HARRIS ADDS NEW COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

To give its students an edge on using a developing technology, Harris College of Nursing has installed four bedside terminals and a main computer in its basic skills lab. TCU is believed to be the first university in the country to add this new technology to its nursing school.

Used in hospitals for patient documentation, the terminals replace patient charts and reduce the paperwork that limits the time nurses can devote to patient care. The time saved is estimated at an hour to an hour-and-a-half per eight-hour shift. Besides improving patient care by increasing the time nurses can spend with patients, the new technology provides an accurate, reliable record of patient care, which is particularly important if a court case is filed.

Although the transition from paper work to computer documentation is new, it is likely to become universal in urban hospitals in several years. The National League for Nursing already requires its nurses to be computer literate.

"We feel that if our students will be using these computers after they graduate, they need to become familiar with them now," said Dean Patricia Scarse. "To our knowledge and the knowledge of the company that installed the system, we are the first nursing school to install these terminals."

Students are introduced to the computers early in their education, typically as sophomores, when they are learning basic nursing skills. "We want them to see the computer as a tool, not something mysterious or hard, but something they'll use along with their other tools, like the thermometer," Pat said.

"The computers give the course a new dimension, since an important part of health assessment is correct documentation," said Peggy Mayfield, who uses the computers in her health assessment lab. "One advantage is that the computer already contains the vocabulary they are learning, so they use the words as they learn them. Also we have a laser printer, and being able to print out a neat-looking document encourages students to enjoy using the computer."

Many of Peggy's students are registered nurses working in hospitals while earning their Bachelor of Science degrees. "These nurses know that the technology is coming, and they are really excited," Peggy said. "They share with us ways they can use the computers in the work setting."

Incorporated into the labs since the beginning of the fall semester, the computers are used in different ways for different labs. In the basic skills lab, students enter patient information such as vital signs, diet, intravenous care, wound care and safety precautions. In health assessment, students punch up existing data to use in assessing particular organs and systems. The computers already are suggesting additional applications, including use as a testing device, said Rhonda Keen-Payne, who teaches basic skills.

Purchased from Micro Healthsystems of New Jersey, the system was set up in the nursing lab as it would be installed in a hospital. Placed between two beds, each terminal can record information for two patients. One alteration was made, however, to extend the computers' usefulness in the classroom.

"As it was originally, the screen didn't meet our needs," Peggy said. To make the computers as useful as possible, she worked with the company to redesign the screen to correspond with the workbook she wrote for the health assessment lab. "More than just learning that the computer is one way to do patient documentation while they still do it on paper in the lab, our students now can do their actual documentation and charting with the computer," she said.

TEXARKANA, LUBBOCK SITES FOR EVENTS

University-related events are being held this week in Texarkana and Lubbock. Both are sponsored by the alumni association.

Best-selling author and former LBJ Chair holder Paul Boller will speak Thursday for the "Texarkana Evening with TCU." The event for alumni and friends as well as parents of current students will be held in the home of Mike and Kathleen Ford Martin.

Lubbock's Plaza Hotel will be the site of a post-game reception and buffet following the TCU-Texas Tech game Saturday. The $8-per-person reservations are due tomorrow (Wednesday) in the alumni office. The TCU Lubbock/South Plains Association has invited Midland/Odessa and Amarillo alumni groups to the event. A section in the west parking lot of Jones Stadium will be marked off from 10 a.m. to noon for Frog fans to gather for an informal pre-game tailgate party.

'GRANDPARENTS ONLY' DAY SUCCESSFUL

"Grandparents Only" Day is becoming an annual event at Starpoint School. Forty grandparents of the school's students recently attended a three-hour workshop on campus. Coming from Fort Worth as well as from Arlington, Midland, Hurst, Kirbyville, Houston, Sherman and Berryville, AR, they were given information about Starpoint School and learning disabilities. The visitors also participated in discussion groups and observed their grand children at work in the classrooms.

