DANCE CONCERT RUNS THE GAMUT

The diversity of dance will be celebrated on campus Friday through Sunday.

Classical ballet dancers will pay tribute to this season of liberation in Eastern Europe. Others will whirl in groups of colors that mix at last in a performance inspired by Van Gogh's "Starry Night" painting.

David Hochoy, longtime leading dancer with the Martha Graham Company, will play "Everyman" in a dance about women and relationships. And modern dancers will capture the fun of Texas' identifiable vocabulary as the Department of Ballet and Modern Dance presents its spring concert at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Admission is free with TCU ID, $5 for all others.

An abstract memorial to the falling of the Berlin Wall and the subsequent freedom of Hungarians, East Germans, Czechs, Poles and others was choreographed by Stephanie Woods to music by German-born Richard Wagner. Sixteen dancers will share the stage in a presentation inspired by dance critic Jack Anderson's description of choreography with no narrative. "When dancers are on stage, they may seem images of harmony. But when patterns are shattered and groupings are splintered, these descriptions may be likened to social or psychological disturbances."

David, newest member of TCU's dance faculty, choreographed "Starry Night" to music by Philip Glass. Inspired by swirls in the Van Gogh masterpiece, he created costumes in five colors for 23 dancers in the work's first movement. The second movement features four duets based on night relationships. Three soloists — Heather Coder and Ri Warren of Southwest Fort Worth and Carrie Hanson of Des Moines, IA — will perform as shooting stars in the concluding movement.

Pianist Ruben Torres, founder/director of Fort Worth's Amistad Latin American music group, and violinist Rebecca Rathbun will play Guarneri's Sonata No. 4 accompanying a dance choreographed by Ellen Page Garrison. Just as Hochoy is "Everyman," so are the nine women dancers "Everywomen," performing Ellen's three-movement work in a spirit of group relationships rather than one-on-one alliances.

"Whatever Blows Your Skirt Up," danced to a new score composed by dance accompanist Ken Wilemon, has been choreographed by Susan Douglas Roberts as a play on words and phrases uniquely Texan. Ten dancers will strive to capture a bit of the absurdity inherent in Texas words and phrases, absurdity that shows up especially when those distinctive words and phrases are taken out of context.

MORTAR BOARD SELECTS 35 NEW MEMBERS

Thirty-five students have been selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership and contribution to the community to become members of the senior honor society of Mortar Board. They include Brett Ballantini, Susan Besze, Julie Bettinger, Andy Black, Stephanie Boade, Chris Boggs, Deena Brodsgaard, Bryan Cannon, Karen Casper, Mary Cloninger and Jefferson Davis.

Also selected were Jennifer Dolt, Debbie Duffy, Elizabeth Fleming, Matt Hood, Thomas Ivester, Lisa Johns, Darek Lester, Barbara Leu and Keith Louden. Additional new members are Jacquie Maupin, Wade Miller, Keith Oglesby, Paula Price, Margaret Roelands, Michele Satterelli and Amy Stevens. Others chosen are Alicia Thompson, Douglas Thompson, Gary Tomlin, Janet Trepka, Matthew Vossler, Laura White, Laura Whitworth and Bruce Wirin.

BARR RECEIVES ACPA AWARD

The American College Personnel Association presented its Contribution to Knowledge Award to Vice Chancellor Peggy Barr Sunday during opening activities of the ACPA annual convention in St. Louis. Given to one person each year, the honor recognizes contributions to professional literature.

In 1986 Dr. Barr received ACPA's professional service award. She is the first individual in the association's 75-year history to receive these two honors. She is one of three recipients of both the Contribution to Knowledge Award from ACPA and the Contribution to Literature and Research from the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, which she was presented in 1986.

During today's session of the ACPA conference, Dr. Barr is giving one of the keynote speeches. Her topic is "Ethics, Integrity and Practice: Dealing with the Out-of-Class Behavior of Students."

ANDRADE ONE OF 30 CHOSEN FOR INSTITUTE

Luis Andrade, senior marketing major from Fort Worth, is one of 30 students from across the country chosen to participate in the GMAC-AACSB Minority Summer Institute at the University of Michigan. More than 360 students applied.

