native of Little Rock, Harington earned a B.A. degree in art and the M.F.A. in printmaking from the University of Arkansas, an M.A. in art history from Boston University and the A.B.D., also in art history, from Harvard. Before joining the Arkansas faculty in 1986, he taught at Bennett College in Millbrook, NY, and Windham College, Putney, VT, and held visiting professorships at the universities of Missouri-Rolla, Pittsburgh and South Dakota.

Harington held a Rockefeller Grant Fellowship in 1966-67, Carnegie Fund for Authors grants in 1976 and 1979, Yaddo Fellowships in 1970 and 1979 and the $10,000 National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in writing in 1979. He also has received a grant and two minigrants from the Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities and the Porter Prize for Literary Excellence, given annually to Arkansas' best writer.

He is the author of one nonfiction book, "Let Us Build Us a City: Eleven Lost Towns," also published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, and four other novels, "The Architecture of the Arkansas Ozarks: A Novel," published by Little, Brown; "Some Other Place. The Right Place," also for Little, Brown; "Lightning Bug," published by Delacorte"; and "The Cherry Pit," published by Random House.

TCU Creative Writing contests include some of the longest-lived writing competitions in Texas. The Walter E. Bryson Poetry Contest has been an annual event since 1922. The Wednesday Club Fiction Award dates to 1935 and the Briscoe Short Story Contest to 1937.

THREE ARE BARNETT SCHOLARS

Three doctoral students -- Colleen Tremonte of Port Arthur, Tracy Anders Greenlee of Hamilton and Peter Hacker of Fort Worth -- have been named Barnett Scholars for 1989-90. The Madelyn B. and Louis H. Barnett Scholarship Fund, established by the Fort Worth couple in 1969, provides full tuition and stipends for three TCU doctoral students for one academic year.

Hacker, who is pursuing a doctoral degree in history, earned his bachelor's degree in history from the University of California at Los Angeles and the master's from TCU. His research interests are American Indian history and American Western history. Tremonte, doctoral candidate in English, earned the bachelor's degree in political science from the University of St. Thomas in Houston and the M.A. in history from St. Mary's University in San Antonio. Her research interests include Southern women writers and a sense of place. A history major, Greenlee graduated from Tarleton State University and earned the master's degree from TCU. Her master's thesis dealt with the Texas Public Utility Commission, and her doctoral dissertation will be on Dolley Madison.

PHYSICS INSTRUCTION FOCUS OF MEETING

Some 350 researchers, teachers and students from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana attended the joint spring meeting of the Texas sections of the American Physical Society, the American Association of Physics Teachers and the Society of Physics Students here Friday and Saturday.

Participants heard papers on topics as diverse as materials science, super-collider and atomic physics and molecular spectroscopy and attended 11 workshops designed to improve physics instruction. In "Amusement Park Physics," 100 teachers learned to demonstrate such principles of mechanics as free fall, speed, acceleration and gravity at Six Flags Over Texas amusement park. Other workshops covered topics ranging from using computers in the laboratory to teaching atomic physics in the high school.

TOMORROW'S AUCTION IS BOOK BARGAIN

Keith Odom of English, who turns auctioneer each year during Fort Worth's Book Fair, passes the word that some good buys will be on tap tomorrow (Wednesday) at the 7 p.m. auction in the small exhibits building behind the Will Rogers complex.

Among 140 donated books that Keith selected for the auction are a first edition, first issue of the first volume of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" as well as a first edition of Booth Tarkington's "Alice Adams." There also is some really good Texana, Keith said. The annual Book Fair, sponsored by the Fort Worth chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women, opened last weekend and will continue through Thursday.

FESTIVAL EXPLORES MAYAN MYTHS, MYSTERIES

Mayan society lasted six times longer than the Roman Empire and flowered while Europe languished. Today scholars and adventurers explore its enigmas; modern Mayans fight to retain their identity. Mysteries and myths of the 3,000-year-old civilization will be examined here Friday through March 15 during the third Festival of Yucatecan and Mayan Culture.

Scholars, artists and educators will come from Mexico for lectures, exhibitions and performances during this weeklong observance which will open with a fiesta and reception at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the library reading room.

A performance by the five-member Tempo Musical Ensemble will be punctuated by Mayan drums and percussion instruments made of tortoise shell. Caribbean, South American, Mayan and Yucatecan music will be played by the versatile group beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Student Center ballroom.