'THE FOREIGNER' OPENS NOV. 10

Larry Shue's "The Foreigner," a light-hearted play with a serious moral, opens Nov. 10 in University Theatre for a six-day run. Hours will be 8 p.m. nightly through Nov. 14 and 2 p.m. Nov. 15; admission is free with TCU ID. Gaylan Collier is directing the Theatre TCU production.

The plot involves a colorless proofreader for English Science Fiction Publications (played by Edgar Landwehr of Lavallette, NJ) who is introduced into a backwater lake resort in Georgia by a well-meaning friend (Kelly Smith of Mesquite) as a foreigner who speaks no English. He gradually takes on the qualities of his part to the delight of the "good guys," the dismay of the "bad guys" and the astonishment of the buddy who is responsible for the whole farce.

Initially presented at the Milwaukee Repertory Theatre early in 1983, "The Foreigner" arrived off Broadway the next year, featuring the late playwright Shue first in the role of "Froggy," the well-meaning friend, and later as the "foreigner," Charlie Baker. "The Foreigner" received the Outer Critics' Circle Award for 1984 and since then has been a highly popular choice for university, community and professional theatres, including Fort Worth Theatre and Alley Theatre in Houston.

Clive Barnes, writing in The New York Times, called the play "a devilishly clever idea," a work "poised curiously in the disputed territory between comedy and farce." Despite its zaniness, Gaylan pointed out, it does question us, as Americans, about our perception of a "foreigner." To some of us, like Betty Meeks (played by Valinda Heath of Duncanville), he is "the source of fresh delight." To others, including Owen Musser (Jack Lewis of Houston), he is a "dummy" or a "threat."

Gaylan picked "The Foreigner" as far back as the spring of 1986, when it was her overwhelming choice from among 12 plays she viewed on a theater trip to New York.

LECTURE TO ADDRESS PREJUDICE, AIDS

On Nov. 9 the psychology department will present "Understanding Prejudice Against Persons with AIDS," a lecture by psychologist Dr. John B. Pryor, whose research on prejudice and AIDS is funded by the National Institute of Mental Health.

Sponsored by TCU's Research Fund Lectureship Series, the speech will begin at 7 p.m. in Sid Richardson Lecture Hall 4. Admission is free. Dr. Pryor's thesis ties prejudice against AIDS victims to hatred of homosexuals.

An associate professor of psychology at Illinois State University, Dr. Pryor specializes in social psychology. Author of "The Development of Social Cognition," he also has published 25 journal articles. He earned his doctoral degree at Princeton in 1977 and taught at Notre Dame before moving to ISU.

INTERNS ARE IN THE THICK OF IT

The 18 juniors and seniors who make up TCU's largest contingent of Washington interns in 10 years of affiliation with the Washington Center are involved with issues ranging from arms control, international trade and the future of nuclear deterrence to ozone in the atmosphere, women's issues and African affairs.

Placements include Jonathan Carr, junior political science major from Fort Worth, law offices of Jerry Dier, a private practice dealing largely with criminal cases; Kelly Cunningham, senior political science major from Melissa, End Hunger Network, where she is responsible for preparing a video presentation for the US '88 Project, a voter education program on United States-Third World relations; Leslie Custer, Tulsa senior majoring in journalism/political science, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, monitoring legislation related to federal court administration and conducting research for the Judicial Conference.

Other interns and their assignments are Douglas Dowler, senior political science major from Ardmore, Union of Concerned Scientists, where he monitors, researches, and lobbies on issues related to arms control and the Strategic Defense Initiative; Lauri Ebel, junior political science major, Albuquerque, assisting in law offices of Jeff Jacobovitz on cases related to immigration and naturalization and other civil law; Robin Hill, Longview, political science senior, office of Rep. Patricia Schroeder, following economic, women's and legal issues, including such current legislation as the Family and Medical Leave Act and the Minimum Wage Bill; Lori Keller, senior political science major from Albuquerque, working on projects that affect the protection of government employees.