The GMAC-AACSB Summer Institute is intended to increase the number of minority students pursuing careers as business school faculty. The six-week program includes classes to introduce students to the quantitative and analytical methods of business study and seminars about doctoral study and academic careers in management education.

As an institute participant, Luis will receive a $2,500 stipend in addition to tuition, books and travel. He will earn six hours of academic credit from the University of Michigan. A graduate of Fort Worth's Trinity Valley School, he attended Texas A&M his freshman year before transferring to TCU.

SATURDAY'S ALUMNI EVENT WILL HONOR NINE

Distinguished professional careers, notable civic leadership and service to TCU will be recognized publicly Saturday when nine persons are honored at the 15th annual alumni awards dinner. Honorees are Dr. M. J. Neeley, Mrs. Jean Jones Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. "Tex" Moncrief Jr., all of Fort Worth; Dr. Joel Moake and John Don Looney of Houston; Dr. Harold D. Herndon of San Antonio; Kristin Chambers of St. Louis, MO; and L. Brent Watson of Midland.

The black-tie event will be held at the Worthington Hotel, beginning with a 7:15 p.m. reception. Following the 8 p.m. dinner, Chancellor Bill Tucker will make the presentations. Master of ceremonies will be George M. Bradford of Hurst, alumni association president-elect. Awards to outgoing association board members will be presented by DeVonna Tinney, alumni executive director.

To receive the 1990 Founders Award in recognition of his interest in the University, Dr. Neeley was cited as a "modest and unselfish partner in the welfare of the City of Fort Worth" when TCU conferred the honorary Doctor of Laws degree upon him in 1967. The Texas A&M University graduate is president of M. J. Neeley and Company Inc. In 1967 the School of Business was named for Dr. Neeley, a member of the TCU board of trustees since 1947, its chairman in 1969-72 and an honorary member since 1975. The business school includes an M. J. Neeley Professorship of Marketing, a Research Professorship of Management and Organization Behavior and a communication center he has funded. He and his late wife, Dr. Alice S. Neeley, helped fund establishment of Starpoint School, its specially designed facilities and scholarships for its students.

Mrs. Tucker, a 1956 graduate, will receive the valuable alumna award for outstanding and continuing service to TCU and its alumni association. Known for her religious and civic activities, she is former president of Christian Women's Fellowship and representative to Church Women United and a University Christian Church elder and executive committee member. Formerly vice president of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Texas and Tarrant Area Community of Churches, she is on the boards of Schola Cantorum, Scott Theatre and Community Outreach Center. Mrs. Tucker, wife of the chancellor, was a member of a three-person commission reviewing hospitals and schools related to the Disciples of Christ in Zaire, Africa, in 1980. In 1983, she served on a five-person commission studying ecumenical work in Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Royal Purple Award in recognition of extraordinary service and support of TCU will be presented to the Moncriefs. A 1942 graduate of the University of Texas at Austin honored in 1983 as its distinguished engineering graduate, Moncrief has been on the University of Texas System Board of Regents since 1987 and formerly served on the board of visitors of the University Cancer Foundation. He heads Moncrief oil interests. The former Deborah Beggs, Mrs. Moncrief is a graduate of Pine Manor College. She is a life member of the Friends of the TCU Library and recently donated a reproduction of "The Book of Kells" to the library. In 1981 she made a gift of the first edition of "An Incunabulum of the Exploration of Space" by Johannes Kepler, published in 1610.

The Moncriefs, along with his parents, were major benefactors for TCU's Moncrief Hall. In addition to providing a permanent fund for intercollegiate athletics at the University, they also endowed the W.A. Moncrief Jr. Chair of Physics and the Charles B. Moncrief Chair of Geology.

Named distinguished alumnus, Dr. Moake is professor of medicine and director of the medical hematology section of Baylor College of Medicine and Methodist Hospital in Houston. A Class of 1962 member, he holds B.A. and medical degrees from Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Dr. Moake has received numerous research grants from the National Institutes of Health, American Heart Association, Veterans Administration and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. In 1980 he was honored as the Eleanor Roosevelt International Cancer Fellow by the American Cancer Society and was named a Senior International Fellow of National Institutes of Health.