Having explored ancient ceremonial sites, ruins and dwellings in the jungles of the Yucatan on foot and horseback, journalist Luis Ramirez Aznar will draw upon his experiences for the initial lecture and slide presentation, "In Search of the Mayan Cities," at 7 p.m. March 13 in the ballroom. Aznar is editor of Novedades de Yucatan, the most respected daily newspaper of the region.

Birth, baptism and death rituals of the Mayan female's life cycle will be traced by Adda May Montejo in the next lecture and slide show. "The Mayan Woman Today" will begin at 3:30 p.m. March 14 in Moudy Building 1417. Montejo is a prominent bilingual/bicultural educator and rural community leader who resides in Mama, an ancient Yucatecan settlement.

Astronomical phenomena will be explained by Carlos Villanueva Castillo in a lecture and slide presentation March 15. "The Mayan Equinox: Solar Magic and Agriculture" is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. The anthropologist, journalist, historian and author directs Merida's Center for Mayan Area Studies.

Throughout March, works of sculptor Juan Hernandez Flores reflecting day-to-day experiences of the Maya will be exhibited in the library reading room. Also on display in the library will be Luz del Mayab photography collective's exhibit on life in the Mayan lands. The group, led by master photographer Humberto Suaste, will bring works selected from the portfolios of approximately 20 of its members.

BE A LIFE SAVER

The Carter Blood Center and TCU's Residence Hall Association encourage faculty and students to "Be A Life Saver" by donating blood in this semester's blood drive. The drive, which began yesterday (Monday), will be held from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Thursday in the Student Center lounge. This semester's goal is 500 pints, and donors have the opportunity to win door prizes provided by local merchants.

POST OFFICE EXPLAINS SCHEDULE

Charlotte Dubra, TCU Post Office manager, said responses to the recent post office survey included a number of requests for information on hours of operation, mail delivery schedules and procedures for interoffice mail.

She explained that the post office, which processes all incoming and outgoing personal mail, maintains window service from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Departmental mail is processed by Printing & Mailing.

The U.S. Postal Service delivers mail to campus at 5:50 a.m. and 8:40 a.m. daily and picks up mail at 8:40 a.m., 2:45 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. daily. Departmental outgoing mail must be in Printing & Mailing by 3 p.m., overnight mail by 4 p.m., Charlotte said.

Interoffice mail, considered top priority, is processed continuously. Interoffice mail delivered to the post office by 3:30 p.m. will be placed in mail boxes the same day, she said, but departments are encouraged to mail interoffice letters as early in the day as possible. Anyone with special concerns or problems should contact Charlotte at Ext. 7841.

TENNIS EVENTS SET FOR FACULTY, STAFF

A half dozen spring events are scheduled for tennis-playing faculty and staff members. First of the sessions, designed for mixed doubles, was held Sunday at the Mary Potishman Lard Tennis Center.

Throughout the spring series, players will be separated by levels in all events. Participants, who will change partners occasionally, will keep individual score cards, according to Director "Tut" Bartzen. Interested persons can register for any or all sessions.

Next on the schedule are men's and women's doubles March 18. A special event, a faculty/student play day, is planned April 1. Other events will be senior men's and women's doubles April 18, mixed doubles May 6 and men's and women's doubles May 20. Starting time is 3 p.m. for each date.

Registration deadline will be 6 p.m. on the Friday before each event, and reservations can be made by calling the tennis office at Ext. 7960. Additional information is available from assistant pros Karl Richter and Frank Grannis, who will be assisting with the series. Cost will be court fee plus 50 cents.

PHONE DATA BASE NEEDS CHANGES

Business Services needs everyone's help in maintaining accurate information in the campus telephone system's names data base. Please notify Darlene Housewright at Ext. 7798 of any personnel changes which should be reflected in the extension number/personnel inventory.

RENOWNED NYU SCHOLAR TO BE GUEST

Dr. Stephen J. Brown, internationally known scholar who is Yamaichi Faculty Fellow and professor of finance in New York University's Leonard N. Stern School of Business, will be a guest on campus Sunday through March 17. As a Visiting Green Professor, he will be hosted by the finance/decision science department.

Editor of the Review of Financial Studies, published by Oxford University Press, he will discuss "Analysis of the Japanese Equity Markets" at the March 13 executive breakfast, a by-invitation event designed for Fort Worth area business leaders and supported by AT&T. His presentation will be taped for playback via TAGER-TV.

In addition to speaking to several classes, Brown will serve as a faculty development resource during his visit, according to Chris Barry, Lowdon Professor of Finance.