Also in Washington are Fort Worth senior broadcast journalism major Paula Lowe, working for the weekly UPDATE publication at C-Span and covering national news stories from a local angle for American News Bureau; David Martin, senior political science major from Shreveport, U.S. Department of Commerce, where he serves as liaison with the states on areas related to the development of international trade; senior political science major Elizabeth McQuary of Panama, Caribbean/Central American Action, helping to coordinate a Miami conference in November aimed at encouraging private investment and trade in the Caribbean Basin; Timothy Muirheid, Fort Worth, senior political science major, Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, where he helps in research and analysis of projects investigating civilian and military uses of space and the future of nuclear deterrence.

Others are senior political science major Sydney Robison of Amarillo, office of Sen. Paul Simon, where she assists in policy areas of agriculture, trade and environment and expects to devote some time to the senator's presidential campaign; Aisha Saleem, junior journalism major from Missouri City, monitoring legislation, assisting in research and writing for a newsletter on issues related to U.S. policies and their effect on African affairs for the Washington Office on Africa; Wayne Stewart, Farmersville senior majoring in physics and astronomy and math, Goddard Space Flight Center, analyzing satellite ozone data to help scientists studying ozone concentration levels in the atmosphere, particularly over Antarctica.

SYMPHONY CONCERT STARS SMITH, HUGHES

Faculty members Emmet Smith, organ, and Kerry Hughes, trumpet, will join the University Symphony in concert at 8 p.m. Friday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The symphony, under the direction of Candler Schaffer, will perform C.P.E. Bach's Symphony No. 3, Elegy for Strings by Elliott Carter and Handel's Organ Concerto No. 2 in B-flat Major with Emmet as soloist. Also on the program will be Samuel Barber's First Essay for Orchestra and Alexandre Arutunian's Trumpet Concerto featuring Kerry.

TODAY'S RECEPTION HONORS TEACHERS

Fort Worth-area teachers in the Advanced Placement Program will be honored today (Tuesday) at a 5-7 p.m. reception in the Student Center. Hosting the event are the Fort Worth Independent School District's gifted education department and TCU's School of Education.

Speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Paul Williamson of Austin, director of academic services for the Southwestern region of The College Board. Also taking part in the program will be Dr. Don Roberts, FWISD superintendent and TCU administrators Ned Boehm, Doug Hastad and Bill Koehler.

More than 300 teachers of preparatory courses for advanced placement in area schools have been invited to the reception, designed to focus on advanced placement programs in which students receive college credit for some high school courses and to recognize the teachers' dedicated efforts. Superintendents and other administrators from the schools have been invited. Among the guests will be advanced placement teachers from the Arlington, Birdville, Cedar Hills, Grapevine-Colleyville, Weatherford and Hurst-Euless-Bedford school districts and from Country Day and Trinity Valley private schools.

SWIMMERS IMPRESSIVE AGAINST NORTH TEXAS

Horned Frog swimmers made impressive showings against the Eagles of North Texas in a recent meet. Wearing the purple, "swimmers won all 26 events, and I was pleased with our performance for the first meet of the season," said Coach Richard Sybesma. Following that competition, both the men's and women's dual meet record was 1-0, with each winning the 400 medley and freestyle relays.

"Exceptional" was Richard's description of efforts by Keith Ludwick, Ken Healy, Katie Tredenick and Lori Meyers. "We only took our freshmen to the meet with North Texas because we have such a strong freshman class," Richard explained. TCU's swimmers competed in the Southwest Conference relays in Houston last weekend, which was too late for results in this week's bulletin.