The Frog o' Fame honor for sports accomplishments will be presented to Looney, a National Football League official for 14 years. Co-captain and captain, respectively, of TCU's 1939 and 1940 football teams, he was selected all-Southwest Conference end in 1938 and 1939. The latter year he was SWC leading pass receiver with 30 receptions for an average gain of 13.8 yards per reception. Looney played professionally with the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Philadelphia Eagles in 1940-42. The former Fort Worth resident was chosen as an All-Pro Player in the Pro All-Star Game of 1940. He is a member of the TCU Lettermen Hall of Fame.

An independent oil operator, Herndon will receive the honorary alumnus award. The University of Kansas graduate was named to TCU's board of trustees in 1957 and since 1974 has been an honorary member. Given the honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1980 by TCU, Dr. Herndon served six years on the Coordinating Board of Texas Colleges and Universities. He is a member of the advisory council to the executive board of The Boy Scouts of America, which has given him its Silver Beaver and Silver Antelope awards.

Chambers, who will graduate in May, earned the Distinguished Student Award based on both academic accomplishments and service to the University. Former president of the House of Student Representatives, she is active in University Council, Accounting Club, Chi Omega sorority and trustee-student relations committee. Chambers is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Recipient of the president's service award, Watson owns Watson and Cox Oil and Gas. Former president of the TCU Permian Basin Association, he has chaired the Permian Basin Annual Fund for TCU campaign and was alumni association vice president for annual giving in 1986-88. Watson, member of the Class of 1959, earned the master's degree here in 1961.

Five persons will receive service awards as alumni association officers and directors. They are Ronald Clinkscale and Mary Mac Shelton Elliott of Fort Worth, Robert Johnson of Houston, Dr. Ted Sisco of Lubbock and Robert Taylor of Plano. Reservations for Saturday's event, at $40 per person, are due by tomorrow (Wednesday) to the alumni office, Box 32921, Fort Worth 76129.

NURSING CONSULTANT TO BE GREEN PROFESSOR

Em Olivia Bevis, internationally known consultant in nursing education, will be a Visiting Green Professor April 7-12 as guest of Harris College of Nursing. In addition to speaking to classes and meeting with both students and faculty members during her campus visit, she will give a public presentation Monday. "The Phenomenon of Caring" will be her topic for the event, beginning at 6 p.m. in the living room of the Bass Building.

Bevis, professor and head of the Department of Nursing at Georgia Southern College in 1979-85, has conducted workshops and served as consultant to several hundred schools of nursing during the last 20 years. Her international projects took place in China, Japan, Canada, Israel and New Zealand in addition to her leadership in Lebanon with 25 Middle East nations in an effort sponsored by UNICEF, the American University of Beirut and others. She also has been associated with the nurses and medical administrators of the American Uniformed Services and United States Army as well as schools of nursing and hospitals.

A fellow of the American Academy of Nursing, Bevis has been a featured participant in nursing programs in Nova Scotia, Israel, Korea, Gaza and throughout the United States. She was the principle investigator for a Kellogg Foundation-funded project for community health care of chronically ill children at Tel-Aviv University, where she was a visiting professor in 1986.

Bevis, who earned the B.S. in Nursing degree at Emory University, completed the master's in nursing education at the University of Chicago and recently completed the Ph.D. degree at the University of Georgia. Her academic career includes 12 years on the nursing faculty at San Jose State University after association with the University of Carolina's School of Nursing.

Author of more than 12 works published in leading journals and textbooks, Bevis has focused much of her attention on clinical teaching and evaluation, curriculum development, administration/management and nursing educational evaluation. Some of her works have been translated and published in Japanese. She was honored for improvement of health care to Georgians by the Georgia League for Nursing.

ALL-STAR EVENT WILL HONOR ATHLETES

Major athletic awards in all sports will be presented at an all-star banquet May 1. Alumni, parents of students, friends of the University along with students, faculty and staff members are invited to join masters of ceremonies Bill Coates and Steve Lamb of WBAP Radio, "the voice of the Frogs," in the toast to this year's exceptional Horned Frog athletes.