Brown, in his current position at NYU since 1988, has been visiting professor at the Stockholm School of Economics, Visiting Bank of Montreal Chair at Queens University and visiting associate professor at Yale University's School of Organization and Management. In addition to his teaching and research, he has been a consultant on investment issues both in this country and Japan and has served as an expert witness for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Vice president of the Western Finance Association and currently a director of the American Finance Association, he is author of numerous articles published in leading professional journals. His books include "Estimation Risk and Optimal Portfolio Choice;" "The Theory of Public Utility Pricing," published by Cambridge University Press; and "Quantitative Methods for Financial Analysis," now in a second edition.

Brown, an honor graduate of Australia's Monash University, earned Master of Business Administration and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago. Following an appointment to the technical staff at Bell Laboratories, he was a member of the Yale faculty for two years before going to NYU.

BRAY-HEDGES TO PLAY MONDAY

"Le Carnaval des Animaux," Saint-Saens' "zoological fantasy," will be presented at the conclusion of a TCU Music Series two-piano recital Monday by Shields-Collins Bray and Leanne Hedges. The program will begin at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Leanne is a part-time faculty member and director of the music preparatory program. Shields-Collins, a graduate of Arizona State University, recently earned the Master of Music degree in piano performance here. The two will be assisted on "Le Carnaval des Animaux" by Judith Gans, narrator, and flutist Cynthia Folio and cellist Harriet Risk Woldt. The recital program also will include Six Pieces for Piano Duet by Rachmaninoff and Lutoslawski's Variations on a Theme by Paganini.

FIVE RECEIVE GREEN AWARDS

Five doctoral students have been awarded 1989-90 Ida M. Green Doctoral Fellowships. Established in 1988 by Dr. Cecil H. Green of Dallas, the fellowships are 12-month appointments which provide full tuition and stipends to first-year students in each of TCU's doctoral programs.

Awardees include three Metroplex area residents--Robin Chandler of Euless, a chemistry major and summa cum laude graduate of Northwest Nazarene College; TCU summa cum laude graduate Michael Patterson of Grand Prairie, psychology; and Donna Hodge of Plano, a history major and honor graduate of Austin College. Others are Brian Hopkins of Omaha, NE, physics major and magna cum laude graduate of University of Nebraska-Omaha, and Paul Heilker of Fort Collins, CO, who holds English degrees from State University of New York at Stony Brook and from Colorado State University.

BOOK NAMED BEST JUVENILE NOVEL

"Letters to Oma, A Young German Girl's Account of Her First Year in Texas, 1847" by Marj Gurasich, a Chaparral Book from TCU Press, has won a Western Heritage Award from the National Cowboy Hall of Fame as the best juvenile novel of 1989.

The Wrangler Award--a bronze statuette of a wrangler--will be presented to TCU Press and to Gurasich at the 25th anniversary awards dinner March 17 in Oklahoma City. The ceremonies will be broadcast live by the local ABC affiliate, KOCO-TV, with Glen Campbell as master of ceremonies. An autograph party for the winners will precede the banquet.

"Letters to Oma" is the second Chaparral Book to win this coveted award in young adult fiction competition. Last year's winner was also a TCU Press title, "Stay Put, Robbie McAmis" by Francis W. Tunbo.

Chaparral Books also have won awards from the Texas Institute of Letters and Western Writers of America in recent years, and a Chaparral Book, "Muddy Banks" by Ruby C. Tolliver, was chosen for the 1990 Bluebonnet List.

'SWC COUNTDOWN '90' TO BE THURSDAY

TCU alumni and friends will meet in Dallas Thursday for a reception and buffet as a sendoff for the Horned Frogs' participation in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Classic. Moe Iba, completing his third season as TCU's head basketball coach, will be featured guest for "SWC Countdown '90," sponsored by the TCU Alumni Association.

The reception will begin at 6 p.m. at the Hard Rock Cafe, 2601 McKinney Ave. in Dallas. Due by today (Tuesday), the $7-per-person reservations can be made by check, payable to TCU, in the alumni office.

COSTUME DESIGNER IS GREEN PROF

Douglas A. Russell, a Stanford University professor of design and art history who also has worked as a professional costume designer for 41 years, will be on campus Monday through March 16 as Visiting Green Professor in theatre. A costume designer for productions ranging from "Henry VIII" to "Hello Dolly," Russell will present a public lecture on "Theatrical Style: A Visual Approach Through the Fine Arts" at 7 p.m. Monday in Moudy Building 141N. A reception will follow.