The men's team, which won by 84-29 over NTSU, included the following first-place winners:

Chris Benedict	500 and 1000 freestyle
Keith Ludwick	50 freestyle and 100 backstroke
Brent Sawyer	200 freestyle
Ken Healy	100 butterfly and 200 individual medley
Lance Daugherty	100 breaststroke
Robbie Barron	100 freestyle
Kyle Bass	1- and 3-meter diving

Beating NTSU 66-23, the women's first-place winners were:

Lori Meyers	100 butterfly
Rachael Eason	200 and 500 freestyle
Barb Schinzing	100 backstroke
Katie Tredenick	50 and 100 freestyle and 100 breaststroke
Marlene Parchman	200 individual medley
Dena Livergood	1- and 3-meter diving
Shawna Voorhees	1000 freestyle

NOTES ON FOLKS

CYNTHIA FOLIO and SHEILA ALLEN (music) performed a concert Oct. 17 at the College Music Society national convention in New Orleans. Assisting were TCU graduate student BUDDY BRAY, pianist David Yeomans and Fort Worth Symphony violinist Kenneth Schanewerk. Theme of the concert was "Music by Latin American Composers," including works by Santoro, Guarneri, Mahle and La Sala.

The TCU Flute Quartet, directed by Cynthia and made up of TCU students HOLLIE GROSCHLOS, ROBYN LEWIS, BETH PATTON and CHRISSEY RYDER, performed for the North-east Fine Arts League Oct. 19 at the North Richland Hills Community Center. program was videotaped for cable TV Channel 36.

A newly published "Symphony Orchestras of the World--Selected Profiles," edited by Robert Craven, contains a three-page article by JOHN WOLDT (music) on the Bergen Philharmonic Orchestra of Bergen, Norway. John was inspired and featured in this article by alumna SALLY GUENTHER, principal cellist of the Bergen Philharmonic and a former cello student of HARRIET WOLDT.

MARK CALDWELL (design and fashion) and Marian Jernigan of Texas Woman's University have been informed that their article, "A Comparison of Retail Fabric Customers of Fabric Chain Stores, Independent Fabric Stores and Home Sales Representatives," has been accepted for presentation at the American Collegiate Retailing Association/National Retail Merchants Association annual meeting in New York in January.

ART BERLINER (sociology) presented a paper on "Ethics Infractions in Social Work," in which he reported on his recently completed study of a national sample of ethical infractions in various fields of social work practice, at the annual conference of the Texas NASW chapter in Amarillo Oct. 15-17. Then he flew to Washington to attend a meeting of the NASW's National Committee on Inquiry (Ethics). He is in the second year of a three-year term with this national body.

Sympathy is extended to soccer coach DAVE RUBINSON, whose mother, Shirley Antweil Rubinson, died Oct. 23. Services for the Fort Worth native were conducted Oct. 25.

RALPH GUENTHER (professor emeritus, music) has recently signed contracts for the publication of a new book for flute. The volume entitled "Practical Etudes for Flute" will be published by Belwin-Mills Music Corp. The book of studies is designed for use by students in junior and senior high schools. It is the third book in the series of studies for flute that Ralph has placed with this company.

PEGGY KYSER (management information systems) will serve the local chapter of Data Processing Management Association as vice president for membership in 1988. Currently vice president of attendance and awards, she has been assistant editor of publications since 1986.

ERNEST COUCH (biology) presented a paper entitled "Virus-like Particles in the Mandibular Organ of the Spider Crab, Libinia Emarginata" at the Oct. 9 fall meeting of the Texas Society for Electron Microscopy in Bandera.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

RON FLOWERS (religion-studies) is author of an article entitled "On Battling over the Intentions and Morality of the Nation's Founders," published in a book of essays in honor of Sidney E. Mead, often called "the dean of historians of religion in America." Published by Mercer University Press, the book is entitled "The Lively Experiment Continued," after one of Mead's ground-breaking books, "The Lively Experiment: The Shaping of Christianity in America." Ron's essay is about the controversy over the "original intent" of the Constitution and the Christian Right's attempt to transform the nation into a "Christian America."