To be held in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum, the 6 p.m. awards presentation will be followed by a barbeque dinner at 6:45 p.m. TCU's band and cheerleaders will add to the evening's entertainment. Sponsored by Coca Cola, Dr Pepper and American Airlines, door prizes will feature two round-trip airline tickets within the continental United States. Tickets, priced at $5 each, go on sale April 9 in the athletic ticket office in the coliseum.

FACULTY/STAFF CAMPAIGN ENDS FRIDAY

There is still time to make a gift or pledge to the annual Faculty/Staff Campaign in support of the TCU Annual Fund. The drive, to continue through Friday, is headed by Ron Flowers of religion-studies for the faculty division and Don Mills, associate vice chancellor for student affairs, staff division.

"Faculty accepted the opportunity to give when they entered the profession," Ron pointed out. "Financial support of the institution is simply an extension of the altruism to which teachers have already committed themselves."

"There is no better way to demonstrate our commitment to TCU students, to TCU and to the important work being done here," Don said, "than to support TCU financially in addition to our commitments of time, energy and abilities."

As detailed in the mailing sent earlier to faculty and University staff members, gifts or pledges may be made by cash, check or payroll deduction. With a $3 million goal, the Annual Fund bridges the gap between tuition, endowment and auxiliary income and the total budget, said Bettye Boisselier of development. All University departments' budgets are affected by the Annual Fund.

MLADENKA TO STUDY CZECH SCHOOLS

Al Mladenka, director of international student affairs, is one of six educators chosen by Projects for Educational Research to visit Eastern European countries in 1991 to report on their educational systems. PIER is a joint committee of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers and the National Association of Foreign Student Affairs.

Al and two other educators will visit Czechoslovakia, while three more will visit Poland. When they return, they will prepare a report and will make presentations at professional meetings and share workshop findings with colleagues.

SATIRE, SONG HIGHLIGHT TGIF SHOW

Imagine a rock concert scaled down to fit the Student Center lounge with comedy and classic hits, too. That's what Carl Rosen is promising for his TGIF performance at 11:30 a.m. Friday. Between playing the keyboard and singing in a voice "reminiscent of Billy Joel," Rosen will satirize targets ranging from TV sitcoms to sporting events.

JUST A REMINDER...

...that the Kodak "Techniques of the Masters" Videoconference will be received in the TAGER TV/Telecommunications Studio on Thursday from noon to 2 p.m. For information, call Ext. 7632.

TI COMPUTER FELLOW TO BE GUEST

Natural language processing and revolutionary changes in technology in the 1990s will be discussed in public presentations by Dr. Harry Tennant of Texas Instruments next week while he is a Visiting Green Professor. A fellow in the TI Computer Science Center since 1987, he will be a guest of the computer science department April 10-11.

"Menu-Based Natural Language Processing" will be the topic for the April 10 presentation. The Association for Computing Machinery/Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers seminar is scheduled for 7 p.m. For the Sigma Xi lecture at 7:30 p.m. April 11, Tennant will discuss "The Interplay of Emerging Information Technologies." Both public events will be in Lecture Hall 2 of the Sid Richardson Building.

"Knowledge System Applications in the 1990s" will be the topic for Tennant's TAGER-TV lecture, which will be taped so that interested persons can view it later at the TAGER studio.

Tennant, associated with Texas Instruments since 1980 when he joined the technical staff of its central research laboratories, was selected as one of America's 100 outstanding scientists in 1984 by Science Digest magazine. Holder of bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle, he earned the Ph.D. in computer science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

A member of the editorial board for Future Generation Computer Systems, Tennant invented Menu-Based Natural Language Understanding, which has resulted in commercial products and was cited as a key technology for multimillion dollar defense contracts. He was responsible for preparing the content of TI's series of four artificial intelligence satellite symposia and hosted them in addition to hosting satellite conferences on artificial intelligence for IEEE.

As a TI Fellow, Tennant has been involved in corporate long-term strategic planning, helping to determine and to evaluate new research directions. He has presented papers at conferences throughout the United States and is author of studies published in leading journals. His book, "Natural Language Processing/An Introduction to an Emerging Technology," was issued in 1981. Tennant is on the advisory board for AI Expert Magazine and is a member of the steering committee for the TI Tsukuba Research Center.