Other sessions open to interested students, faculty and staff members include an introduction to Russell and his work in the Bass Building living room at 9 a.m. Monday; a lecture on "Period Styles in Costume: What It Means for the Actor," Ed Landreth Hall B-6, 10 a.m. March 13; "Shakespeare: Style & Design" slide/lecture, Moudy Building 155S, 3-4:30 p.m. March 13; and "Moliere: Styles & Design" lecture, Ed Landreth music reception room, 3 p.m. March 14.

Holder of both bachelor's and master's degrees from Stanford as well as the Master of Fine Arts in costume design from Yale University, Russell also has taught at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Florida State University, University of Kansas City and has been visiting professor in art and theatre history for Stanford studies in Austria, France and Great Britain.

He has held a Fulbright Scholarship to study at the Shakespeare Institute at Stratford-on-Avon, and his costume design assignments lean heavily toward the Shakespearean. Russell was longtime director of costume for the Oregon Shakespeare Festival and has held similar positions with the Victoria (British Columbia) Renaissance Festival, Berkeley Shakespeare Festival, Old Globe Theatre in San Diego and Missouri Repertory Theatre in Kansas City.

ACTIVIST TO DISCUSS SOCIAL ISSUES

Nancy Amidei, social activist, columnist and commentator for National Public Radio's "All Things Considered," will speak on "The Decency Principles: Hunger, Poverty and Housing in America" at 7 p.m. March 14 in Student Center 205. A reception in Room 207 sponsored by Alpha Delta Mu and the Social Work Association will follow the lecture.

Amidei, well known for her commentary on social issues, regularly testifies before Congress and is a frequent source for print and electronic media on the subjects of poverty, hunger and nutrition. The TCU Research Fund Lectureship program will include discussion of legislative action and coalition-building as well as instruction in action-taking and policy analysis.

A member of the faculty of the graduate school of social work at Catholic University of America, Amidei serves on the Food and Agricultural Study Project of the Center for National Policy, the advisory committee for Project VOTE and the National Anti-Hunger Coalition. Among her publications are "Protest, Politics and Prosperity," "Black Americans and White Institutions," "Food -- The Effects of Food Stamps," "Give Away Is Not Enough" and "Beyond the Soup Kitchen."

ROSS PEROT JR. TO BE BUSINESS SPEAKER

Ross Perot Jr. is featured speaker for this spring's Business Week, which began yesterday (Monday). His presentation will begin at 4 p.m. Thursday in Dan Rogers 104. Sponsored annually by the business fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi, the observance helps put students in touch with business leaders and career information.

Today's (Tuesday's) activity features a tour of American Airline's pilot training facilities. Interested people are requested to meet at 3:30 p.m. in Dan Rogers 140. Tomorrow's (Wednesday's) event is a career fair in the Tandy Hall atrium. Approximately 50 recruiters are expected to be present.

"Business Week is targeted primarily at business students," said Delta Sigma Pi president Ralph Manning. "However, all students are welcome to attend the activities."

CHAPARRAL CEO SPEAKING TODAY

Dr. Gordon E. Forward, president and chief executive officer of Chaparral Steel, is scheduled to speak today (Tuesday) to students in the Neeley School of Business. He is participating in TCU's executive-in-residence program, which allows students to interact with current business leaders. The program is made possible by a grant from the David L. Tandy Foundation.

Forward earned a doctorate in metallurgy from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of British Columbia in Vancouver. He also has conducted award-winning research, including basic scientific investigation related to the solidification of steel.

Author Tom Peters selected Forward as the 1987 chief executive officer of the year. Fortune magazine chose the CEO's Midlothian company in 1984 as one of the 10 best-managed manufacturing companies in the United States. Additional information is available from Linda Roye, Ext. 7119.

SCHOLARSHIP AVAILABLE FOR DC SEMINAR

The political science department has a program and housing scholarship available for a student interested in attending the Washington Center's two-week seminar in August on "The Global Village: The United States in the International Community."

Students interested in applying for the scholarship must have at least a 3.3 GPA and currently be freshmen, sophomores or juniors status. To apply, they should obtain an application form in the political science department. Selection of the recipient will be based on merit and the 75-word essay that accompanies the application. Deadline for applying is March 23.