DENISE ZANECCHIA (Harris College) presented a paper on "Adolescent Gynecology: Clinical Prevention and Health Promotion" at the Armed Forces District Annual Conference of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology in Denver Oct. 8. Denise holds the rank of colonel in the Army Nurse Corps Reserves.

LYNDA DAVIS (management information systems) has been named 1988 executive vice president of the Fort Worth chapter of Data Processing Management Association. A certified data processor, she had been editor of the organization's publications since 1986. This spring she attended its Region 3 conference in Lafayette, LA, to accept first place for the national chapter's outstanding newsletter competition.

The current fall edition of the Journalism Quarterly includes an in depth look at "The Right to Know vs. the Right of Privacy: Newspaper Identification of Crime Victims" by TOMMY THOMASON (journalism), former journalism faculty member Rita Wolf and Paul LaRocque of SMU.

Director JACK SCOTT of the Counseling Center made a presentation entitled "The Design and Implementation of Acquaintance Rape Programs" on Oct. 15 at the National Conference of the Association of University and College Counseling Center Directors in Rockland, ME.

NELL ROBINSON and MARY HAGER (nutrition and dietetics) attended the annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association in Atlanta Oct. 17-22. Nell, a Texas delegate to the House of Delegates, is serving as chair of the ethics committee. In addition to introducing the keynote speaker on ethics, she presented a paper, "Standards of Professional Responsibility: Historical Perspectives."

Two graduates of the Coordinated Program in Dietetics presented papers at the ADA meeting. ELLEN SMITH LARSON (1979), dietitian at M.D. Anderson, presented "Oral Nutrition Support of Patients with Esophageal Cancer," and SUZI DOMEL SMITH (1981), a Ph.D. candidate at Texas Woman's University, presented "Shag Up Dallas: Development of a Weight Control Program for Low-Income Women."

MARY ANNE GORMAN (nutrition and dietetics) is co-author of two papers presented at poster sessions at the annual meeting. They were "Attributes and Qualifications that Employers Seek When Hiring Dietitians in Business and Industry" and "Feasibility of Marketing Cook Chill Food Products to Consumers."

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

ALLEN SELF (management) addressed two groups in October. The first was the Media Tax Seminar for national cable TV taxation specialists, sponsored by the Texas Cable TV Association, at the Worthington Hotel. His topic was "Evaluation of Intangibles." For the second, the monthly meeting of the Mechanical Contractors Association of Fort Worth at Ridglea Country Club, his topic was "The Current Economic Outlook."

Members of BOB NEILSON's (chemistry) research group attended the National Meeting of the American Chemical Society in New Orleans earlier this semester. Graduate students YVETTE SHAW and GARY SCHEIDE presented papers entitled "Diborylamines as Precursors to B-N Polymers" and "Synthesis, Characterization and Polymerization of Vinyl Substituted Phosphoranimines," respectively. Technical papers recently accepted for publication include "Poly(alkyl/arylphosphazenes) and Their Precursors" in Chemical Reviews and "Oxidation Reactions of a 1-Phosphadiene: Synthesis of Phosphacyclobutenes" in Tetrahedron Letters. Bob recently presented an invited seminar, "New Main Group Element Monomers and Polymers," at the Dow-Corning Corporation in Midland, MI.

The staff of the Center for Academic Services--acting director TEOBY GOMEZ and academic counselors GAIL ZIMMERMAN and ROBERTA CORDER (English)--recently presented a paper at the 11th National Conference of the National Academic Advisors Association in Chicago Oct. 11-14. The presentation was entitled "Faculty vs. Professional Advisors: Confronting the Issues."

JUST A REMINDER...

...that negatives are available in Sadler Room 321 for the photos Linda Kaye made recently of faculty and staff members. Persons who have not yet made selections are urged to do so this week.