PERSUASION TO BE DISCUSSION TOPIC

"Persuasion: Business Communication of the 1990s" will be the theme of a panel discussion at 7 p.m. Sunday in Moudy 141N. A reception will follow the event, sponsored by speech communication's business and professional speech class.

Panelists will include Preston Figley, vice president of Witherspoon Advertising/Public Relations; Doug Harmon, chief executive of the Fort Worth Convention and Visitors Bureau; Mike McGinn, U.S. congressman, District 12; Lisa Mullen, assistant district attorney, Tarrant County District Attorney's Office; and Lerii Smith, regional director of the American Heart Association.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

A review by FRED ERISMAN (English) of "Frederic Remington--Selected Letters," a compilation of letters to and from the artist/author, has been published in Western American Literature.

Sympathy is extended to Dean PAT SCEARSE (Harris College of Nursing) and VICK SCEARSE (School of Business) on the death of their husband and father respectively. Retired Air Force Major Vernon Scearse died March 22 in a Fort Worth hospital. A memorial service was held March 27 in Robert Carr Chapel, and burial was March 29 at Arlington National Cemetery. Retired from the AF since 1968 after 18 years' service, the Ohio native was an independent tax consultant and worked with the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. Memorial gifts are being made to Harris College's nursing scholarship fund.

An essay by LINDA HUGHES (English) appears in The Figure of Merlin in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries, published last month by the Edwin Mellen Press. In "Illusion and Relation: Merlin as Image of the Artist in Tennyson, Doré, Burne-Jones, and Beardsley," Linda traces the interrelation between Tennyson's poetic treatment of Merlin and the work of visual artists. The volume is the second in Edwin Mellen's Studies in Comparative Literature series.

For the second year, SUSAN BATCHELOR (Student Activities) will direct the New Professionals Institute for Region III of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators. The institute, limited to 40 new professionals from the region, consists of an intensive week-long seminar with resident faculty. It will be held in late June in Columbia, SC.

The Spring 1990 issue of The Round Table, a publication of the South Central College English Association, has articles by two TCU folks, BOB FRYE, president of the South Central association, and KEITH ODOM, national president of CEA. Bob's essay is entitled "A Brief Report, an Important Request, and an Old Letter: A Kind of Presidential Message," and Keith's essay is "Fantasy Literature, Popular Culture, and the Media."

Ayres and Fancies, the viola da gamba group organized by HARRIET RISK WOLDT and including music librarian SHEILA MADDEN, presented concerts Feb. 25 for the Community Concert Series at Tarleton State College in Stephenville; March 1 at Tarrant County Junior College Northeast campus; March 3 at the University of Missouri at Rolla, where the group also served as faculty for the Ozark Gamba Workshop; and March 31 for the Sigma Alpha Iota scholarship tea.

On March 27 Harriet was featured on the baroque cello at a Brazos Baroque concert in the recital hall at the University of North Texas, and on March 16 she demonstrated the cello and the viola da gamba for the kindergarten at Westcliff Elementary School.

The TCU Wind Ensemble, conducted by BOB BLANTON, took a recruiting concert tour to Houston and San Antonio high schools March 14-16. The ensemble, made up of the 50 top woodwind, brass and percussionists on campus, featured as soloists faculty members STEVE WEGER, trumpet, and GARY WHITMAN, clarinet. NOAH KNEPPER and STEVE MOSER also accompanied the group.

TRUSTEES SELECT ROACH TO HEAD BOARD

Naming a new chairman for the first time in 11 years, TCU's trustees chose John V. Roach, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Tandy Corporation, to preside over the TCU Board of Trustees during the annual spring meeting Friday.

He succeeds Bayard Friedman, who asked not to be re-elected to the chairmanship he has held since 1979. A well-known banker and civic leader, Friedman will remain active on the board of which he's been a member since 1971. Both men are among Fort Worth's most prominent citizens and are TCU alumni. Friedman, a member of the Class of '47, earned his law degree from the University of Texas in 1950. Roach, a member of the Class of '61, received the Master of Business Administration degree from TCU in 1965.

Other actions taken by the trustees include:

-- Elected three new trustees: Clarence Scharbauer III, who heads a Midland cattle company; J. Kelly Cox, a Midland oil and gas producer; and Mrs. Stephen P. (Peggy) Allison of San Antonio, who will serve as an alumni representative. All three are graduates of TCU.