PSYCHOLOGIST TO DISCUSS SEX DIFFERENCES

"Sex Differences in Social Behavior" will be the topic of a TCU Research Fund lecture by Dr. Alice H. Eagly, professor of psychology at Purdue University. The program will begin at 4 p.m. Thursday in Moudy Building 141N.

Author of two books, "Readings in Attitude Change" and "Sex Differences in Social Behavior: A Social Role Interpretation," and some 40 articles, Eagly is a member of the editorial boards of several psychological journals. The former president of the Society for Personality and Psychology won the Distinguished Publication Award of the Association of Women in Psychology and the Gordon Allport Intergroup Relations Prize of the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues.

TUCKER SPEAKS IN HOUSTON

Chancellor Bill Tucker was the speaker last night (Monday) for an event for Houston-area alumni and friends. The reception dinner event, held at the Junior League Building, was coordinated by Randy and Jo Faith Hutton Howard, who co-chair the TCU Houston Alumni Association.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Insights about his native Philippines, including problems facing that nation, were shared by CONSTANTINO BERNARDEZ (radio-TV-film) Feb. 20 with the Tuesday Together session of Methodist church women in Dallas.

JULIA CAMPBELL, a registered dietitian licensed in Texas, is now on the Marriott staff. She will be available for counseling with students, free of charge, about good nutrition, weight loss or gain, cholesterol, special diets or any nutritional questions students may have. Students may call Ext. 3048 for appointments.

His key role in TCU's 81-79 victory over the Arkansas Razorbacks garnered Southwest Conference Player of the Week honors recently for MICHAEL STRICKLAND. The sophomore from Chattanooga, TN, scored 27 points, all from the three-point range, to tie the SWC single-game record. For that week, he was 13-of-24 from the field and 11-of-21 from beyond the three-point line in two games.

JOHN TOULIATOS (family studies) has been informed that his latest book, "Handbook of Family Measurement Techniques," has been adopted as a main selection by the Behavioral Science Book Service. Approximately 10,000 copies of the reference book will be printed for members of the book service, including social/behavioral science researchers and mental health professionals.

RALPH BEHNKE (speech communications) and former speech professor KARL KRAYER have been informed that their paper, "Intelligence and Social Maturity as Predictors of Reading Achievement in Children," has been accepted for publication in the Mensa Research Journal.

ART BERLINER (social work emeritus) delivered the keynote address at a workshop on Situational Ethics sponsored by the Graduate School of Social Work of the University of Texas in Austin. About 100 social workers and other health care professionals from throughout the state attended the all-day conference Feb. 16.

Greek life coordinator for Student Activities since late 1988, FELIX MIRA joined the admissions staff Jan. 2 as assistant director/coordinator of publications. The New York native, graduate of Fredonia State University, served as assistant director and editor for Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity's national headquarters in 1987-88.

LEANNE HEDGES (music) judged the Keynote Music Young Artist Scholarship auditions Feb. 17-18 in Tulsa. On that same weekend, three of Leanne's students received top awards at the University of Texas at Arlington Piano Solo Festival. On Feb. 24 she chaired the Fort Worth Music Teachers Association's student affiliate performance contests. Three of her students were chosen to represent Fort Worth at the district contest March 17.

Sympathy is extended to HELEN EATON, longtime secretary to former Vice Chancellor Howard Wible, on the death of her husband, James. Funeral services were conducted Feb. 23.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

"Educating Future Communicators" was the theme Feb. 28 of the program for the Dallas chapter of Women in Communication Inc. DOUG NEWSOM (journalism) was one of four educators featured on a panel.

LINDA HUGHES (English) and Michael Lund of Longwood College have been notified that their book manuscript, "The Victorian Serial," has been accepted for publication by University Press of Virginia.

HANK HAMMACK (theatre) is the star of Circle Theatre's March 7-31 production of "A Month of Sundays" by Bob Larbey, winner of the London Standard Award for the best comedy of 1986. Hank plays Cooper, a crotchety old baseball fan forced to deal with the difficulties of growing old in a nursing home.

CHRISTINA MURPHY (Writing Center) presented a paper entitled "Narrative Paradigms and the Structure of Postmodern Discourse" for the Midwest Women's Studies Conference meeting recently at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Alumnus TOM SIEGFRIED of the Dallas Morning News recently received the American Association for the Advancement of Science-Westinghouse Science Journalism Award for his series entitled "Frontiers of Addiction," which appeared in the Dallas paper last April.

Among those attending that AAAS meeting in New Orleans was chemist MANNY REINECKE, who attended a symposium on medicinal herbs from Latin America.