...that tomorrow (Wednesday) is the "real" date for the final coaches' coffee for this football season. Due to a jump-the-gun announcement in last week's bulletin, some folks showed up last week. Although there weren't any doughnuts, the conversations were good. Come tomorrow...7:30 to 8:15 a.m. in the coliseum.

SERVICES HELD FOR JOHN LARGE

Memorial services were held Sunday afternoon in Robert Carr Chapel for John Large, associate professor of music who died Oct. 22 of cancer. His family has requested that memorials be in the form of donations to the John Large Memorial Scholarship Fund in care of the Development Office.

John, who joined the faculty in 1985, earned bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of New Mexico, the doctorate in music from Indiana University, Licence de Concert from Ecole Normale de Musique in Paris and the Ph.D. in voice science from Stanford University. He came to TCU from the North Texas State University faculty and also had taught at the University of California at San Diego, University of Santa Clara, International School of Geneva, University of Southern California, Institute of Laryngology and Voice Disorders in Los Angeles, San Francisco State University and New York State University College at Potsdam.

Director of the new graduate program in voice performance pedagogy, John had carried out extensive research in odology, the study of the anatomical functioning of the voice. He was a founder of the International Association for Experimental Research in Singing.

He held a Fulbright Scholarship to study in Paris in 1962-63 and recently had been awarded a Senior Postdoctoral Fulbright grant to conduct research in singing from May to August 1988 at the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm. He made debuts in both Carnegie Hall and Town Hall in New York and had sung recitals throughout Europe and the United States. John's opera and musical theater roles included Don Giovanni, Figaro, Count Almaviva, Guglielmo and Papageno in the Mozart repertoire as well as Tommy in "Brigadoon" and roles in such contemporary operas as "The Consul," "Down in the Valley" and "Street Scene."

Listed in Who's Who in America and International Who's Who in Music, he won the New York City Concert Artists Guild competition in 1964 and the Indiana Young Artists Audition in 1961. A U.S. Navy pilot and flight instructor from 1955 to 1959, John was a member of University Christian Church and of Sigma Chi fraternity. He also belonged to the National Association of Teachers of Singing, Acoustical Society of America, Fulbright Alumni and Collegium Medicorum Theatri. He wrote a number of books and articles, including "Vocal Registers in Singing," published by Mouton and Company (The Hague) in 1973; "Contributions of Voice Science to Singing," College-Hill Press, 1980; and "Donizetti's Opera BETLY," International Music Company, 1983.

John is survived by his mother, Elma Boardman of Fort Worth; a sister, Mrs. Emily Large-Fuhs; and a niece, Susan Fuhs-Huff, both of California.

BAD WEATHER POLICY

General Policy

The University's general plan is to remain open and to provide educational and related services despite bad weather, with students and personnel making their plans accordingly.

All members of the faculty, University staff and general staff are expected to make every reasonable effort to maintain regular attendance. In the event an individual feels that it would be either impossible or unwise to report for normal duty, he or she may count the missed time as vacation time.

If weather conditions become so severe that it is necessary to cancel classes, efforts will be made to notify students and faculty at the earliest possible time. Make-up opportunities for classes or work missed by students will be arranged.

Decisions, Announcement of Closings

- As a matter of general policy, University offices and facilities will remain open at all times except for official holiday periods.
- The decision to cancel classes will be made through the office of the chancellor or his representative...usually by 6 a.m. for day classes and 3 p.m. for evening and special courses. Even if classes are canceled, offices and facilities will remain open.
- The News Service will be responsible for making all public announcements to radio, television and newspapers regarding changes because of weather conditions.
- Outlets to which this information will be given and which should be monitored for any campus announcements include:

Radio stations--KRLD, KPLX, WBAP, KMEZ, KVIL, KERA, KEGL

Television stations--KXAS-TV, WFAA-TV, KTVT-TV, KDFW-TV

Newspapers--Star-Telegram, Dallas Morning News, Dallas Times-Herald.