-- Approved an operating budget of almost $93 million for the next fiscal year, with student charges increased about 8 percent. Tuition, fees and campus housing for a typical student in 1990-91 will be $9,200, compared to the current $8,530, with tuition set at $230 a semester hour.

-- Chose to honor K. David Cole, the moderator of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in the United States and Canada, with an honorary doctoral degree.

-- Learned that the Anne Burnett and Charles Tandy Foundation has committed $500,000 to endow the Burnett Ranches Professorship for the Ranch Management Program. The gift brings to $2.6 million the amount pledged or received in the $3,150,000 campaign to assure the future of the unique professional program.

University operating within expectations

The $93 million budget for the year beginning June 1 was approved after the trustees were told that the University is operating within expectations for the current year. The new budget is based on a slightly smaller total enrollment.

"Although we expect an entering freshman class of normal size," said Chancellor Bill Tucker, "we are likely to have a decline in total enrollment because of another unusually large graduating class. That puts pressure on finances. Even so, the new budget has us operating in the black."

Even though student charges will be higher in the new budget, the costs of attending TCU are expected to remain below that of most private universities with which TCU compares. And the amount budgeted for student financial aid next year tops $12 million for the first time, almost $1 million more than in the current year.

Student charges provide between 50 and 55 percent of TCU's income; the remainder comes from endowment, new gifts, grants and contracts. A report showed total gift income is at about the same level as a year ago, though the number of alumni showing support is rising dramatically, with about 2,500 more contributing to the Annual Fund this year.

Budget to fund merit increases

The new budget provides funds for merit-based compensation increases averaging 4 1/2 percent. The budget must also absorb higher costs of worker's compensation, health insurance and Social Security which next year will add more than 2 percent to the compensation base, the board was told.

Cole, who will receive his honorary degree at May commencement exercises, is the first person to be awarded this highest token of a university's esteem by TCU in four years. Pastor of the Swope Parkway United Christian Church in Kansas City, MO, he holds the highest elected position in the denomination to which TCU is related. The Little Rock, AR, native was minister of Kansas City's predominantly black West Paseo Christian Church when its building burned in 1979. He led his congregation in a merger with all-white Swope Park Christian Church, a merger that took place without loss of members for either congregation. He also has had leadership roles in numerous civic, social service and religious organizations.

The three new trustees have shown strong support for TCU. Mrs. Allison, the former Peggy Yochem, is a member of the Class of '69, as is her husband. She has headed the TCU San Antonio Association, is a current and past member of the TCU Alumni Association board and has headed fund-raising campaigns in San Antonio in behalf of TCU.

The two new Midland trustees just missed each other while students on campus. Cox earned his degree in 1977 and is now in the family business with his father, John L. Cox, operating an oil and gas producing firm. Scharbauer earned his degree in 1973, as did his wife, the former Katherine Wallace. His two brothers, Chris and Douglas Scharbauer, are also TCU alumni.

Wehner resignation announced

The board was told of the resignation of William G. Wehner, vice chancellor for development and university relations, effective May 31, and approved recommendations for faculty promotions and tenure:

To the rank of professor: Ray Drenner of biology, Charles Lockhart of political science, Keith Odom of English, Spencer Tucker of history, Jack Jones of management, Cathy Collins of education and Curt Wilson of music.

To associate professor: Charles Bond of psychology, Ralph Carter of political science, Mary Anne Gorman of nutrition and dietetics, Charlene Urwin of social work, Joseph Jeter of Brite Divinity School and Ann Lieberth of communication pathology.

Tenure was granted to Bond, Carter, Gorman, Urwin, Jeter, Lieberth, Dwayne Simpson and Charles Lord of psychology; Waldek Zerda of physics, William Beezley of history and Chris Barry of business. Tenure, granted in 1981 to John Touliatos in AddRan College, was changed to the School of Education.

Effective upon their retirement, emeritus status was granted to Malcolm Arnault of psychology, June Clements of English, Ambrose Edens of religion-studies, Noah Knepper of music, Peggy Mayfield of nursing, Harrison Moseley of physics, Kathryn Nichols of nursing, Stanley Allen Self of business and John Woldt of music.