Manny also recently attended the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Advisors to the Health Professions, on whose executive committee he presently serves. In addition to moderating a panel presentation by 11 health profession admission officers, he was appointed to a committee to establish the criteria and procedures for a new $2,000 scholarship to be offered by the association.

PENSION FUND SESSIONS ARE MARCH 15

A representative of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church will be on campus for personal conferences with faculty and staff members March 15. This affords opportunity for many to obtain current information about the Pension Fund, taxes, social security, etc.

Personal conferences will be held in the Student Center, Room 204, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. All interested employees may schedule an appointment by calling benefits at Ext. 7792.

TCU IN THE NEWS

As the Communist Party agreed to surrender its monopoly on power in the Soviet Union Feb. 7, phones began to ring for RALPH CARTER (political science). He did a live interview with Channel 5 on the noon news that day and a taped interview with Channel 4 the next morning.

ELLEN PAGE GARRISON (modern dance) was quoted in the Star-Telegram's Dec. 29 issue of Star Time about the "Construction Collage" of dancers and welders she choreographed and coordinated for the New Year's Eve celebration First Night. A color photo of the collage appeared on the Star-Telegram's front page Jan. 1 under the headline "A big bye-bye to '80s." An article by Connie Benesch the next day cited "Construction Collage" as being "among the most popular events" of First Night.

Ellen enlisted faculty, graduate students, undergraduates and alumnae to climb the 30-foot scaffolding and dance in "Construction Collage." Taking part in the five performances were MARIANNE ALLEN, LINNA PAGE, MARY HILL, LYNETTE BREWER and DELLA SPARKS PERKINS. The piece was commissioned by the Arts Council of Fort Worth and Tarrant County and was the brainchild of its interim director Sharon Benge, who commissioned Cincinnati-based composer Tom Jordan to write the score.

"Presidents sometimes take risks" was the title of an article by historian PAUL BOLLER (retired) that appeared on the Viewpoints page of The Dallas Morning News Feb. 11. In it he noted concerns about President Bush's trip to Colombia and recounted incidents of former presidents who "put themselves in harm's way."

On Presidents' Day Paul did a telephone interview for the Jack Ellery Show on WCTC in New Brunswick, NJ. The program aired in the New Jersey/New York area during the morning and on a nationwide broadcast that evening.

Too-low stock price makes a company vulnerable for corporate raiders, according to comments by STAN BLOCK (finance) that appeared in Tarrant Business' Feb. 12 feature on "Market maze."

In its Feb. 13 Valentine story entitled "Is this really love or a reasonable facsimile?," the Star-Telegram quoted Counseling Center Director JACK SCOTT as saying, "Attraction at first sight is possible, but love at first sight is impossible....Love has to be an active process of developing and growing."

"Slaves to Pain" was the lead feature for the Star-Telegram Circa '90 section Feb. 18. Dealing with persons who suffer chronic pain, the lengthy article included information on tension, stress and depression as well as frustration, anger and guilt as reactions of pain sufferers from GAIL DAVIS (Harris College), who has done extensive research on chronic pain experience. She recommended taking part in a support group based on results of participants.

Political scientist GENE ALPERT was interviewed on KXAS-TV regarding the impression gubernatorial candidates make via television appearances and its importance in actual voting. The interview aired Feb. 20-21.

MORE TCU IN THE NEWS

Chemist JIM KELLY and nutritionist NELL ROBINSON recently were interviewed on separate occasions by LTN Evening News. The Fort Worth-based station serves a religious network of some 22,000,000 viewers.

TCU is not considering any kind of law program, according to a statement by Dean MIKE MCCRACKEN (AddRan College) quoted Feb. 26 in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The story centered on the newly opened Dallas/Fort Worth School of Law, the only part-time evening program in the Metroplex. Mike noted that a law program had been considered, "but not seriously" because "there are several very good law schools in the state of Texas."

Economics of the '90s was the topic of economist CHARLES BECKER in an interview with KXAS-TV that aired Feb. 22 and 23.

'HABITAT' NEEDS TOOLS

Members of TCU's active new chapter of Habitat for Humanity are hard at work on building-repair projects, but they could work even harder if they had more tools.

University Ministries intern Bruce Fowlkes is appealing for gardening, plumbing, carpentry or wrecking tools that TCU faculty and staff members may no longer need. They may be delivered to University Ministries or will be picked up by Habitat members at your home or office if you notify them at Ext. 7830.