At last fall's meeting, the board was informed of recommendations of the Committee on Academic Planning, a faculty group appointed to suggest directions for the academic mission of TCU. More study of the far-reaching proposals is under way, the chancellor said, and he intends to bring his recommendations to the trustees at their fall meeting.

TCU TIES SIMILAR FOR ROACH, FRIEDMAN

John Roach, who follows Bayard Friedman as chairman of the board of trustees, also followed him in gaining the TCU Alumni Association's highest honor. The alumni group selected Friedman for its Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1983; the following year the award went to Roach.

"I feel a lot of pride in being given the opportunity to serve in this capacity," Roach said about his election as board chairman. "Mr. Friedman has been an outstanding chairman working closely with Chancellor Tucker. I look forward to working with the chancellor in trying to continue the progress in the quality of the institution that's been evolving."

Friedman said his interest in TCU will not be lessened by his not sitting at the head of the table. "Having served as chairman for 11 years, it's time to step aside and to let some new blood come in," he said. "Serving on the board has been an honor and a privilege; serving as its chairman has been extra special, inasmuch as it has allowed me to have close association with the chancellor.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed it, and I want to continue to participate in the affairs of the board and the affairs of the school," he said, adding: "I'll be on the board until they throw me off!"

While gaining wide reputations in their professions and in civic endeavors, both men have maintained close ties with their alma mater.

Friedman, mayor of Fort Worth in the mid-1960s and on the original board of directors of the emerging Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, was named a TCU trustee in 1971. The board chose him its chairman in 1979 and repeated its choice annually until he asked not to be re-elected again. His 11-year chairmanship is unusual. During all of TCU's 118-year history, only two men had chaired the board for a longer period of time: Van Zandt Jarvis until 1940 and L.D. Anderson until 1953. Each had a 12-year tenure in that position.

Roach, a trustee since 1981, majored in math and physics as an undergraduate in an age when the only computers were large expensive ones owned by universities, major business firms and financial institutions. He held a fellowship in the TCU Computer Center while earning his M.B.A. degree.

His wife is the former Jean Wiggin, who was a freshman when he met her on a double date when he was a senior. She, too, has continued strong ties with TCU and is currently an alumni association director. A daughter, Amy, earned her degree from TCU last year. Another daughter, Lori, is a student at Paschal High School.

Roach's interest in education ranges far beyond the Fort Worth institutions in which he is directly involved. Tomorrow (Wednesday) he will attend the announcement of winners in the Tandy Technology Scholars Program, the largest known scholarship program rewarding outstanding high school students and teachers. Awards include $350,000 in scholarships for students and cash for teachers.

More than 8,000 high schools in all 50 states took part in the program sponsored by the Tandy Corporation and administered by TCU. Its aim, said Roach, is to "declare champions in the classroom, something that, in our opinion, society has not done frequently enough."

GILPIN TO GIVE HERITAGE LECTURE

Dr. W. Clark Gilpin, dean of the Disciples Divinity House at the University of Chicago, will deliver the 11th annual Russell Disciple Heritage Lecture at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in Robert Carr Chapel. His topic will be "Disciples of Christ and the Covenant Theology." The Russell lectures were established here in 1980 by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones Russell of Traverse City, MI, to examine the history of the Christian Church and determine its relevance for today.

A native Oklahoman, Gilpin earned degrees from the University of Oklahoma, Lexington Theological Seminary and the University of Chicago, where he received the Ph.D. in 1974. Since 1984 he has served as dean of Disciples Divinity House and as associate professor of theology and the history of Christianity in the University of Chicago Divinity School.

As a historian of Christianity in America, his research and writing have focused on puritanism and on the relation between religion and education in American culture. Gilpin's first book was a biography of Roger Williams, the 17th-century advocate of religious freedom who founded the colony of Rhode Island, and he recently completed a historical study of ministerial education in America. He is working on a book about changing understandings of the nature and mission of the church in American Protestant thought.

Gilpin, an ordained minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), has been a member of the steering committee for union talks between the Disciples and the United Church of Christ. He currently sits on the board of directors for the church's Division of Higher Education and for the Church Finance Council.
